I started stargazing when I lived in Palmdale in the early 60's and had a dark sky that had countless stars in it. Never had a good telescope until the 90's. After reading about one John Dobson, I have followed his way as I am a 'Sidewalk Astronomer' and it is my mission to bring the wonders of the sky above to those who have never taken a bit of time to stop and look up.

If my sore feet ease off a bit today and the asprin tone down the hurts, I may be up there tonight as I was last night. It is wonderful to hear the ah's and wow's of not only kids, but grown ups to as they see the moon for the first time in a telescope or see the rings of Saturn for the first time in their life.

I know of a place where I can go and be alone and in the full dark to view the faint fuzzies of other galaxies, or look for the places where new stars are being born. And a fire would destroy my night vision so no fire near the scope.

Right now I don't have a radio in the car, not sure how long I'll have this one, am kind of working on a deal that if gets done, I might end up with a S.wagon of the same year. I might put a simple mag mount on this one if I put a radio in it. But after the last 3 days I'm flate broke and can't do anything.

Me and the owner of foster freeze don't see eye to eye, he's tried to have me removed from my spot, but even the cops say I'm within my rights and will not even come any more on his calls about me. Heck they stop by to have a look see now and then, they all know me in Rosamond. Been doing it almost 7 years here.

Plus the radio I have is only an am one and have not been able to hear the local chatter just yet.

Hello Jim:

Yeah the weather here in the Mojave Desert can be really strange at times. The weather in Vegas can get rainy and have a lot of lightning at times while most other parts of the Mojave Desert are clear and warm.

I have seen it here get below freezing (Brrrrrr) for almost two weeks. I had my pipes freeze once, and had to replace the 60 dollar pressure regulator, during the day when it got up to 30 degree's. Man was that a cold winter. It even happened in March.

I worked a construction job near Vicorville once. I work in heavy construction machinery. We had an electrical problem in a heavy road grader once that throw everyone a curve. It was a Cat 16G Grader, or a Super Grader as it had a really wide blade on it for open grading of a new highways and such.

This thing kicked some major a$$ when it was NOT running and of course things got behind schedule, because this kick ass, no shit, 5 star gold plated, Super Duper Grader wasn't running, or would only run long enough to get in the way. Man did the ol man (the boss) blow a gasket over that one!!!! Because it wasn't out equipement, we rented it!

So we worked day and night to get to run again. We audited the main wire harness, and figured some repair mechanic or welder doing a repair damaged a few wires causing several electrical intermittent connections in the electrical system that allowed the Super Kick Ass Grader to be a large in the way obstacle. After a new ignition switch, Starter Solenoid, Starter, Alternator, and all new wire harness to the engine this baby was ready to Grade to China. So the Boss had the Grader Drivers and crew out there on a Sunday, and work at night, to make up for lost time.

During the night and early morning it snowed, rained, blew like no tomorrow, and during the day was nice, didn't need a jacket.

To make a long story short, you had to be ready for anything the weather would dish out, as we got it often. I don't think the weather in Alaska counld be that bad.

Well, it depends on the weather, wanted to go last night, but the winds came up and they didn't die down enough until way late. It looks like tonight will be ok IF the winds don't get bad again, they are saying rain saturday night, which is always a IFFY deal for out here. If I go up to the corner tonight, it may be the last time for the next 2 weeks until after New Moon. Once Saturn starts coming up sooner, then I'll be out there more, but that'll not be until after New years most likly. As it is, I got my car running again, otherwise I wouldn't have been going anyplace at all.

I have used that argument myself but I have since found out that it doesn't wash: Many CBers -don't- know the rules. And while any person can refuse a station inspection, most CBers (and many hams) are not aware that such a refusal can be used as 'evidence' against him, and is therefore a violation of the 5th amendment.

>> impose penalties without due process,

Wrong. You can't challenge the violation in court like you can a traffic ticket. FCC fines are enforced by the Treasury Dept as uncollected debts, -not- as violations of FCC rules.

>> and make up >> their own rules as they go;
>The rules are clearly spelled out in CFR 47.

What I meant was that the FCC has the power to write their own rules under the CFR to enforce the USC as they see fit. Since the power of the FCC is not balanced by a watchdog agency, and because their rules are written and enforced in a manner that prevents any constitutional challenges, they are effectively a rogue agency.

Wrong. Notice what happens when a cop is on the road -- everyone slows down. Spokane is a classic example of what happens when there are too few cops to enforce the law. Driving in this town is nothing short of treacherous. You can drive all day and not see a cop. I've been hit 16 times in as many years, three times while my car/truck was parked on the street in front of my house, and just recently my GARAGE was hit.
I was even rear-ended once by an ambulance! Why? Because there aren't enough police to enforce the law so people ignore them and drive any way they want.

On the other side of the coin, I went to Bellingham a couple years ago and WOW what a difference! Cops were highly visible, almost everybody drove -under- the speed limit, and I didn't see anybody driving like they were drunk (common in Spokane).

Police presence DOES make a difference.

The issue is not about a person's right to use a radio transmitter, but about the protections of the accused that are -supposed- to be guaranteed by the constitution. Like, 'innocent until proven guilty in a court of law'. Last time I checked the FCC is not a part of the judicial branch. They can accuse but they CANNOT determine guilt.
That's why their citations are notifications of APPARENT liability.

If someone uses a radio transmitter in violation of the law then by all means they should be held accountable. But the -means- by which that person is brought to justice by the FCC is unconstitutional and they know it.

> If it isn't there then there is no constitutional

EVERY person has the constitutional right to challenge ANY law. The problem is that the FCC has been very careful about preventing any such challenges.

Exactly! And that's why any fine against a large company by the FCC will never be large enough to justify any such challenge -- they will simply write it off as an expense, just like Twisty explained.

750K is a significant number of people, and if the FCC dropped enforcement of the ham bands there would be an equally significant backlash. Not just because of the numbers, but also because those people have a license -- a 'contract' with the government -- to use those bands. If the FCC welches on 750K contracts you can bet that there would be hell to pay.

If you read through the relevent sections of Part 0 (linked above) you will see that the chairman is nothing more than a representative and a facilitator. He is -not- the controlling force of the FCC. If he was then it wouldn't be called a "commission".

That's been true of the whole commission, and it's been true for many, many years. As for the BPL issue, don't put the cart before the horse:
wait to see just how much of a problem it causes -in fact-, and if it's enough of a problem that makes 750K hams feel the FCC is ignoring their 'contracts' then you will probably see some corrective actions by the FCC.

All I see happening is the ARRL taking a step forward after being

I would like to see some legal opinions in that area. You do rasie an interesting point.

> Wrong. You can't challenge the violation in court like you can a

I've read where some who have gotten NAL's have had their day in court in front of an administrative law judge. CFR 47 and the rules under it are considered administrative law and can thus be heard in court. Some have even won their cases. Check it out for yourself.

> What I meant was that the FCC has the power to write their own rules

They are. It's called the Congress of The United States. If you don't keep up with Ham related things such as zoning-convents-home owner associations, where they restrict erection of antenna towers etc. and the PRB-1 issue, you won't know. The FCC has made a ruling granting a partial over ruling of such restrictions for TV antennas. Also it states that "reasonable accommodations" have to be made for Ham antennas. Its not a blacket override. Many Hams have requested that the FCC issue an order more specific. I bring this up as a point because the FCC said they will not issue such an order unless directed by Congress by way of law making. So as you can see they can't make up any rules they like. They are bound by the Congress, and any treaties they sign, like at the last world administrate radio conference. I will agree that they do have a wide latitude in what they can do, but it is non the less has bounds.

> Wrong. Notice what happens when a cop is on the road

Tell that to the truckers I see routinely doing 60+ MPH in crealy marked 55 MPH zones, cops or not.

> Police presence DOES make a difference.

But only if they know for sure they will actually do something. I was in Georgia driving south of Atlanta, on my way to Macon for a work assignment, driving on I75 a week ago. I got routinely passed by truckers doing well over 70 MPH, which is the posted speed limit. I also saw plenty of 4 wheelers getting pulled over for speeding. I can't recall seeing any of the hordes of speeding 18 wheelers getting pulled over. And I saw plenty of cops everywere I went.

They screw criminals all the time with wire taps etc. Seems to me if it was so unconstitutional some sharp attorney would have put that baby to bed a long time ago, and permanently too. As far as anything transmitted over the air there really is no reasonable expectation of privacy without extraordinary measures being taken, such as using encryption. It then becomes like the "in plain sight" rules the street cops use when finding edvidence.

That is an economic decision by the company. There is nothing that prevents them from pursuing the issue in court if the money is not a concern.

Look under section 0.13. You have to read between the lines, but I think you'll get the drift. The chairmen can exert influence over what the commission does in an indirect manner. And that was all I implied by my prior statement.

So why are the lobbyists always trying to get the chairman's era? If he doesn't matter why are they wasting their time with him? As you should know what is said on paper, how it should work, may not always match how it really gets done.

I've read reports where the interference was so bad that in one or more foreign countries have pulled the plug completely on BPL. In reported case here in the USA about reported interference the BPL provider was unable to resolve the problems even after months of tweaking the system. There is a new technology on the horizon that may just obsolete BPL anyway, the 802.16 for a wireless MAN (Metropolitan Area Network).

In reality it is to a degree. It isn't called a "service" for nothing you know. One of the primary reasons for the existence of Ham Radio is to provide emergency communications. This is something that affects Hams and non Hams alike. Just ask Keith here on the group. That's one main reason why he got his Ham ticket, and I'm sure he has put it to good use the last several months.

If there is one sure thing in life its change. Assuming things are going to stay the same just isn't reasonable. So if it's bad its going to get better.

Ummm... what the hell are you talking about? The page is parked, and you are a dumbass.

Oh, I see. You are wearing a sign. It says "I am an idiot and a CBer and I don't know how to use a f*ing web browser."

That's funny! You post a 'parked' website URL, then call me an idiot and a CBer.

You have to be dumbest mother fucker I've ever seen on Usenet. How do you get through life being so stupid!?

Hello, Dave and Dan

Either of you guys remember W2OY? About the only difference between him and some today is that he wasn't anonymous. But he loved to jam folks. There have been others of more recent vintage as well that also were not anonymous.

Best regards from Rochester, NY

On top of that, he was licensed twice as a novice , because he wasn['t smart enough to upgrade. He should leave it parked, it probably would look better than anything he could come up with.

Hello - I wanted to send you some info I think the About.com users would find usefull. It's a new website aimed at smaller radio stations who need voice-over work for commercials, liners, etc.

Free Voice Over Exchange Service
Have you ever wished that you had more variety when it comes to voices on your radio station? Most LPFM and small NCE stations don't have the budget to keep a full staff of people. So it usually comes down to one or two people doing all the spots, liners and bumpers. Well - no more! With our new service and your assistance, we can all come together through this new free service and share our voices! The concept is simple - you need a spot or liner read? Just log into the website, upload the copy and one of our other members will read the copy and upload the spot back to the site for you to download! Walla - a new voice for your station. We only ask that you offer the same in return to our members. Check it out at http://www.RadioDaddy.com

Well, we know Dan is, Dave kind of sounds he could be. Good example these clowns are setting. If they use morse code, and use a key to send morse code, would that make them keyclowns?

I probably would too given the choice. I have dealt with 2 Jo-Gunn antennas, and several Moonrakers. I installed a 3 + 3 or 4 Star antenna about 10 years ago, and recovered and rebuilt a 4v antenna that crashed from a half assed tower. Theyre built like brick shithouses, and use a quality anodized aluminum. Although for the 4v repair, i spec'd out regular untreated stock and used jo-gunn rardware and rubber. I used it as a portable skip shooter since it has no elements that hang down and assembles very quick, and sold it after a handfull of uses. Very good antennas that shouldnt be overlooked these days.

Hello, Dan

Well, the 'gentleman' I am thinking of was Mike, W2OY, and he was active out of the Buffalo, NY, area back in the 60s (when I first got on the air) and probably some decades before as well. He was a class "A" licensee.

Folks,

Idiots are idiots and it has nothing to do with cb or amateur radio. I've heard my share of idiots over the years - going back into the 60s - on amateur radio.

Your holier than thou attitude does not help the image of amateur radio. It turns folks off. A lot.

Please think about that before you go posting flames in the cb group.

Greetings Dan! There are plenty of idiotic CBer's, but we cannot blame these antics on the amateur bands solely on them. As has been stated it is on the news groups as well. As a matter of fact I have not found any organization or club that I have ever belonged to that didn't have idiots in them that had no connection with CB radio. The commonality with idiotic people in diverse groups is that there are always going to be a certain amount of idiots out there and they must go somewhere. If you find a group of people somewhere and they have no idiots among them don't ruin it for them and let anyone know. 73 Jon. KG4GFU.

Did they go before Congress to get the "rule" on the "export" radio's?
I don't think so. They, like the IRS can take almost any existing law and interpret it their own way and create a new "rule". That's why they are called rules, not laws.

Well Lee, they cracked down on truckers out here. It was all over the news how they were giving a zero tolerance for a month on all big rigs.

Not really. Again, you have to appear before the FCC and pay the fines before you can begin to contest their ruling. How many times can you afford to have an attorny apera on your behalf?

the camp grounds yet & beating them up?

99.9% of them are using their 2 way walkie-talkies without obtaining the "official" $25 FCC license!

For an example to support my opinion, read 18 USC subsection 2511.
This is the law that prohibits interception of communication. The law includes exceptions for reasons such as law enforcement. But even law enforcement agencies are required to jump through hoops in order to intercept communications and use it as evidence. Yet the FCC has written themselves a blank check: The same law permits the FCC to intercept communications without any warrant or showing of probable cause.

As for the idea that congress controls the FCC, I should remind you that many big bill packages (such as the spending bill currently before this lame-duck congress) are filled with subtle laws (as well as pork-barrel spending) that get passed without ever being read because the bill is so large. One such law that almost snuck through in this bill was one that would have put a cap on lawsuits against drug companies even if the company knew beforehand that their product was bad. There are plenty of bad laws like this that slip through congress without even a blink. And you can bet that the FCC slips their own bills through, too.

So while congress may -technically- control the FCC, the reality is that they don't. The commissioners are controlled by the lobbyists hired by corporate fat-cats, and most of congress is too busy with their partisan politics to worry about little things like bad laws.
That may be a cynical perception, but nonetheless accurate.

Perhaps. But again, every law enforcement agency -except- the FCC requires a warrant to obtain a wiretap. And even if the audio is admissible as evidence, it's up to a jury -- NOT the FCC -- to determine the weight of that evidence.

>Like I said above, if you don't like it take it to the judge. Same as a

You still missed the issue: You get an NAL because you have been found guilty without a trial. You can appeal the ruling but only to the FCC, so you are basically appealing to the prosecution. If you refuse to pay the fine then your case is forwarded to the Treasury Department for collection; i.e, the only case you can bring before a judge is an issue of law regarding the DEBT -- NOT the violation that -resulted-in the debt.

The FCC's use of the NAL precludes standing in any court. The only way you can challenge their laws is indirectly; i.e, habeus corpus, civil suit, temporary injunction, congressional intervention, etc, etc. The problem is that the people who would benefit the most from standing do not have the means to mount an indirect challenge. And -that's- how the FCC can prevent you from having your 'day in court'.

Quite right -- you can't challenge the law unless you have standing,

It's a tactic used by the FCC based on the expected economic decision

But money -is- a concern, as you have already stated.

That's naive. Every other agency of the government operates under the

The Office of the Inspector General is not the Commission Chairman.
And any commissioner can influence the commission in the way you stated. Anyway, when you get tired of reading -between- the lines try reading the lines as explicitly written regarding the job of Chairman:

The lobbyists go after the commissioners just as much as the chairman,

Well, I've been in the middle of at least three situations that should have been ideal examples of what you describe: Mt. StHelens; hurricane Gloria; and Spokane's ice storm of '96. But in all of those emergency situations, ham radio activity consisted mostly of small-talk and QRM.
And in all three cases the bulk of non-PSP emergency communication was done by CB radio. After listening to the ham bands for 30 years I can say with great confidence that ham radio sucks when it comes to those types of situations. Time and time again CB radio has proven itself to be the communications backbone when landlines fail.

Or worse. And I made no assumption about things not changing, although a prognosticator, I no longer make assumptions about the future except that it will come.

I should rephrase this: The Supreme Court only selects cases that are presented to it. Unless the outcome can be 'assured', the FCC prevents potentially hazardous cases from going that far up the ladder either by offering settlements (and/or kickbacks) that are too good to pass up, or by simply dropping the case. Those tactics are underhanded attempts to avoid an unfavorable ruling by the Supreme Court. Such a ruling could very possibly collapse the legal foundation of the FCC's operation.

This is a must read - it's short but Very informative! The Muslim religion in the fastest growing religion per capita in the United States, especially in the minority races. Allah or Jesus? by Rick Mathes.

Last month I attended my annual training session that's required for maintaining my state prison security clearance. During the training session there was a presentation by three speakers representing the Roman Catholic, Protestant and Muslim faiths, who explained each of their belief systems.

I was particularly interested in what the Islamic Imam had to say. The Imam gave a great presentation of the basics of Islam, complete with a video. After the presentations, time was provided for questions and answers.

When it was my turn, I directed my question to the Imam and asked: "Please, correct me if I'm wrong, but I understand that most Imams and clerics of Islam have declared a holy jihad [Holy war] against the infidels of the world. And, that by killing an infidel, which is a command to all Muslims, they are assured of a place in heaven.

If that's the case, can you give me the definition of an infidel?" There was no disagreement with my statements and, without hesitation, he replied, "Non-believers!" I responded, "So, let me make sure I have this straight.

All Followers of Allah have been commanded to kill everyone who is not of your faith so they can go to Heaven. Is that correct?" The expression on his face changed from one of authority and command to that of a little boy who had just gotten caught with his hand in the cookie jar. He sheepishly replied, "Yes."

I then stated, "Well, sir, I have a real problem trying to imagine Pope John Paul commanding all Catholics to kill those of your faith or Dr. Stanley ordering Protestants to do the same in order to go to Heaven!" The Imam was speechless.

I continued, "I also have problem with being your friend when you and Your brother clerics are telling your followers to kill me. Let me ask you a question. Would you rather have your Allah who tells you to kill me in order to go to Heaven or my Jesus who tells me to love you because I am going to Heaven and He wants you to be with me?"

You could have heard a pin drop as the Imam hung his head in shame. Needless to say, the organizers and/or promoters of the 'Diversification' training seminar were not happy with Rick's way of dealing with the Islamic Imam and exposing the truth about the Muslim's beliefs.

I think everyone in the US should be required to read this, but with the liberal justice system, liberal media, and the ACLU, there is no way this will be widely publicized.

Please pass this on to all your e-mail contacts. This is a true story and the author, Rick Mathes, is a well known leader in prison ministry.

I'll get Jerry to get after those terrible kids as well.

Well you are asking "Why folks break the Law"

And I suspect you can answer that one.

However, An old Navy Chief explained it this way
"People are different"

No, nothing even close. From the chatter I've picked up, it is something to do with a class action.
Very clever of the "diesel dummies" to use the system against Oxendoof.

This is not a true story, it is an urban legend. See below.

THE REAL DEAL!!!!
Reporter Greg Kearney, writing for the Lee News Service, traced the story to a correctional facility in Fulton, Missouri, and came away with a decidedly different version of events from Missouri state officials.

According to Tim Kniest, Public Information Officer for the Missouri Department of Corrections, the event described was a training program for prison volunteers, for which ministers from several faiths were invited to give presentations in order to acquaint prison volunteers with the varied religious beliefs of the inmate population. The man who gave the presentation about Islam was not a Muslim minister; he was an inmate pressed into service to present a short film on Islam and answer some questions when the prison's Volunteer Coordinator was "unable to find an Imam to speak."

Moreover, reported Mr. Kniest, the prison's Volunteer Coordinator said that "The inmate did a good job," adding, "He was asked a few questions that were beyond his ability to answer. But he was not asked anything like that question [in the editorial]":
Kniest said that no such exchange as the editorial reported ever took place. "He certainly did not 'Hang his head in shame'," said Kniest. In fact, the inmate was thanked by the assembly before being escorted back to his quarters. Furthermore, Kniest says there were absolutely no questions asked dealing with jihad [Holy war] against the infidels of the world as reported in the editorial.

In the editorial the inmate is presented as an Imam, or Islamic minister, which he clearly was not.
Whatever transpired at the prison session referred to above, the notion expressed by this piece is a complete lie. Islam is not a monolithic religion in which unanimity of belief and action is coordinated from a central authority. Islam has an estimated two billion adherents in countries all over the world who belong to any one of a number of different sects with varying beliefs, traditions, and interpretations of scripture. (As well, some religious groups identify themselves as Islamic but are not recognized as such by the vast majority of Muslims.) No one Muslim (especially one who wasn't even a cleric) could speak to what all of Islam believes, any more than a single member of a Methodist congregation could speak for every denomination and follower of Christianity. The vast majority of Muslims completely reject the idea that "all followers of Allah have been commanded to kill everyone who is not of their faith," or even the suggestion that such an interpretation has ever been a valid tenet of Islam. We sent this piece to several Muslim groups and invited them to offer comments; they provided somewhat different explanations about the concept of jihad, how Muslims regard non-Muslims, and other related topics, but they all agreed that the editorial presented a grossly distorted and bigoted version of their beliefs.

Who cares? The idea is the AKC makes dents in keyclownism, and twithead will always run his weenie holders trying to minimize the situation. That is what twithead does. Obedience to his program is etched on a piece of silicon embedded in his maggot infested excuse for a brain, and the "stupid asswipe co-processor" is also installed in order to have him more completely reveal his true self.

Who cares what a weenie washing idiot who only copy/pastes his political arguements from other web posts and sites and can't in any way refute a logical arguement says? Really, who gives a crap? Let him yammer, you cant buy entertainment that good for any price. It comes from his heart.

Good source of aluminum parts to make 6 meter antennas...I always love it when a keyclown puts up something big. You know they are so damned dumb that they dont do it right most of bthe time...when it falls you get a big laugh plus 6 meter parts. HEHEH. Life is good when you aint a kneepad wearing keyqueen.

Yeah that is it...Mike. I have always been terrible with names. Calls I remember... hi.

I actually talked to him once. On 75 meters in an abortive attempt to get on for the first time. He throughly thrashed my attempt. But as they say.....What don't kill ya, makes ya stronger.

Are we talking about the same president who campaigned on the position that education is the cure for unemployment, yet threatened to veto the entire 2005 omnibus spending bill if it included any blockage of his cuts in the Pell Grant program, or any provisions for overtime pay protection for over 6 million American workers?

You guys need to read this before going any further.

http://www.pfaw.org/pfaw/dfiles/file_158.pdf

Offical FCC legal process. The link below should be all on one line to work.

http://frwebgate5.access.gpo.gov/cgi-bin/waisgate.cgi?WAISdocID=600348503783+1+0+0&WAISaction=retrieve

This should settle the argument permently if you understand legal terms.

Is it true that most Imams and clerics of Islam have declared a holy jihad [Holy war] against the infidels of the world? And, that by killing an infidel, which is a command to all Muslims, they are assured of a place in heaven?

Sounds good, but I'd be putting in jeopardy my commercial license as well as my amateur license. I can't do that. I obtained my 1st class radiotelephone license in 1966 (now a GROL), my commercial telegraph license in 1966, and my amateur extra. Although I let the telegraph ticket drop, I cannot jeopardize my other licenses.

You forgot about the "in pain view" argument the courts use when no search warrant is in hand to admit evidence. Besides they don't always have to have audio recordings. Signal strength, direction finding antennas used to find the location of the transmitter, and frequency measurements do real good without violation the so called privacy of the communication.

Except when something get under their skin. It won't be the first time Congress has pasted a law specifically to address an issue with some Federal Agency.

No. It is reviewable by the Court of Appeals.

Read the last few lines of the last paragraph on page 3.

I'll quote it here.

Apart from this and other limited exceptions not relevant here, jurisdiction over final FCC orders is exclusively vested in the Courts of Appeals. Section 402(a) of Title 47, United States Code, provides that "[a]ny proceeding

to enjoin, set aside, annul, or suspend any order of the Commission . . . shall be brought as provided by and in the manner prescribed in chapter 158 of Title 28." 47 U.S.C. &#65533;

402(a). That chapter, in turn, provides that the Courts of Appeals have "the exclusive jurisdiction to enjoin, set aside, suspend (in whole or in part), or to determine the validity of .

. . all final order of the Federal Communications Commission made reviewable by section 402(a) of title 47." 28 U.S.C. &#65533; 2342(1).

This particular motion for the plaintiff failed because it was apparently filed in District Court.

And sometimes not. Read through the FCC enforcement logs and you'll see that several Hams have gone to court to keep the FCC from pulling their Ham ticket. Now just how much economic sense does that make? None. It was done as a mater of principle.

No. Its very well documented. The Supreme Court gets cases filed by the truck load. They pick and choose which ones they wish to hear if they feel it will make a substantial difference in the existing laws. Row vs. Wade, the abortion case, is one case in point. Otherwise they decline to hear the case.

Tell that to the Police and Fire officials during 9/11. You can also ask Keith on this group what he thinks. He is a Ham and has done plenty of

Hello, Dan

Well, I did manage to talk with him, despite being a "wet-bottom boy" (WB2). Had a nice conversation with him and finally he said that the grandkids had arrived and he wanted to go give them a paddling. I've heard (and won't go by this) that he was actually a nice guy but liked to stir the soup, so to speak, on the air.

Heck, I found 40 words per minute or so got his blood pressure to rise through the roof and we couldn't even hear him LOL.

Life is too short; I need to stick around a few years as I haven't pied on enough graves yet ;)

Best regards from Rochester, NY

Hey, I just wanted to open it for discussion. Thanks for replying - I mean it. I'm not casting asparagus on anyone; I just would like to know what people think.

I certainly have opinions about what people do, but I always like to hear what other people think, particularly people who disagree with me. Here is why: if they make a valid point, and I see that I am wrong, then I can change my position before I do something stupid. If they make a point that is patently stupid, then they help reinforce my position. Either way, they help me.

If someone is closed-minded, and never listens to opposing opinions, he is doomed to fail. If someone listens to alternatives, and then makes a decision, it is an informed opinion.

On the other hand, if he is a script kiddie who hangs out on CB newsgroups without a life, ohmygawd, what a WFL.

All the best,
Dave

>Is it true that most Imams and clerics of Islam have declared a holy jihad >[Holy war] against the infidels of the world?

No, that's not true. There are some radical factions who have declared such wars, but the same is true of radicals from just about every religion -including- Christianity. Case in point: Nearby here in Hayden, ID there was a white-supremacist group headed by Richard Butler. They had designs on turning the northwest US into an Aryan nation by force, and doing so under the veil of Christianity. I'm quite certain that Butler did not speak for the vast majority of people of the Christian faith, nor did he practice the doctrine of that particular theology. And I'm also quite certain that a few radical Muslim 'clerics' who promote war and violence do not faithfully represent the Islamic faith.

One of the common tactics of war is to dehumanize the enemy. In WWII the US referred to the Japanese as "the yellow threat" (as stereotyped by Max Rohmer) and believed that they were all murderous animals. The same thing is happening in this war, but this time the perceived enemy is the Arab Muslim. But like WWII, that's only a stereotype. The facts are that the vast majority of Arabs are NOT waging a holy war against America, and that Muslims can be found in all parts of the globe. The -real- enemy is a group of dumb thugs that, like Richard Butler, hide behind a curtain of religion to justify their violence (which, ironically, describes the Bush administration just as well as it describes the Arab terrorist organizations).

I would suggest you stop by your local Mosque to ask these questions. I think you will find that these are people just as normal as you and me..... ok, maybe a bit -more- normal.

Ummm, Lee, that's cool, but that was a song writer, Radio Station, their Lawyers filing a civil case. That's why it's Sarah Jones vs.
The FCC..... Do you have that option to pay their fine , then take them to court?
That wasn't a Ham or a cb'er. Not many people can have a lawyer, let alone multiple lawyers go to court for a Nal.

The point was that they make their own rules. Regardless, evidence is fine as long as it's used IN A COURT OF LAW.

I agree, and that's something Clinton pushed to get passed. But a bigger problem is the lack of representation in the house. Check this out:

True story. And along those lines, the worst offenders I see are the buss drivers who almost -never- get a ticket. Maybe city employees are exempt or something.....

A traffic citation is not a determination of guilt, you can contest court through the judicial system.

No, it failed because Nora Jones had no standing in the case. The NAL was issued to the station, not Jones, and hence her action opposing the NAL was dismissed. Now the -station- could file a civil suit contesting the order of the FCC, and that's perfectly consistent with what I have already explained (you can address the debt, not the violation). But even if this case was a suit filed by the station it would have been dismissed, or at least suspended, because the forfeiture order was not yet final.

Notice that the document also cites 47 USC 504(a), which states that forfeitures can only be recovered [not contested] in a civil suit [as I noted before], and that any such action will be a trial de novo. That last part has me at a loss since there was no "trial" in the first place. But that's what it says. In any case, the procedure is expensive, win or lose.

It's still in the future, of course. But they use it to come back and do things in our time. Like during the JFK assassination. Ever wonder bullet" on the gurney? A time traveller! Jeez, Lee, isn't all this obvious? (yes, I'm joking!)

Perhaps someone can explain this to me.

Why do people who obviously have a interest in radio (other than breaker ten four skipland sort of crap) and who have the ability to operate a mode, other than voice, operate on a illegal segment of the spectrum?

Why not just get a ham ticket? I am serious here, I simply do not comprehend the reason or intent.

Blow it out your crybaby ass, Randy. What a fucking sore loser you turned out to be.

You put Bush in the Governor's seat, long before you put him in the Oval office. Now quit your sniveling, and get back to life. Crying about GWB everyday is not very good for your metal health.

Are you gonna run these fucksticks again in four years?

That's an antenna for the VRC-12 family of radios. Remote-control switched tuning from 30 to 75 MHz. It won't tune down to 27 MHz, but it could be modified to do so with a few component changes.

No thanks, I don't trust anything they may say. Your definition of -normal-is suspect at best. Hell, the local Cleveland Imam has terrorist ties.

The media had not been kind to Fawaz Damra, the imam at the Islamic Center of Cleveland. The Wall Street Journal questioned why he and other Muslim clerics did not denounce terrorism. The NBC Dateline program on October 28 raised the same question, as did a feature article by the Associated Press, showing Damra in front of the Islamic Center.

Then on November 4, The Plain Dealer (Cleveland, Ohio) revealed that the Al Farooq mosque in Brooklyn, New York, had sponsored the Alki Fah Refugee Center. The Center collected money to send to Peshawar, Pakistan, in support of Afghan chieftains, including Osama bin Laden.

Again, the few radicals do not represent the religion. When I was a kid I once went to visit a Catholic church with a friend, but before I did I got warnings from family and friends (mostly Protestants) about how the Catholics would try and manipulate me and drag me into their 'cult'. Needless to say that didn't happen (and no, I wasn't molested either).

As far as your trust goes, I don't trust people I don't know either.
But that doesn't mean I won't listen to what they have to say. If forced to make a choice I would sooner trust a stranger than the media. But to believe that Muslims are bad folk because of a few bad apples doesn't make sense. You could say the same about nearly every other organization in America. Even the USPS has had their share of murderous whackos, but that doesn't prevent you from going into a post office, does it?

Just go there and talk to them. They won't shove an AK-47 in your face when you walk in the door. And I don't think you are afraid of being brainwashed with what you assume will be lies -- I'm sure you are a reasonable person that can draw your own conclusions after having heard both sides of the story. They won't kidnap you and hold you for ransom, they won't try and brainwash you, and they won't kill you if you leave without bowing to Mecca. So it won't hurt you to ask questions. The worst that can happen is that you will get answers which support your current opinion. At best, you may learn about a religion that has more in common with Judeo/Christian ideology than you might think, and you walk away with a better understanding of a different religion and culture.

I say go for it. Do I need to double-dog-dare you? ;-)

You might have trouble if you barge in their with a controntational attitute. Step into a role of someone who is just on a 'fact-finding' mission. You can always express your opinions after you leave, and you have no problem expressing yourself in this newsgroup. Personally, I would like to hear your opinions after such a meeting.

So whaddya say?

The Radio Brotherhood Packet Net is completely legal and has been given special permission to operate on 27545 for the purpose of promoting harmonious relations between the radio services. Check it out. Whats the harm? Go to net freq., 27545 and start copying the packet there. You will see ham radio call signs freely mixing with CB calls. You do know how to work packet now, don't you?

I don't know if fear was a factor for his work. But he did create a stereotype. It was even adopted in other fictional characters such as Dr. No (James Bond), Ming from the Buck Rogers serials, and that bad guy Lo Pan in "Big Trouble in Little China" (made back when Kim Catrall was hot).

Why would you want to talk to a radical? Because you are sure he will say things you expect him to say? I'm sure your area has a sizeable Muslim population -- try the phone book and pick a Mosque that isn't in the news, one that you aren't already biased against. IOW, give it a fair shake. After all, that's the point, right?

If they -do- hate you, why would they lie? If all Muslims support an Islamic jihad against America, why would they hide it when the news is filled with radicals proudly proclaiming the same? That doesn't make sense.

Anyway, I'm off to go job hunting.

True, at one time you and I were really at each others throats. For that reason it's probably a good thing we have so MANY miles between us, or who knows what might have went down. It likely wouldn't have

Speaking of your line of work....Clear Channel just converted the last adult rock station in Houston to Tejano. We still have alternative and classic. I suppose those are next. I know of your dislike of Clear Channel, and I'm feeling very similar now.

Before the election, on the 50KW station here, we had 3 hours of Sean Hannity every day. Now that GW is in, Hannity has been moved to one of the lower powered sister stations. Both are CC stations. Is CC run by the CIA? :-)

LOL!! Again they had it on the news about a zero tolerance for all major Highways to the state borders. Some of the bordering states were even participating.
Now while it was supposed to be a crack down on turckers, a TV station was with a CHP officers interviewing her when her Lidar gun started to read 95 mph, 95 mph! She pulled over the Nissan and gave him a ticket.
Don't think she was sleeping :)

No that antenna will work just fine, all it needs a two element matching circuit.

The shorter antennas have matching circuits. Antennas from 2 feet to 22 feet have been matched no sweat. A 9 foot 1/4 wavelength antenna is used for its close impedance to 50 ohms not because of its length is magic.

We use to buy the old Surplus Army Tank Antennas for the channel X wars in the San Fernando Valley. We won of course. They were about 13 or 17 feet long. We just made a quick matching circuit from the ARRL Handbook.
And it looked great! All tho some of the normal people didn't like its looks, but that made it better.

I think I can handle it. Since I was one of the first stations on packet in this area back in the 80s. Even built up the TNC kit from heathkit. And guess what I used my TRS-80 computer with Autoterm for the program. Now I have a KAM TNC and the TRS still works. But I don't use it with it now of course.

The major problem I have is this. You sir, are full of crap. There is NO special authorization, if you believe that, then you are a fool, a ignorant one at that.

No sir, I spent too much time getting my Extra class, and have been a Amateur Radio Operator since the age of 14. So I have no desire to lose my license to satisfy some idiotic fault in YOUR personality.

You continue to march. But thanks for the tip. I will certainly 'pass it along'.

Now could you answer my question please?

Have a good day.

Dan/W4NTI

"Earlier this year, a senior Defense Ministry official was quoted as telling news agencies that Russia had developed a weapon that could make the United States' proposed missile-defense system useless."

Old news. Read more carefully, this has everything to do with the US abandoning the ABM treaty, and nothing to do with terrorists.

Just wanted to share a recipe that I cannot make enough of. I even have people wanting to pay me to make it for them. I don't care for venison except as sausage and this recipe. Yes, I'm a hunter, but I don't care for the wild taste that some venison has, so I developed this recipe over the last few years. If you have the time and patience, give it a try. It requires a smoker and dehydrator.

1. Take a couple deer hindquarters, and remove the muscles individually, taking care to remove the membranes (opaque white tissue covering the muscles) and all fat. Slice into strips as you like. Does not have to be across the grain, as this process tenderizes a lot. I generally use about 1/2" as a guideline. Save any trimmings and smaller muscles for sausage.

2. Now this is the important part. Make a marinade of:
Liquid Smoke...at least 2 bottles...4oz.
Teriyaki Sauce...an entire large bottle.
Soy Sauce...again, an entire large bottle or 2 small ones.
I also add about a cup of sugar to this, but you can decide for yourself.
Morton's Tender Quick Salt...add this about a rate of 1/4 of what it says on the bag and dissolve in the liquid.
Seasonings: I like mine spicy. If you do too, use Mrs. Dash's extra spicy seasoning, crushed red pepper, and coarse ground black pepper. If you desire milder, use less of these, or not at all. No one seems to think it's too hot here. :-)
Mix well until all is dissolved, and marinate for at least 24 hours in the fridge.

3. Remove and place on smoker (low heat and lots of smoke). I use hickory, but you can use what you wish. Oak works well too. Smoke for a couple hours. Take care that you don't cook it too much. Just until it gets a bit firm when you push on it with your finger, and it is not wet.

4. Remove and dehydrate. Now, this is the tricky part...and it takes patience and trial and error. When it appears done, it may be past done when it cools off. It's better to err on the side of not done and dehydrate more if it needs it. You'll have to try on your machine to see what works for you. It took me a while to get it right. Try a test batch!

Anyway, just passing along a method that I really like, and if it makes someone else happy, I've done my job. It also works for Elk and Moose, as well as exotics.

Enjoy!

Seeing ham radio call signs does not mean:
1) They are legitimate call signs
2) If legitimate call signs, that the particular holder of that callsign is the individual sending out that callsign.

I've heard bootlegged calls - one back in 1964, so it is not something new. That idiot happened to be "borrowing" the call of a good friend of mine who lived about 2 miles away. A signal of around S-2 was not originating 2 miles away. These are folks that want to operate ham radio but don't want to expend any energy at all to get a license.

Best regards from Rochester, NY

Can anybody hear this "net"? QTH here is south Texas, and I am copying some packet on 27545. I am listening ONLY, and am NOT transmitting! There are several stations, using call signs.
Sigs here vary from QSA1 to QSA5 with a load of QSB. If anybody is interested, I will post some of the traffic extracts I am copying?

Actually, the length isn't too far away from 27 MHz if the matching unit is bypassed. It still requires matching but not much. The remote control would be too much of a pain to wire for a CB, so I would just rip out the guts and put in a simple L-pad and SWR coupler.

[UPDATE] HOUSTON, TX: The FCC sent an Official Notice of Violation April 2 to Technician licensee Leonard Martin, KC5WHN, for unlicensed operation February 27, on 27.535 MHz (Industrial Radio Service) and 27.545 MHz (US Government) and March 15 on 27.370 MHz (CB guard channel), and for refusing a request by FCC Field Office personnel to inspect his station. The FCC's Riley Hollingsworth, K4ZDH, reports that he has spoken with Martin on numerous occasions. Field Office personnel in Houston monitored Martin and located him using direction-finding equipment on two occasions. He was interviewed by Commission personnel and local police officers, but the FCC says he refused to allow an inspection. The FCC had warned Martin in writing last November 3 about operation on amateur frequencies (20 meters) other than those authorized under his Amateur Radio license. The FCC has requested that Martin reply in writing within 10 days to the FCC's Houston Field Office explaining specific actions taken to correct each violation and to preclude recurrence.

WALLER, TX: The FCC sent an Official Notice of Violation April 2 to General licensee Greg F. Nolan, W5UDX, for unlicensed operation after FCC Field Office personnel monitored his station February 27, on 27.535 MHz (Industrial Radio Service) and 27.555 MHz (US Government/Forest Products Radio Service). The FCC has requested that Nolan reply in writing within 10 days to the FCC's Houston Field Office explaining specific actions taken to correct each violation and to preclude recurrence.

HOUSTON, TX: The FCC sent an Official Notice of Violation April 2 to Technician licensee Daniel R. Furman, KD5BCI, for unlicensed operation after FCC Field Office personnel monitored his station February 27, on 27.535 MHz (Industrial Radio Service) and 27.545 MHz (US Government). The FCC has requested that Furman reply in writing within 10 days to the FCC's Houston Field Office explaining specific actions taken to correct each violation and to preclude recurrence.

Off the computer. Then I went grocery shopping, came home and watched some pigskin, got bored and now I'm back 'on' the computer.

What is the year of issue of these letters? FCC correspondence always includes a FULL date in the text? Did you edit out the years for some reason? Also, it does not appear these letters were issued for packet operations? It would be helpful if you post the years these letters were issued, because that would indicate if the commission is still interested in enforcement in this frequency range. I don't want to got through the effort of copying these guys if the FCC is no longer interested in enforcement in this freq. range.

Good recipe, pretty much what we use, only we add a 1/2 bottle of Worcestshire sauce, and a habanaro. Also, if you don't have a smoker, it doesn't turn out to bad just using the dehydrator. Just increase the amount of liquid smoke. Do you use the Hickory or Mequite liquid smoke?

Hickory, by choice. The Worcestshire sauce works too. Do you chop/blend the habanero? I try to make it all where it suits all, but I'd also like to try something hotter that suits my tastes better. Hey, it's all about experimenting! :-)

And you're right. The key is the preservative and the time. Seasonings are what you like.

Wish you had not edited the FULL date out of these letters.
A local ham whose been reading this thread just called me on two meters and advised me these letters were from enforcement actions in the 1990s. Is that correct Dave? In fact, he tells me KC5WHN no longer even holds an amateur license. (verifiable in qrz.com) What this confirms is what many of us have heard at trade shows. The commission no longer has the pool of technical experts it once had a decade ago and would be hard pressed to copy and analyze a packet net well enough, if at all, to assemble a case which would stand up to scrutiny for a possible enforcement action. I am still copying packet on 27545 and will post later on some of the stuff I see. Again, calm down you guys, I am NOT transmitting and have no intention to. I realize these guys, if they are in U.S. jurisdiction, are probably operating illegally.

You have to careful with them, but I do like them. Prob is, some who eat

You don't know where I am at. Yes, I let mine expire, but it is valid now.
Had a week before the grace period expired, and renewed. Haven't used it since I renewed, but I have used a CB. Why are you here?

Man what a friggin game! The most points scored since the merger! I couldn't turn my back without more points going up on the board, it made for a fun game to watch until the Browns back-up QB threw a pick that was returned for a TD. Rumor is Butch Davis is history.

FREE!!

For advanced techs and serious radio hobbyists, we're now offering a FREE copy of our previously published "CB EPROM DATA BOOK" by Martin Pickering. (EPROM = Erasable Programmable Read Only Memory.) We sold it for many years but it's now out of print. This little manual of 60 illustrated pages is an absolute GEM of CB technical knowledge you'll just never find anywhere else. And it's yours for FREE from our Web site.

This book reveals the secrets of advanced channel programming, and picks up where our "CB PLL DATA BOOK" (www.cbcintl.com/pllbook.htm) leaves off. You'll get a thorough background in how these amazing programmable chips can be used to modify many popular CB PLL circuits for expanded frequency coverage. Covers the basic programming techniques, and even includes real PC board artwork for making EPROM circuits. Sample artwork includes EPROM boards for the popular MB8719, PLL02A, ï¿½PD2824, and ï¿½PD858 PLL circuits.

Best of all, the price is right--namely, FREE! Download your FREE copy of "THE CB EPROM DATA BOOK" (948 KB Adobe PDF) at:

Interesting copy. Been copying these guys until just after sunset, when they faded out. They mentioned a qsy to a freq in the 6 mHz band for night operation. Now THAT is a real big no no, as that, I believe, is in an aero band. Heard several ham call signs. Not going to repeat them here, as they may very well be bootleg call signs, being used without the knowledge of the legit owner of the call. Wonder why the FCC is not on top of this?
Most likely because they no longer have the technical expertise to process something like this. Just now hearing some stations fade in on 6680 mHz I think, lots of qrn. Some calls heard: us7az us7az1, usa4fla, us3md, and several legit ham calls. These guys are making several references to the FCC in their conversation.
Weird stuff.

The junk above should be all on one line. When I pasted it to the post it got split in to two lines. Try putting everything on one line. It should work. Its a direct copy of what was in IExplorer's address bar.

There is a public review process were people can send their comments to the FCC. If the FCC decides to ignore those comments then about the only recourse is court, or get the US Congress to pass a law, i.e. direct the FCC, to do its bidding. Not a great process, but that's what we're stuck with for now.

So what exactly is a "Court of Law"? Think about it. Then if you manage to get the link above working that should give pause for thought after reading the material.

Partisan politics as usual. Its a wonder that anything useful gets done in Congress. Makes me sick when the Democrats are fighting with the Republicans, thus stalling a bill that really would be a big benefit to the people, all because one party or the other wants to screw the other party over a previous bill, or who got elected to office.

No. I talked to a Ham buddy who just so happens to be a cop. He said most cops don't bother with truckers because they don't know enough about trucking law specifically so they don't like to mess with them. The other thing that I have to give the truckers is it sure doesn't make much sense to have trucks going 55 MPH, posted truck speed limit, when 4 wheelers are doing 70 MPH, posted speed limit, and having the 4 wheelers constantly weaving in and out of the right lane passing the slow moving trucks. I get sick of doing it when I'm on the road and have to drive a few hundred miles to get to a customer's site. It would make more sense for all the traffic to be doing roughly the same speed. I also think the cops don't bust the truckers to much for speeding because if they did then it would be a real pain with the 4 wheelers having to pass them. With the truckers moving at about the same speed as the rest of the traffic, without getting too far above the posted truck speed limit, the need for passing and possible accidents is reduced.

Yeah it is. The cop as an official law enforcement officer in the writing of the ticket has determined that you have violated the motor vehicle law, i.e. guilty. The point of going to court is in the hope that the judge would DISAGREE with the cop and dismiss the ticket. If that wasn't true than anybody could just ignore paying the fine. But we all know if you did that then a bench warrant is issued and you are now guilty of breaking another law.

You also don't need to go to court to pay the fine either. If you take the time to read the back of the ticket where you sign the thing, one of the choices, is a section where you DENY GUILT, and request a court hearing. Now if you weren't already "guilty" then why do you need to deny it? Think about that one.

Read the very top of the motion and you'll see it was filed in the wrong court, District Court. In fact the quote above was written by the court as one of the several points why the motioned was denied. They wanted to make the point it was not filed with the right court. I would think anybody with a legal background reading the motion would have been able to figure that out.

That was only one of several reasons. See my comment above.

You have to read the material at the link I posted you had trouble getting to work. There is a lot of stuff to read there.

Not really. There is a section mentioned in the motion about a section in the CFR's, Code of Federal Registry, that explains in detail the process. As typical of any legal motion only the parts that directly supports the exact situation at hand are ever quoted. Assuming there isn't any more to it is naive.

Read section 13. There you'll see what is meant by a "review by the commission", i.e. in front of an Administrative Law Judge.
http://www.w6trw.com/Articles/Gerritsen.htm

Read the sectioned titled "Burton Trial".
http://www.arnewsline.org/newsline_archives/Cbbs060.txt

You also claimed that nobody watches or over sees the FCC. I told you that the Congress does do it. Read the following. Read the whole thing.
http://www.parentstv.org/PTC/publications/reports/fccwhitepaper/main.asp

Now what is interesting here is at the top. When you request a "hearing" with the commission you have your day in court as I've stated before in front of an Administrative Law Judge.
http://hraunfoss.fcc.gov/edocs_public/attachmatch/FCC-03D-01A1.pdf

So as I've stated previously Fank that the US Congress, or a Congressional committee, does in fact over sees the FCC contrary to your assertions. And also as I've said you get you day in court with a NAL in font of an Administrative Law Judge that you have asserted doesn't happen.

The Ohio Turnpike just raised trucks to 65 mph and lowered their gate fees a tad. Truckers were avoiding the green stamp, so it's all about the money.

I still avoid the green stamp. Less cops on 20, 250, and 224. Nicer

Well you realize that if the CIA didn't publically admit that they perform covert operations, anyone who suggested they did would be labeled as a conspiracy theorist. And don't forget about the secret tests on an unwitting public of various chemical and biological agents even -after- such tests were admitted and claimed to have ceased.
That's just one in a list of conspiracies that -did- exist. So it's not a good idea to dismiss these ideas just because they have little or no hard supporting evidence. Maybe the pilots of those black helicoptors moonlight as school bus drivers. Or maybe the FCC is covertly used as a 'prototype' agency to develop and refine techniques to be used by other agencies to skirt the constitution. Even better, perhaps the seeds of false conpiracies are intentionally leaked by the government in order to distract public attention away from the -realconspiracies.

But putting all conjecture aside, have -you- ever seen a bus driver get a speeding ticket?

I agree that a slow vehicle can be a hazard. But some states have a law that requires driving in the right-most lane except to pass. Of course very few people follow that law -or- the speed limits. But while adherence to the law is the responsibility of the individual, enforcement of the law is the responsibility of the cops. If the cops don't take their responsibilites seriously then neither will the civilians.

I don't know how they do things on the other side of the country, but a ticket here in Washington is a statement that the officer has "probable cause" to believe you committed the stated infraction or violation, a statement to which you must respond before determination of guilt is made. If you fail to respond within a specified time after having been given notice then a judgment of guilty can be entered. But you are -never- denied the right to contest the ticket -before- any determination of guilt.

>You also don't need to go to court to pay the fine either. If you take the

Again, in Washington your choices are 1) admit the infraction and pay the fine; 2) admit the infraction and mitigate the fine; and 3) contest the infraction. And don't forget that 'infraction' does not mean 'conviction'. Also, it clearly states that if you don't respond in the specified time that the court will find you guilty of the infraction. Now how can you be found guilty -twice- for the same violation? Think about -that- one.

Read the thing again: "In cases in which the plaintiff is not the subject of the forfeiture order, the circuit court has jurisdiction.
See, e.g., Ill. Citizens, 515 F.2d at 403." So if Jones wanted to intervene in the forfeiture process she needed to go to the circuit court. And until the forfeiture order was final, she had no standing to file civil suit in district court under the ACT decision (which is what she did). IOW, her lawyer was a moron.

The document states that this hearing is to determine his eligibility to obtain a license, -not- a hearing to contest a violation. Also, the phrase "review by the commission" is not in that document.

>Read the sectioned titled "Burton Trial".

He wasn't contesting an NAL -- he was charged with six felonies! Of course they are going to put him in front of a judge.

Do you have a case where someone was issued an NAL and contested it in a court of law?

>You also claimed that nobody watches or over sees the FCC. I told you that

>http://www.parentstv.org/PTC/publications/reports/fccwhitepaper/main.asp

Very good page. Again it tends to support my argument -- it lays out a lot of complaints against the FCC, and points out that the very few actions taken by Congress were overruled by the courts.

>Now what is interesting here is at the top. When you request a "hearing" >with the commission you have your day in court as I've stated before in >front of an Administrative Law Judge.
>http://hraunfoss.fcc.gov/edocs_public/attachmatch/FCC-03D-01A1.pdf

That hearing was to contest a termination order, not a violation or forfeiture order.

>So as I've stated previously Fank that the US Congress, or a Congressional >committee, does in fact over sees the FCC contrary to your assertions. And >also as I've said you get you day in court with a NAL in font of an >Administrative Law Judge that you have asserted doesn't happen.

So far your references haven't proven squat. I said that an NAL (which includes the resulting forfeiture order) cannot be contested in a court of law, administrative hearings included. You disagreed while providing links that do nothing to support your position. I said that the FCC operates mostly unchecked and you provide a link that supports -my- position.

I'll make this real easy: Don't bother to find links to pages that sound like they -might- support your position because so far none of them have. Instead, focus on -just one- example of where someone contested, sucessfully or not, an NAL in a court of law. And I don't mean contesting the fine but the -violation-. Show that he was able to present evidence and call witnesses in front of a judge or jury, that he was given the chance to prove that he did not commit the violation, and that the ruling could have reversed (or did reverse) the final forfeiture order by the FCC. If you can do that I'll concede this entire thread.

Still Dead link.

As Frank has stated, when are you going to show a court case where someone was issued a NAL and went to court to contest it, not before the FCC.

That's not how it works with franchises.
Franchises are required to carry certain items.

Come again? When one opens a McDonalds franchise, yes, they are required

Besides,,,it has nothing to do with the requirements. More realistically, they sold out. Check them again next month after their

The fines are paid and its business as usual. These companies usually don't fight these fines. In fact, there is no large corporation has lodged such a court room battle (which you speak of concerning radio gear, amps, etc) for the exact reason you mention...it is much easier tand cheaper to pay the fine and continue,,,,,business-as-usual.

Umm, that's the first time I heard that. In fact, that was not even the reason given by most media outlets for not showing that movie. The stations aren't worried about the fines, they are worried about losing their licenses. An article appeared in last Wednesday's Times affirming this. Concerning the showing of PR, it was right before the election and the decision to show a realistic movie portraying the realistic manner in which war is conducted right before the election was a no-brainer. I visited a website that illustrated,,,no,,PROVED that all the affiliates that refused to show the movie were born of political agendas..IE: republican controlled media outlet (such as R Murdoch). You may research this yourself, but I am telling you that ALL the affiliates that refused to conform (illustrating yet ANOTHER non-conservative trait) to the regular scheduled broadcasting were of political agenda.

You are cornfusing rules for laws, again.
The FCC saying they need congress for such matters is bullshit. They can indeed enact rules to their liking,,,,they already ahve the authority to do such by Congress,,,such is part of the reason for existence of the FCC. They most certainly can clarify their own rule without an act of congress.
Look, the bottom line is they don't want to clarify this rule, as it would bring only another issue to the FCC which would require involvment and spent time and money.

What makes you mistakenly associate the ARRL with pissed off hammies? The hammie I speak of is so engrossed in being reactive, he has no use for proactive action. It has been explained it to him on many occasion, yet he is unable to comprehend. It must be frustrating possessing such an ability in tandem with a refusal to learn.

One man's junk is another man's treasure. In fact, I propose a more harmonious answer than fighting the FCC. Several here on the suncoast think we have figured out a manner in which to, at the least, counter the effects of BPL to the point its effect remains absolute minimal. You already know the answer to the BPL issue. How long it taes yourself to accept and agree with it or not is up to you and another matter completely.

>The CBers really need some kind of national

No,,we don't. Our interests are so far removed from BPL that it really doesn't affect us the manner in whcih you seem to think it may. Of course, living in a very congested area can present problems, but then again, it always has. Such is a reason for advancing your ticket. The more skill one has, the more one can overcome the adversity and obstacles presented. Of course, the ticket isn't the only manner in whcih to attain this skill, but since you're heavily concerned with matter, it would be a good place for you to begin.

I ordered on line; total bill came to $39.55 on the web invoice.

Five minutes later, cancelled an item by fax ordered in error. Called to confirm. Was told it would be adjusted.

H&Y charged my credit card $41.55 -- $2 more than their web invoice.

Charge remained on my credit card -- without adjustment -- and no goods were shipped.

After 3 weeks of no goods and no credit, I called H&Y, which said a credit would issue immediately. A credit $16 too small appeared.
Goods arived.

I called and spoke to "Joe" their fininacial person, who demanded doumentation from me (even though they obviously have all the information) and then hung up on me.

Called my credit card company and got the credit through it.

Bottom line: This company is not worth the trouble it takes to keep them from ripping you off.

The bar was raised.

You have a better chance of the huge companies stay in business year after year when only the littles ones are closed and put out of business.

>The FCC's aim is not to put anybody out of Their aim is besides the point,,,heck, you should know that as long as you have been around radio. Everyone knows they aren't truly concerned with enforcement at this level,,,yet, that is supposed to be their "aim". It's a wink-wink type thing and action is taken ONLY when repeated complaints are lodged against individuals. IF their aim was true enforcement, do you not believe for one second the FCC might have some enforcement initiated on their own against such ops? After all,,,one doesn't need look far. Large fines cripple small businesses, the larger ones pay it and do business as usual. If you check the thread properly you will find it wasn't I who initially mentioned the FCC closing these businesses and putting them out of business or that it was ever any "aim" of the FCC,,,I merely responded to the claim.

Cite a single case involving the FCC tossing a white collar exec in jail

Yes, that was understood and my reply stands. They will not remove the product line. They will pay the fine and continue.

Your position is based upon suppositions, the "if" factor, and the assumption the FCC is changing the manner in whcih they operate, as opposed to reality,,..business-as-usual within the FCC and minimal enforcement.

They have ALWAYS taken after unauthorized transmissions on the hammie bands whenever they receive complaints. Only the unitiated to hammie radio are unfamiliar with the inner going-ons at the FCC regarding radio enforcement.

Hypothetically speaking, to answer your hypothetical juxtaposition regarding the chair vs. the commission....such a person wouldn't be able to rise to such prominence. If they had an ax to grind, they are clearly are not in charge of their emotions. Such a person with a communication deficit as you allude would never be in charge of the agency responsible for governing such communcations.

In fact, Riley has written the FCC considers many of these complainants a pain-in-the-ass..he didn't come out and say those exact words,

>Well what exactly did he say?

You paraphrased him regarding hammies with an "ax to grind". He claimed "these type are often worse than the offenders." Hell, ask Jerry what he said,,,,,,,he knows it well because he and I discussed this exact ordeal when Hollingsworth said it. He wasn't too happy with it then, either. Google it,,,it's there.
JO took the same reaction to Riley's words that you are now, only he had no choice but to not challenge it because he read the words for himself.

Others have read what he said AND heard it. He posted it on the rainreport when he was addressing this subject a few years ago when he was still doing the rainreport. In fact, a quick archive google search will reveal this exact conversation and thread in this group regarding his words back when he said them.

but DID say these type hammies (Oxendine) are often worse than the offenders themselves. An incredible statement from the head enforcement officer at the FCC.

>And just what "type" is that?

Someone whose world is constructed upon failed agitation attempts and using hammie radio as their personal tool of harassment.
Proof positive: Please point to the post in any of the hammie groups where k4kwh posts hammie enforcements.
In fact, when the hammie busts are compared to the cb busts, it is no small wonder the Oxendines of the world outnumber the cbers getting busted for stupid behavior on a regular basis. Truth is in the numbers.

>I'm not an apologist for Jerry but I see his

> I have yet to see any government

Really? Here are but a few examples...the IRS (self-explanatory), NASA (NASA's failure rate is at all time-high regaridng the space program), Bureau of Land Management (millions of acres not accounted for (for which money was allocated AND taken), millions more damaged because of bureaucratic ineptitude despite mulitudes of scholars, scientists, commissioned study groups, etc. complaining AND testifying before congress to the incompetency of the government. The FDA (A pill manufactured by Eli Lilly is sent to all parts of the world for labeling. Many originate here in the US before being shipped off. The same pill that is manufactured here, can end up in Canada, cheaper than it is here in the US. The FDA does not permit the RE-importation of this US-manufactured pill from Canada, and invoke a multitude of fraudulent reasons of why one can not do this) has been under not only consumer attack and complaints for years, but has absolutely zero supporters on this specific matter, EXCEPT for the US government via the unAmerican Bushwhacker. The INS, the CIA, and the FBI...again,,all self-explanatory. See 911 related issues. But let's focus on the incompetence of the FCC and those who have this ax to grind you speak of, such as you astutely mentioned in replying to my comments concerning Oxendine.

Your podunk leo friend is a tragedy...he must be a local cop of a small town. ALL HP officers are well versed in such law regarding carriers and laws pertaining to the road. The DOT is for getting particular. The HPs, whether county or state, ALL "mess" with the truckers and actively enforce speeding truckers in addition to cars.

I agree mostly here. But with a tounge-in-cheek comment.

Can a big-truck stop faster than a four wheeler when they are:

a. Higher off the ground and can see farther ahead
b. Logged more miles than 99% of all 4 wheelers (experience)
c. Less likely to be applying make-up, chatting on the phone, while beating the kid in the back seat, and reading the paper.

All while the person in the SUV is trying their damndest to jerk this top heavy vehicle around a big-truck going 20MPH slower while getting it on damn near two wheels.

I'm no Billy Big-Rigger, But I've been on the road long enough to see first hand, understand, and respect the needs of truckers.

"100% of everything we touch has come to us at some time on a freight hauler." I've never seen this printed on the back of a trailer, someone should!

BPL is doomed around big power. If it fucks with my ears, I'll flat side it with everything I got. Hell I'll load my horizontal long wire, ever so slightly mis-tuned if need be. I'm sure I won't be alone in welcoming those fucksticks to the neighborhood.

No, stupid. Nobody is mad and nobody hates. It is fun to get you keyqueens jumping up and down. This is not about hate, it is about amusement, which is what keyclowns exist for. You morons are here for us to have fun with. Controlled little toys who bark on command. You can't buy a dvd with as much opportunity for laughs as there are in this NG.

Keyclowns are owned property of the AKC, and even have as part of their programming, a command not to realize it.

Maybe so-called "keyclowns" can't have export radios and such devices
BUT freebanders and outbanders like me can have whatever kind of radio
we want to AND THAT'S THE BOTTOM LINE CAUSE THE LEGENDARY OUTLAW SAYS
SO, SO CHOKE ON THAT AKC
73 akc from the OUTLAW

What's the matter? Did mopey dopey move south and cut in on your truckstop action? Run out of money for that breast augmentation?
Proctologist want cash up front before he will fix the fissures? Is twithed coming north, and you need cash to reserve a heart shaped bed with mirrors on the ceiling over at South of the Border?

Hey akc maybe "keyclowns" can't have export radios and such good stuff, BUT freebanders and outbanders like ME can have whatever equipment we want to use AND THAT'S THE BOTTOM LINE CAUSE THE LEGENDARY OUTLAW SAYS SO, SO GO CHOKE ON THAT SLAPNUTS AKC FROM THE OUTLAW

Hallo anybody!

I am a journalist and I am writting an article about a new, interesting, rapidly growing webservices. Now I am collecting the information about InfoRelation.com .
I have found that InfoRelation was mentionned in this forum. So I would like to ask you to send me your opinion about the InfoRelation.com service and its offer: the process of connecting demand and suply for knowledge, skills etc.

I will be grateful for any opinion (also about the problems with InfoRelation, InfoRelation's competitors etc.)!

Best regards,
Tim Kelly
PS. If there is anybody who earned any money on InfoRelation - please describe me the field of interest in case of which the earning has been arrived at.

oh really? and where is this mythical STA that the FCC issued. I have found NOTHING in any of their databases to even point to the use of that frequency by anyone other than "government numbers stations".

At best, your assertion is an extreme misrepresentation of the facts. at worst, its an outright lie. Either way, the STA you speak of does not "officially" exist.

BTW, do you realize that by posting here the above mentioned data, you have admitted to violating federal regulations (and a few laws as well). Since it is now a matter of public record, how do you choose to defend yourself?

I have dealt with R&R in person several times, as they are 30 miles from me. They have been in business for at least 25 years that i know of. They have a selection of radio's that would make you drool. I find them very honest and trustworthy. Good CB shops are hard to find. I find it difficult to believe they would rip someone off. I recommend them to all my friends. Just my two cents.

Why are you invoking the FCC, Eric? I didn't see this dood mention the FCC. The freeband has more contacts than the precious dx given up by the hammie freqs. Two nights ago Moscow was coming in on 20 meters and was an easy contact..and guess what? It was made barefoot on an Antron.

That's because they don't govern the frequencies around the world. The freqs do not stop at the border, like the FCC's jurisdiction.

Probably not, but who is to say what is official and not worldwide. The FCC? C'mon Eric,,you know better than that. Tell that to any Alfa Tango member

From who? The Thought or Wish Police? Some of the no-codes that finally realized they got a raw deal because they screwed themselves because they can't upgrade, yet they can't go back to freebanding and dxing? I dx all the time,,,have been since the seventies....I also play on the freeband, too,,,,27.555 is a great dx contact frequency and bothers no one. There are ways to enjoy the best of both worlds.

you missed it (then edited it out).
it was right there in black and white (or whatever colors get used in here).
Since a vast majority of these stations are US originated, they REQUIRE an FCC license (unless they are operating under part 15, which clearly, given their power levels, they are not)

Also, if they are transmitting there (and I have clearly heard them on there), they are using equipment not Type Accepted (under the same regulations mind you). In essence, they are in violation of FCC rules (and thereto, some federal laws).

but they do in the US, which is where most of these operators originate.

worldwide is not relevant. as I stated before, most of these "illegal stations" originate on US soil, thus they are governed by the laws and regulations there-in. since they refuse to abide said laws/regulations, they are subject to the terms of punishment therein.

> You are assuming amny thing, the least of all, he is stateside.

no. not an assumption at all. a statement of fact that can be used here in the US court system against those in the US that choose to operate illegally (which is the vast majority of those stations).

irrelevant.... you operate there, on US soil, you violate the regulations the FCC (and the government) have in play, you are subject to those regulations.

since you insist on playing this game, you play it. just don't be disappointed when the banker comes to call to collect that lovely little fine.

Dan,

This loser says "Oh yeah, big guy? Bring it on!" And you say "OK, pick a freq". Then he says "Well, um... (sound of pants being peed into, and subject being changed)..."

Why do you bother? I didn't see the whole exchange, because I plonked the douchebag that you were quoting, but it's like watching someone kick a retard. He's probably a 15-year-old kid who uses his mother's AOL account, and doesn't know enough code to pass the no-code exam. This a ham group and he is as much as a ham as Hillary is a New Yorker. But Hillary is more of a man than he is.

Why would I give you my name and address, your to much of chickenshit to post yours.
Steve, if he e-mails his real name and address to you FWD it to me, bet he won't.

I've been searching for one of these for months now!

http://page.auctions.shopping.yahoo.com/auction/88302166?aucview=0x23

I used to have one with all the channels. I sold it and regretted it since. Was the best mobile I've run. On the base I run a 1011D into a heath SB220. The antenna is a cushcraft TEN-3. It's flat side up about 55 feet and the swr's are flat @ 27.500.

Any of you guys in California monitor 525 LSB? The Dx has been rolling in up here in the evenings.

Thought maybe a positive post would get some replies about radio instead all of the hate and discontent.

Also if anybody wants to sell a 148 at a good price let me know. Would like the extra channels and tuned to drive my Dave Made in the 'ole pick'em up.

Hey "Whoever" don't worry about it. You didn't do anything wrong. Sounds like "MS FLINT" is just having a wrong time of the month moment. Your comments were sound and well thought out. Most women in ham radio are fat greasy pigs anyway. Just look around at the local events and check out the "ham guwrls"

To answer your question the nocode wonders want a license but not the knowledge. They get a vanity call to feel more like a real ham. Then they go back to the cb band to tell the other idiots how smart they are. The codeless wonders will ruin this hobby and there is nothing we true hams can do about it.

Look at twithed! Posting something copy/pasted from somewhere else again. I guess you can't do better. Maybe you ought to play detective, twithed. Take the "libel" to R & R and ask for a cut in the lawsuit.

I SAW THIS WHINNING POST ON ONE OF THE HAMMIE BOARDS.

THEY'RE FINALLY FINDING OUT WHAT EVERYBODY KNEW. HAMS ARE USELESS!!AND NOBODY THINKS THEY'RE IMPORTANT OTHER THAN THE OTHER DEAD LOADS ON THEY'RE LOCAL REPEATERS!!

"Yes, yes, I know. You've heard this before. It's been pronounced when FM was introduced, screamed from the mountaintops when no-code came to be, and continues even today with BPL. However, I have seen some disturbing trends lately, and I think that they point towards the slow and painful death of the hobby we hold dear. Please, indulge me for a moment as I explain.

Whenever there is any threat to Amateur Radio, be it potential band reallocation, Part 15 intrusion, or any other issue that threatens to upset the status quo, we hams immediately raise the one sacred, (usually) FCC-scaring, blood boiling rallying cry that we have - WE PROVIDE EMERGENCY COMMUNICATIONS. We never justify ourselves anymore as advancers of the radio art (we'd be hard pressed to do so these days), so the only value we can provide to justify our continued occupancy of billions of dollars of spectrum is merely emergency communications. I believe that very soon, certainly in my lifetime, we will be all but out of that game. Allow me to explain.

I have been a resident of Tampa, FL for the past few years. 2004 will certainly be remembered around here for a long time - and should have been a shining example of emergency communications saving the day time and time again. You didn't hear that this time. Wonder why? I spent time in some of the hardest hit areas here in Florida, and what I saw from an emergency communications perspective scared me silly. Before we tackle that, however, let's go back in time a little:

1991: A newly licensed ham living in Long Island, NY; I am called up to help provide communications in support of Hurricane Bob, which would up dealing a glancing blow to the eastern end of the Island. We were activated by the local emergency management office, and assigned to various government and first responding agencies to allow for intercommunication if needed. Fortunately, we were not tasked in my immediate area.

1996: TWA Flight 800 crashes off the coast of Long Island. Hams assist the Red Cross in providing communications for mass care operations (primarily). This, I will later realize, is the first operation I have been involved with in which hams were merely augmenting a cellular system that was overloaded for an agency that has radio communication equipment of its own but rarely uses due to training and equipment issues.

2001: 9/11. I am forced by my employer to sit this one out in Florida (where I have arrived earlier in the year), but manage to scrape together a web-based database to manage the load of volunteers. I quickly realize that this, again, is a Red Cross/Salvation Army support operation. I never heard of any assistance to FDNY, NYPD, Port Authority Police, the EMO, or anything else.

2004: Four hurricanes in almost as many weeks. Hardly anywhere in Florida has not been affected by these storms. People are without food, shelter, electricity, water, telephones, cell phones (in many cases). Essentially, much of Florida has dialed the clock back 100 years or so. Tensions are high. The EMOs consider how to prevent civil disturbances and looting of incoming food and supplies. Fire Departments are going door to door looking for survivors. Driving through the main street of a town at night is hazardous at more than 5mph due to the amount of overhead and downed debris and electrical wiring (which probably is dead, but who knows?).

So, you might ask, how did Amateur Radio respond?

I'm not sure we did.

I responded to 3 seriously hit areas: Wauchula (in Central Florida), Punta Gorda (in South Florida) and Pensacola (in the Florida Panhandle).

In Wauchula, we delivered a portable repeater system so that the responding agencies could communicate. That sounds like a fine use of ham radio - except it was a Forestry repeater, on their frequencies. Sure, we hams brought it and deployed it, but anyone familiar with the setup could have. The Sheriff's Department lost a huge tower (and thus their repeater) in the storm, leaving them with no communications save simplex, which didn't even come close to covering their operating area. Therefore, deputies in the furthest reaching areas had no communications. We were able to move their repeater to another location that had a working antenna and saved the day. But once again, we did not operate OUR radios, save for local simplex communications to get this all accomplished.

As the EMO had no tasking for us (by now the cellular providers had their mobile cell sites around), we left.

Punta Gorda. Ground Zero for Hurricane Charley. I arrive there a week after Charley hits to help relieve the operators from the local area. I get there to find no tasking other than Red Cross communications, and a Section Manager so starved for something to do - ANYTHING to do - that he cooks up a plan to have hams drive around the community soliciting health and welfare traffic. Remember, folks, this is a full WEEK after the Hurricane. If you haven't gotten a message out to your loved ones in a week, you probably don't want to. Again, there's little to do - the Red Cross is using Nextels - which are working.

Pensacola. In the wake of Hurricane Ivan, the call goes out - hams are needed - BADLY. I kiss the YL goodbye, load my Jeep, and start out on the 8 hour drive. Upon arrival, I am sent to the local Red Cross (here we go again) headquarters to relieve operators. There, I meet two hams who inform me that they have passed 3 messages in the past 24 hours. Three. One ham has extensive damage to his home and, quite frankly, this is a better place for him to sleep at the moment. The other ham wonders what we are doing there. He departs the next morning.

In the morning, I am informed that Red Cross operations are moving from the Chapter Headquarters to a larger facility in the donated basement of a commercial company. I am asked to establish communications from there to the EOC. Getting there, I am staggered to find that I am expected to provide communications to a building that has working telephones, internet access, email, a slew of Nextels that are being handed out, and, to add insult to injury, 2 Red Cross comm vans with every type of radio known to man (including ham), satellite links into the National Red Cross Network, and WiFi.

I tell the hams running the show at the EOC what the story is - I'm providing communications for a building that has more communications than I think I have ever seen in one location before. They respond by sending a total of 4 more hams to assist. I speak to the local EC and tell him that if he doesn't want a boatload of really perturbed hams, he'd better find some taskings for us to justify putting out the ARES equivalent of an All Points Bulleting screaming for ham help. He promises that we will have something to do in the morning.

I spend a part of the night helping the Red Cross folks set up WiFi so that they don't have to run cabling to each workstation for network access. I begin to wonder if I could have left my license at home.

The next morning, we do indeed have a tasking. The Red Cross is making a push into the hardest hit local area on the beach near the Gulf of Mexico - as close to the landfall point as we're gonna get. (It literally is described almost like an offensive against rebels in Iraq). Given the amount of sand that was blown over roadways, I am chosen along with another of my overnight compatriots for the task since we both have 4-wheel drive. We depart, with instructions to meet and team up with two other hams at the parking lot of a local supermarket just outside the devastated area. There, we are to await the Red Cross team that will push Mass Care into this area.

Upon our arrival, we meet the two hams immediately, and they are NOT happy. They've been waiting there for this Red Cross team for HOURS, and each time they ask where the Red Cross is, they are told "any time now". Seeing us, they quickly decide that we are their relief. They've had it, and head home. Net Control doesn't sound too surprised to hear that they have abandoned ship.

My new partner and I wait for three hours. Yes, that's right, THREE HOURS. No sign of the Red Cross. During our wait, we take some time to take a look at the shopping center in this hard-hit, hurricane ravaged area. The supermarket is open. OPEN? We look inside. They have milk. MILK? I can't buy milk in TAMPA, and we never came close to being hit by Ivan! Further inspection here reveals that they have ice, bread, bottled water, and everything that people in a hurricane-ravaged area should be waiting in long lines and mugging their fellow citizens for. All the while, my cell phone has a great signal, and I am able to make and get calls at will. Now, really starting to question our mission here, we begin asking Net Control the tough questions: WHERE IS THIS TEAM, AND WHAT IS OUR MISSION? A great deal of scurrying is heard over in the EOC, and eventually we are told that they don't know where the Red Cross team is, but we should await them.

Sorry. We've been here for three and a half hours, and the team before us was waiting almost as long. I snap. I drive back, collect my belonging, and without so much as a word, I begin the drive home, arriving at 4am, the stomach acid churning in my stomach having proved quite adequate to keep me awake for the drive. The other ham (and a few others) leave the area as well, ranging from disillusioned to plain old mad.

Sitting back afterwards, I began to realize a few trends that had been slowly emerging:

1. Ham Radio (well, ARES anyway) has largely become the free communications auxiliary to the Red Cross.

Worse, they already have enough communications capability to more than cover themselves. Their problem? A lack of trained communicators. Suddenly, I grasp why we always seem to be assigned to the Red Cross. I try to remember the last time I was assigned to anyone other than the Red Cross during an emergency. I have to go back almost ten years.

2. The Red Cross doesn't need us.

Even while assigned to the Red Cross, the only task consistently put to hams is to relay shelter census counts. I almost couldn't believe my ears as I heard hams relaying shelter census counts to an EOC when both had fully working landline phones. Why are we used in this scenario? Because they don't have to use Red Cross personnel to do it. For their critical comms, they use Nextel. I can't remember the last time I saw the Red Cross even use their OWN radios, which they have in abundance.

3. Cell phones, mutual aid repeaters, Blackberries are replacing Ham Radio as the inter-agency communications glue.

None of the Emergency Management Offices I worked with had any need for communications outside of these. Cell phone providers rush in mobile cell sites (called "COWs" - Cellular On Wheels - a cell site on a trailer) when an emergency hits - and registered Emergency Management personnel get higher priority on the cell network - so overloaded cell sites are becoming a thing of the past for our served agencies. Blackberries run on the cellular networks and are low bandwidth devices. Even in areas with no electricity, the Blackberry owners were tapping away like mad.

Now, you may say that this isn't the case in your area. You might even be right. However, I think we have seen the end of the era in which Amateur Radio saves the day as a matter of course in this country. In fact, the only example I've seen lately of Ham Radio coming through where all else fails is in the Hurricane Nets to the islands like Cuba, Grenada, and Haiti. In other words, those outside the US.

I see this as in inevitable slide down a slope towards more and more communications capability in the hands of the masses. Look at the revolution in smart cellphones - I carry a Treo 600 - a device from which I can surf the web, get and send email, and make and get phone calls - all in one little device. It wasn't all that long ago (fifteen years, perhaps?) that a cell phone was considered small if it fit in a briefcase. Where will we be in fifteen more years? Will we be able to still claim that we provide a critical, unique, robust communications capability? I think that once so many forms of communications saturate the general public that they can't all possibly go down during a disaster that we will have lost that argument. Remember when CW was the mode that got you through when all else failed? Now, make that argument to anyone but a CW buff and you'll be laughed at. I remember being able to show my HT to a teenager and see the look of amazement when I made a contact over a repeater to the next County. Now, that same teenager will ask if that big cell phone I'm carrying can play cool ringtones. I rapidly see the day approaching in which we will be relegated to the museums like the dinosaurs that we will have become - a quaint memory of what once was. A nostalgic trip down communications lane. We will, as a hobby, become the macrocosm of CW - outdated, outmoded, and universally laughed at as we try to claim that we are needed somehow.

And then the spectrum vultures will come. "

Why are you invoking the FCC, Eric? I didn't see this dood mention the

What was? The referral to the FCC? I didn't edit anything and if I did

I must have missed it, because I darn sure saw nothing alluding to the

Only a fraction of those on the freeeband are stateside.

Again, you are basing this isolated rule pertaining to US operators

They aren't.

That's because they don't govern the frequencies around the world. The freqs do not stop at the border, like the FCC's jurisdiction.

Nah,,the majority are not in the US.

Probably not, but who is to say what is official and not worldwide. The FCC? C'mon Eric,,you know better than that. Tell that to any Alfa Tango member

But it IS relevant. You are, for whatever reason, assuming that only Sure it is. On what do you base your mistaken opinion that the majority of these ops are stateside? Personal listening a time or two on 555?

Again, I'm telling you, you're wrong, but you are hellbent on believing otherwise, so we shall part ways on this matter. You are free to believe whatever you will, based solely on your isolated excursions to 555.

From who? The Thought or Wish Police? Some of the no-codes that finally realized they got a raw deal because they screwed themselves because they can't upgrade, yet they can't go back to freebanding and dxing? I dx all the time,,,have been since the seventies....I also play on the freeband, too,,,,27.555 is a great dx contact frequency and bothers no one. There are ways to enjoy the best of both worlds.

Slim Jim, you sound like you have a chip on your shoulder

1.Ham radio just is a hobby.
2.Like the majority of radio hams I'm not interested in RAYNET or and other organisation like it, to me its just a hobby.
3.I don't think I'm more important than anyone. I was into radio for 15 years before I took the test.
4.Repeater activity is not all amateur radio. Most hams I know wont use them.

If you don't like radio hams then why do you lurk in the amateur radio news groups? Maybe you were one of the one's who failed the test or were just too thick to learn it.

BTW I find better technical discussion in UK.rec.radio.cb than I do in most amateur radio ng's. I think CB is a good idea, it just fell apart in the UK.

3906. electric noises in my AM and CB radios

Newsgroup: rec.radio.cb
Date: 2004-12-01 14:40:41 UTC
From: Bobpall@aol.com
Message-ID: <9318dd97.0412010640.4de08502@posting.google.com>

I have a 3 month old 2004 Ford-25 p/u and if I turn my radio to AM or my CB on,
I can hear the ignition noise in my engine and turn signals cause a clicking, and when I put on brakes or turn on headlights is causes a clicking noise. Teh ignition noise just about drwons out reception completely. Ford says it is in all of their trucks and put a new radio in for me but it is the same. Local service dept says they have no way of knowing how to remedy the problem, and will have to wait till enough people complain and a fix is found. Can anyone tell me what the problem is? I have heard it may be either the fuel pump or the alternator, but ford service says they don't know how to fix. Dearborn will not answer my queries now. I am about to file a Lemon law complaint with the attorney general of FL which will require them to fix or replace the truck.
I love the truck as I have all my ford trucks but this is flabergasting me. bob

Oh yeah? wait till you hear the ABS kick in :) I have read long ago and cannot remember where of the problem being solved with noise filters especially on the fuel pump. It seemed a drastic measure but solved the poster's problem. I would first look into grounding for everything, especially antennas. A good solid grounding scheme often cures or dramatically reduces noise in automotive electronics. I also seriously doubt that Ford would have installation practices that would cause their installed factory radio to have noise, most factory systems are quiet. In other words if it did it from the get go then I suspect something wrong, like a bad harness ground. If this is the case then your effort will be futile to reduce the noise in ANY am device.

Please repost your findings, I'll keep thinking. I LOVE automotive electronics, maybe we can solve your problem!

You will get similar symptoms if you lose one of the windings on the alternator, or if you have a bad or failing diode in the regulator.
Most likely the latter. The engine will appear to run normally, but the problem will eventually burn out the rest of your alternator and possibly some of the electronics in the truck's electrical system. The best way to test this is to hook the alternator to a scope and look for a steady stream of spikes.

Chad;
Bad grounds can sometimes cause more than just noise on a radio.
My dad had an old Ford, that we found out, if you turned the turn signal on and then stepped on the break the radio would come on, without the key. We spent many hours as kids sitting in his car, foot on the break listening to the radio.

I think you hit the nail on the head here, the little twit is probably too dumb to pass the test for a ham license so the best he can do is attempt to discredit something he isn't smart enough to be a part of.

Notice how he uses "they're" instead of "their".

You know, the same thing can be said about some freebanders. My question to you is this, what are you going to do when the HF band is obliterated with BPL signals? Every frequency you enjoy freebanding on will have 30-60dB over S-9 of noise. I used to be like you, but freebanding got old and I wanted to move on. And in case anyone missed it, here is a list of the BPL frequencys the power company wants to use.

BPL BANDS:

1.705-2.850 MHz
3.025-3.400 MHz
3.500-4.650 MHz
4.700-5.450 MHz
5.680-6.525 MHz
6.685-8.815 MHz
8.965-10.005 MHz
10.100-11.275 MHz
11.400-13.260 MHz
13.360-17.900 MHz
17.920-21.924 MHz

22.000-74.800 MHz
75.200-80.000 MHz

Maybe Slim Jim was quoting the erroneous "they're" back from another post, not writing it himself. Also, I think I detected a subtle hint that he was, in fact, licensed, as in, "1991: A newly licensed ham living in Long Island, NY." Furthermore, I think he does like hams but he's lamenting the secondary role being forced on US as hams. Commercial communications are getting really very good and maybe we're not as important as we once were.

I don't know Slim Jim. I hope he doesn't mind having me jump to his defense. Judging by his writing, I'm sure he can defend his position if he chooses to do so.

Aint that funny? You limpwrists can't do anything but sit on the NG and whine. We slap you wimps down left and right and all you can do is sit there with snot running down your tear streaked faces. Sorry to make you mess up your rouge and eye shadow, but keyclowns are not allowed to sell export radios, amps, or noise toys.

We know some of you kweens will post about amps sold, etc...whoopie doo!

Every time you post that stuff you are just making us laugh more. You idiots are so controlled.

Your playing right into his hand by adding the comment "maybe we're not as important as we once were" We are not important! Its a hobby.

You are a liar. N8WWM threatened him many times. In fact, he has physically threatened many on this group, many times.
Doug INVITED him to his house and Steveo took him up on it. Chickenhawk wouldn't come out of his house and Steveo took a few pics of his house.

>and take pictures,

Waaaa---waaaaaa..bad man take pictures of me,,,waaaaaaa-waaaaaa!

You have posted personal information on the group on people you wrongly accuse of being another. In fact, you and chickenhawk n8wwm initiated this behavior of posting off topic personal garbage and attacks.
Returning it to where it originated and shoving it back down your throat is all that Mopar did. Sucks for you.

Because only illiterates like you think in such a manner. By asking others to disregard ALL internet security protocol, isp warnings, experts and advice, you merely illustrate what a long way you have to go in order to catch up with the rest of the word regarding intellect and the internet.

>he is a known hypocrite and hangs with a

You and your homosexual connotations are so deep rooted, it may even originate with childhood trauma. Freud pegged your kind many years ago. Even Masters and Johnson agree with his remarkable accuracy regarding the relation between one who is preoccupied with repeat homosexual connotations and being embarrassed, hostile, confused, and tormented concerning their own homosexual identity and deviant preferences. According to Freud, those who favor and have the need to invoke and reiterate out-of-place homosexual connotations as frequent as yourself, and who manage to see all topics as being somehow sexually related to homosexuality, more than likely suffered some sort of abuse in their formidable years. Research supports this and the notion is generally accepted and taught in universities all over America in psychiatric and psychological-related classes.

Although your problem is entertaining to many, it is tragic and not to be laughed at. Your kind can not be helped without ongoing therapy and is a genuine recognized sickness. Such is why you will never find me making sport of your handicap. Help is out there. Seek it, take advantage of it.

I am an inactive ham for about 10 years. I had planned to buy a nice transceiver and get back on the air. By all means, buy that transceiver and jump on in. The freeeband has always yielded more active fun and better dx than ten meter. In fact, regular cb kicks up better fun than ten meter. As you see on this group, what you see is what you get. Fun is exactly where you would expect to find it....going strictly by the postings to this group should help you make your decision. Good luck and have fun....something us cb and feeeband fanatics appear to have the market cornered on.

Yep, you are quite correct there Twist. Here is one of my favorite

he claims he will do to me, when in fact he's a fucking coward after I arrive and knock on his section eight slum door.

Twithed wants you to get on illegal channels because up there he solicits to meet in truckstop bathrooms. See the need in his post? Read between the lines. All keyclowns are in it for the same sex kink play.

Ask him how many men he met in truckstop toilets by using this equipment to strike up a conversation. If it is less than 100 do not buy. Number of men met for gayness type activities is the "feedback" on particular equipment combinations. It is like ebay's feedback.

Wrong, sphincter licker. AKC does not play by your rules. We play by ours. The fact that you have been posting the same crap for 7 months shows how feeble you are. If we want to see you we can. Anytime. What you don't get is that you just aint the smartest person on the block. The AKC has made you leave your home and drive hundereds of miles in your sissified frustration. AKC has made you post and post and post.

We tremble (with mirth) at your actions. Why don't you try something else? What ya gonna do? I know! You can go to peoples' homes and take pictures and leave notes!!! That will work!!! WOW! what a concept! You can stop the AKC by doing THAT! (not!)

You are nothing more than a perverted piece of chronologically only adult frustrated little sissy boy who can't get your owners to stop jerking your strings. You can't stop it, you can't change it, and most of all, you can't help it. We have your number, limpwrist.

Now, show us what a baaaad little keysissie you are...come on spoiled little baby...DO SOMETHING!

heheheh...he can't and it eats him alive!

Take your bait someplace else, I ain't biting it. He wouldn't come out of the house, that's the whole point. I was lucky to get that pic, since he ducked behind the fucking door every time I put the camera up to my eye. Now rug along chump, I'm done with ya.

I need a radio and antenna setup that I can use to talk to my brother in Iraq. How much watts will I need to reach Bahgdad airport? (that is his duty station) I have about $2500 to play with but can't go much over that. Let me know what you have and how well it works, I can travel just about anywhere. (have free flight pass, work for airline)

thanks , Walter

Hehe..you've been posting the same tired shit for years and years, dogie.
The difference is my shit is in your face. Now go watch out the window cuz
I have lots of free time now that work is done, and ya never know when I may be going to Flat Rock Michigan again.

I can post that pic of your fugly carcass another 4 years before I even approach your numbers, felon-boi.

Hi Walter, I dunno what they cost but a pair of satellite phones might be better for those comms. At least you wouldn't be relying on the dying skip.

Come to think of it, I don't remember ever talking to Baghdad, from up here in Ohio anyway.

i worked kuwait on a regular basis (daily) around the nickel until conditions dropped. the guy can buy all the equipment he needs but unless he gets a ticket as well as his bro and then hope propagation is in then it may work. sat phone may be the way to go.

Yep, or cell phones if there's repeaters close enough. $2500 pays for boo koo air time on either.

Ask Ford to replace the alternator.
Otherwise, head to a stereo store where they know how to get the whine out of a system. My 2000 F-150 has no such problem.
Good luck,

I would like to congratulate "Psychiatrist to keyclowns" for their fine work. The AKC is indeed a cutting edge organization.

It appears the AKC's main focus is ebay. While this is certainly worthwhile and necessary, I would like to turn my attention to the yahoo auctions that offer illegal 11 meter equipment for sale. Also, I would like to hunt for websites that sell amps intended for 11 meter operation as well as modified 10 meter radios.

I will be more than happy to conduct this endeavor on my own. However I would like the AKC seal of approval. The reason for this is I do not wish to duplicate their efforts. My only wish is to wipe out illegal equipment and rid the world of keyclowns.

I'd like to think of this as maybe an AKC auxiliary.

Any suggestions are appreciated.

I don't know why you culturally retarded individuals would want to whine and complain about Jamming on the air... Just yesterday I heard a really great jam session... They had Dweezil Zappa in there, with Patrick O'Hearn on drums.

If you don't like it, TURN THE EFFING DIAL !

Idiots.

Hello Dr Bob Parker:

This sounds like a really bad case of RFI (Radio Frequency Interference) over and beyond the normal noise herd in these trucks.

Ignition noises are RF Energy from the ignition system that are induced into the wiring and radiated into the air. The factory supplied bypass capacitors work really well to suppress these noises and interference. The Ignition noises will sound like a poping type noise and will increase with the engine RPM's.

Alternator noises come from the diodes in the alternator turning off and generating RF Energy. The alternator noise makes a whinning type of noise, that will increase in pitch when the engine RPM's increase. A Capacitor (.1 uF at 50 VDC) connected to the alternators output terminal will help reduce the alternator noises.

The Fuel Pump in Fords is nortius for making RF Noises. And there are fixes for it from Ford. The inside the gas tank fuel pumps can be made to have a significantly reduced noise. Wrapping stranded wire around a plastic gas tank, and ground the turns of wire to the tracks chassie and frame will help. Adding in a bypass capacitor between the positive and negative wires to the pump (as close to the pump as possible will also help. Adding a choke in the positive wire (wiring wrapped around a ferrit snap closed core (available at Radio Shack) will also help.

RFI needs 3 things to exist.
1- A Generator, something to generate the RF Noise, the RF Noise can be induced into the wiring or radiated into the air (or both) where the antenna receives it.

2- A path needs to exist so that the RF Energy can be transferred from the generator to the receiver.

3- A receiver needs to hear the RF Noises that are interference.

Its is best to remove or attenuate the RF Noise or energy at the source. But this is much easier said than done. But in many cases if you can remove the path or add a filter to the receiver the RF Noises can be attunated to a acceptable level.

From your discription this RFI or RF Noise is way more than experenced by others. It maybe possible that the factory did not install the noise suppresion capacitors in the ingition system. Maybe a local Automotive Electrial Shop may help you out there. But to me it sound slike a really bad case of noises.

You didn't tell us any thing of your installation, what radio, how it is wired, antenna type, how is it installed what the SWR?

This was taken from one of the sites here:
"Anyone using a ham radio or C.B. in their Explorer has most likely heard the effects of RFI. The interference sounds like a high ambient noise level and the receiver possibly shows many S-units of signal strength even when there is no one transmitting. The in-tank mounted electric fuel pump is the source of this problem.

Fortunately Ford has a fix for this problem which is covered under the original warranty. If the truck is out of warranty you can get the parts and do the job yourself or have it performed at a shop. The Service Bulletin that covers this problem is # 9117-5. The part you need is a Filter Kit, Ford Part # E7PZ9B357A.

Although the addition of the filter did cure about 90% of the problem some interference is still noticeable on a few of the Ham Radio bands. Even so, it sure sounds much better then before the fix.

Additional info from Pat Freeman:

I was having fuel pump noise and saw the TSB and part number listed in the tech tips section. I gave these to my dealer and he let me know that these were for vehicles up to 1999. There is some updated information that we all might benefit from

I have a 2001 Sport Trac and TSB # 01-07-03 is for installation of a noise suppressor in the fuel tank, Part # F1PZ 18B925 A. "

Heres a few web sites that might help.

Nice definition.

According to Webster:

Dregs:

1. Sediment that has settled at the bottom of a liquid.

N8WWM:

1. Sediment that has settled at the bottom of a cesspool.

Amazing isn't it?

Hallo,

I have visited InfoRelation.com and I would like to thank you for drawing my attention to this service ;-). The idea of connecting demand and supply for info, knowledge etc is great! Thanks to this I was able to find an expert in the field of my interest and hobby.
As regards your advertisement I think that perhaps you offer too much money to the members of the projetc team ;-).

Best regards,
Donald Martin

I'll bet 99.9% (or higher) of the people that put amps up for auction on Ebay know nothing about this group. Funny thing is, most of the amps they list in their "ratout list" are listed under Ham Radio.
Ebay only kills the auctions that are listed under CB. I guess it gives the AKC something to waste their time on, and keeps them away from school yards.

5735856063 Is a great find. Thank you.

Keep up the good work. My time is important to me and I appreciate you listing all the worth while stuff on E-bay. Why plod through all the normal stuff when you take your time to do this for us. It really is a time saver when you go through the trouble of listing just the important stuff. Thank you once again. You are a time saver.

Dear uncle Hal...
Is this meant as a holier than tho amateur attitude, how dare simple CB radio operaters use anything more than standard while you can use in retrospect something you knocked up in your shed if you felt that way inclined. Listening in on a few amateur channels the cretins who live on there who use legal radios with licences i think you need to get your own house in order before "slumming it" in UK.cb giving your SIF (Single Issue Fanatic) opinion because you have nothing better to do..... get out there man and get a life !! Pirates Forever !!

Yes, but isn't that what keyclowns DO? Isn't keying down over people the foundations of keyclownism. Big watts. Lock down the channel, etc. Surely you're not against THAT?++:-)

He is known for his strict radio discipline and his handle is "Gator" in Richmond, VA.

He keys down on those who talk on "HIS" channel.

He gave me a BS lecture about how I would get tired of him talking.

I don't have a recording, YET!

I WILL post it in mp3 format when I have successfully accomplished that mission and have aquired the intel on his behavior as well as the coordinates of his location.

He made a unwise choice to disclose his phone number over the air, while unaware that other stations intercepted. Hell, he may not give a shit. But call him and sell something and see how mad he gets and realizes how STUPID he is for giving out his phone number.

If he wants someone to call him then he needs to call them on a landline phone.

Well, he's gonna be gettin' all kinds of phone calls.

Some of which will be on bathroom stalls in truckstops, stores, rest-stops and payphone booths.

Mr. Gator, how you gonna feel when you gonna be gettin them there phone calls asking for you and/or your lady-friend that was heard in the background.

She must not have a REAL black cock in her ass!
Don't worry, you gonna gets you some "brown sugar" - honeys riding that white cock.

Maybe next time you won't give out yo phone number, DUMB_ASS!!
Maybe someone won't take your number and write it on the walls just to rub yo face in your own shit!!

Wrong! 100% of those auctions that were closed are from ham radio area of ebay. You nutsacks can only moan and throw insults. You can't stop the AKC.

More busts coming. Keyclowns are not allowed to post auctions for amps on ebay!

http://www.access.gpo.gov/nara/cfr/waisidx_03/47cfr1_03.html

Plenty of stuff to read. The details are all spelled out there. You will have to do some jumping around from subsection to subsection. When you're done I think you'll have a better feel for how the FCC goes about it's business. It's not as Macavelian as Frank and the others would have you believe. There is legal recourse, in front of an Administrate Law Judge. And If you don't like the results then you can go to an Appeals Court. The FCC does have Congressional oversight. In fact many Federal agencies have a Congressional oversight committee that directs their actions. We the public may not hear about it much, but then again how may people really have that much interest in how their government works to go and find out? Most people don't even know who their state's congressional members are by name.

Some may complain that the court hearings are done under the FCC. This gets back to what I mentioned in another post about what is "a court of law". I didn't make that statement lightly. It was meant to get one thinking about the subject. Twist provided a quickie definition. The proceedings may not fit everybody's stereotype of "a court of law" but it is one never the less. You can also play all the word games you want too, by calling the FCC regulations "rules", but they are officially "administrate law", which any attorney can tell you.

Let me know what you think after you had time to read the material. I'm not going to debate it any further since it's all there for anybody to read. I will admit some of the explanations are a bit confusing. I suppose it would help to have a legal background to fully comprehend the details.

You know all the HYW cops? I talked to a real one and he says otherwise.
There is a big difference between knowing the ordinary motor vehicle code trucking.

Tell that to the buggers doing 70+ MPH in Georgia passing me like I'm standing still. Some of those mothers must be going 80 down the hills.

So the truck drivers aren't smart enough to leave more following distance when they're speeding? Gee some of them don't even do it at 55.

I don't know about you but IMHO it would be safer if we didn't have the frequent lane changes. Every time somebody changes lanes there is the chance they don't look first and then bang, and that goes for both 4 wheelers and 18 wheelers. Having everybody doing roughly the same speed would greatly reduce the need for passing.

> It's not the truckers causing the problems on the road. It's people in > cars that don't understand big trucks need almost the length of two

The truckers are as much to blame as the drivers of the 4 wheelers. I've personally seen those huge chrome grills completely filling my rear window too often. If they fill my rear window they are MOST DEFIANTLY TOO CLOSE. I just had to put up with this B.S. on 401 the past couple of days on a trip from Detroit to Woodstock Ontario Canada. I'm doing 100 KmPH, the posted limit, but oh no that wasn't fast enough for the truckers who were doing routinely 110 KmPH to 120 KmPH. I had them just 4 to 5 feet off the rear bumper of the rental car, then they pass me by cutting me off by leaving about 5 feet between me and the end of their trailer when they serve back in to my lane. The satisfaction I get is when they end up in the ditch on the side, or in the median ditch, from losing control of their rigs on the slippery pavement with windy conditions while driving like idiots too fast. That highway, 401, is well known for that in Canada.

I wonder if they seized the customer lists for evidence?????

==>ALLEGED ILLEGAL "AMATEUR" TRANSCEIVER MARKETING DRAWS HUGE FINE

The FCC has proposed fining Pilot Travel Centers LLC $125,000 for allegedly marketing unauthorized RF devices--specifically, transceivers labeled as Amateur Radio Service (ARS) equipment but intended for use on both Citizens Band and amateur frequencies. CB transmitters must receive FCC certification--formerly called "type acceptance." Amateur Radio equipment does not require FCC certification. The Notice of Apparent Liability (NAL) released November 22 asserts that Pilot continued to market CB transceivers labeled as amateur gear despite multiple citations and warnings.

"Commission field offices issued a total of nine citations to Pilot's corporate headquarters and its retail outlets warning Pilot that future violations would subject Pilot to penalties including civil monetary forfeitures," the NAL said. The Commission alleges that from October 2002 until last July, Pilot, in 47 separate instances, offered for sale various models of non-certificated Galaxy CB transceivers labeled as "amateur radios" that easily could be modified for CB operation. The FCC says in some instances, Pilot employees referred to the units as "CBs."

The ARRL expressed its full support for the FCC's enforcement action against Pilot. "The marketing as 'Amateur Radio' equipment of transceivers that are intended for other uses causes widespread interference to licensed radio amateurs operating within their allocated frequency bands," ARRL CEO David Sumner, K1ZZ said on the League's behalf. "We hope that the Commission's long-awaited action will be followed by additional measures taken against marketers who persist in similar violations."

Following up on complaints received between 2001 and 2003, FCC Enforcement Bureau field agents visited 11 Pilot retail outlets in Texas, Oregon, California and Nevada. "At these locations, the stores displayed and offered for sale various models of non-certified CB transceivers marketed as ARS transmitters," the NAL said. The FCC's Office of Engineering and Technology (OET) already had determined that the units could be modified easily for CB operation and were subject to FCC certification prior to marketing.

Responding to the citations, Pilot told the FCC that all of the radios in question were "marketed as amateur radios and, as sold, operate on the 10-meter amateur band." Pilot contended the units fell under Part 97 rules and didn't require FCC certification. In January 2002, the FCC Dallas Field Office advised Pilot that the devices referred to in the Citation had built-in design features to facilitate CB operation and that the FCC considered them CB transmitters that fall under Part 95 rules. The NAL says the Dallas Field Office received no further response from Pilot.

The FCC pointed out that it requires a grant of certification for any Amateur Radio Service transceiver designed to be easily user-modified to extend its operating frequency range into the Citizens Band.

The FCC said that on three days last December, FCC agents purchased Galaxy transceivers from different Pilot retail stores. The OET subsequently determined that all were non-certificated CB transmitters under the FCC's definition. Those sales provided the basis for the proposed fine. Ultimately, the FCC alleged that Pilot offered non-certificated CB transmitters for sale on 13 occasions in 2003 and 2004 "in apparent willful and repeated violation" of the Communications Act of 1934 and FCC rules.

Citing its concern with "the pattern of apparent violations" in the Pilot case, the FCC actually adjusted the base forfeiture amount upward from $91,000 to $125,000. "We are particularly troubled that Pilot continues to violate these rules despite receiving nine citations for marketing non-certified CB transmitters," the Commission said in the NAL. "Pilot's continuing violations of the equipment authorization requirements evince a pattern of intentional noncompliance with and apparent disregard for these rules."

Pilot was given 30 days to respond by paying or appealing the fine.

Well, I've seen that before Leland, it proves Frank's & mine statement that the FCC rules are just that, rule's not laws. As such no real way to get out of a NAL fine without taking the FCC to civil court and a lawyer.....
Lots of bucks to get that lawyer working for you.

(f) Notice of apparent liability. Before imposing a forfeiture penalty under the provisions of this paragraph, the Commission or its designee will issue a written notice of apparent liability.
(1) Content of notice. The notice of apparent liability will:
(i) Identify each specific provision, term, or condition of any act, rule, regulation, order, treaty, convention, or other agreement, license, permit, certificate, or instrument of authorizationwhich the respondent has apparently violated or with which he has failed to comply,
(ii) Set forth the nature of the act or omission charged against the respondent and the facts upon which such charge is based,
(iii) State the date(s) on which such conduct occurred, and
(iv) Specify the amount of the apparent forfeiture penalty.
(2) Delivery. The notice of apparent liability will be sent to the respondent, by certified mail, at his last known address (see Sec. 1.5).
(3) Response. The respondent will be afforded a reasonable period of time (usually 30 days from the date of the notice) to show, in writing, why a forfeiture penalty should not be imposed or should be reduced, or to pay the forfeiture. Any showing as to why the forfeiture should not be imposed or should be reduced shall include a detailed factual statement and such documentation and affidavits as may be pertinent.
(4) Forfeiture order. If the proposed forfeiture penalty is not paid in full in response to the notice of apparent liability, the Commission, upon considering all relevant information available to it, will issue an order canceling or reducing the proposed forfeiture or requiring that it be paid in full and stating the date by which the forfeiture must be paid.
(5) Judicial enforcement of forfeiture order. If the forfeiture is not paid, the case will be referred to the Department of Justice for collection under section 504(a) of the Communications Act.

No asscunt the auctions are cancelled because it is not legal to sell keyclown gear even when it is falsely labeled as ham gear.

>They take their directives from folks who might happen to wrong again ballsac, they take there directives from the FCC rules which say in black and white that CB amps are illegal to sell and keyclown radios are not ham gear no matter how much you lie and say they are

<So...feel-free to post your legal CB/Ham radio stuff here without >worry.

Three strikes and your out dipshit, if Pilot and H&Y can get busted so can keyclowns selling there illegal cb gear on a board for a clu that encourages illegal operation by the way

copied from N8's manifesto:

Keyclownism is fun to watch. Sociopathic though it may be, it does afford non keyclowns great amusement, in that a non keyclown can say to a friend..."Watch this, I'll post this message and they will come back with that response." Surely enough, keyclowns respond as programmed 100% of the time, demonstrating the total control the AKC has over them. This is a source of endless amusement to the AKC, as even when keyclowns are told what is being done to them and for what reason, they STILL respond as programmed by the AKC.

The collective desire to delude themselves that they are the "normal" people has been seen in other microcosmic societies before, and will be in the future. The most obvious example that is better known would be a drug gang. Like keyclowns, they must operate in secrecy and hide their activity from law enforcement agencies. Like keyclowns, they try to attack those in disagreement with them. Unlike keyclowns, though, drug gangs can at times do real harm to those opposing them. Keyclowns do not have that power, and are thus able only to post derogatory posts or make vague threats.

The AKC see every reason to believe that this will never cease, and that future generations of keyclowns will also respond as programmed by future generations of AKC. This is an inherited response, caused by a genetic defect in keyclowns most likely caused by cross breeding with family members too closely related to keep a stable genetic variance.

You and Frank need to do some more reading. The appeal court process is there too, but both of you like to conveniently ignore it. As far as the regulations go, that they are only "rules", go tell that to an attorney and watch him laugh at you. Better yet get a NAL yourself and tell that wopper to the judge.

You don't comprehend it do you? You can not contest a NAL in a court of law, you have to contest it before the FCC.
If you lose, you can then take it to civil court. As for the rules/law, most of the FCC codes are only rules, as such the FCC enforces them with NAL's, that's how they circumvent the legal system.
I don't have to worry about NAL Lee, you would have more to worry about than I.

how do you figure that? Lee is a licensed ham who operates legally. You are an unlicensed keyclown who freebands and operates illegal amps.

FCC File No. 0000920745
Docket No. 03-188

HEARING DESIGNATION ORDER

Adopted: August 6, 2003 Released: August 7, 2003

By the Chief, Public Safety and Private Wireless Division, Wireless Telecommunications Bureau:

INTRODUCTION
1. By this Hearing Designation Order, we commence a hearing before an FCC Administrative Law Judge (ALJ) to determine whether the captioned application by Richard A. Burton (Burton) for a new General Mobile Radio Service (GMRS) license should be granted. As discussed below, Burton has been convicted on four separate occasions for the unlicensed operation of a radio transmission apparatus in violation of Sections 301 or 318 of the Communications Act of 1934, as amended (Act).[1] In addition, Burton had his amateur radio license revoked in 1981 for willful and repeated violation of the Commission's regulations governing the Amateur Radio Service.[2] In 1992, his application for new amateur radio station and operator licenses was designated for hearing based on character qualifications issues arising from the 1981 license revocation and the first two of his four felony convictions[3] for unlicensed radio operations.[4] Based on the information before us, we believe that Burton's history of repeated violations of the Act and our Rules raises a substantial and material question of fact as to whether he possesses the requisite character qualifications to be a Commission licensee. Because we are unable to make a determination on the record currently before us that grant of Burton's application for a new GMRS license would serve the public interest, convenience, and necessity, we hereby designate the application for hearing, as required by Section 309(e) of the Act.[5]

Hey, dum dum...keyclowns have fantasized about that for years, there is only one thing that keeps it from happening. AKC members are heterosexual.

Switch to being heterosexual, mopey dopey...oops...forgot...gayness is part of keyclownism. How does it feel to be totally unable to do

How do you figure that Geo? I own a Cobra 148, have lot of amps, not a one near a radio, all collecting dust on the shelf's, I don't freeband and don't think I've ever claimed to freeband.

Yawnnnnnnnnnnn, don't you get tired of being

He's filing for a license, what does that have to do with contesting a NAL before a court of law?
I'll say it again, you can not contest a NAL before a court of law. You keep posting this stuff, none shows the contesting of a NAL before a court of law.

Hello Jon:

Good old Radio, a General MC6. Sorry no I don't have a mic for it, but if you keep an eye on E-Bay you will run accross a older radio with one on it.

Look at Bob's web site here for a bunch of neat ol pictures of the GeneraL Radiotelephone and Browning Radios.

Just a quick update for the AKC.

There was recorded telephone conversation between a "customer" and a keyclown supplier. The conversation consisted of the keyclown supplier offering to add 11 meters to a superstar radio. The conversation then progressed to what type of amp the superstar "would best drive". The customer was assured that by purchasing them both together a "perfect match" was assured. (Are you keyclowns really THAT stupid??)

Oh, and did I mention, This is a VERY prominent keyclown supplier.

The tapes along with a letter are on the way to Dallas.

I understand the "customer" also offered to complete the transaction under the supervision of the authorities.

Life is good.

Read section II very carefully. There is a difference between paid and unpaid NAL's and whether you can challenge them in district court or in an appellate court. From my reading it appears that as long as you DON'T immediately pay the forfeiture you can challenge the NAL in district court.
It's a bit much to read, full of legal theory and citing sections of different CFR's and case law, but does confirm what I have said all along - you can challenge a NAL in court.

Dude, this is a: "DEFENDANT'S MOTION IN OPPOSITION TO PLAINTIFF'S MOTION FOR PRELIMINARY INJUNCTION" It's an injunction to prevent him from Broadcasting, nothing to due with a NAL.

1 United States Telephone Association v. F.C.C., No. 92-1321, No. 93-1526, 1994 U.S. App. Lexis 17002.
2 Had defendant, rather than plaintiff, come to this Court seeking injunctive or declaratory relief, the F.C.C. would be vehemently urging denial of review pending exhaustion of administrative remedies. In fact, in a very similar case, Dougan v. F.C.C., 94 C.D.O.S. 2735, No. 92-70734 (9th Cir. 1994) the F.C.C. argued to the Ninth Circuit that the only avenue for judicial review in these cases is appeal to the District Court after the F.C.C. has initiated formal enforcement proceedings to seize the forfeiture amount.

Again, this says before the FCC commissioners, nothing about a court of law.

OK, so AT&T, which has more lawyers than you & I have friends filed a petition. They also paid the fine first, so again, where is the common person going with this? Hire a bunch of lawyers that will end up costing you more than the fine?

I can attest to that. I know one of the people he mentions and I told him the exact same thing about proper care & feeding of you're friend.
He talks on it constantly and never really sounds bad. My only beef with those type of amps are the sideband capabilities (None).
I personally enjoyed the DX667 or my Favorites
for the past 4 years have been the Messenger 1200, 1800. Day to day use they take a licking and keep on ticking.

Read section II as I've stated and quit beating around the bush ignoring the contents. It specificaly mentions NAL, the review process etc. It's all mentioned right there. I'll quote for you since you can't read.

http://www.fcc.gov/ogc/documents/opinions/2003/01-1485.pdf

II
Before considering the merits of AT&T's challenge, we must address the Commission's argument that we lack jurisdiction over appeals from NAL forfeiture proceedings. The

<< this is a NAL forfeiture proceeding appeal Landshark. It says so VERY CLEARLY.>>
<< It is being challenged in a court of law, specifically :

<< United States Court of Appeals >>

<< FOR THE DISTRICT OF COLUMBIA CIRCUIT >>

<< So what part of "NAL", "Appeal", "United States Court of Appeals" etc. don't you>> << understand?>>

NAL procedure is just one of two ways in which the Commission may impose forfeiture penalties, each of which comes with a different set of jurisdictional requirements-differences that are relevant to the issue before us.

<< are "relevant to the issue before us". Even the court once again says this is>

See generally Action for Children's Television v. FCC, 59 F.3d 1249, 1253-54 (D.C. Cir. 1995) (describing the two forfeiture procedures). Under the first and more formal procedure, the Commission provides notice to the alleged violator and affords it an opportunity for a hearing before an administrative law judge, who may then choose to impose forfeiture penalties. 47 U.S.C. § 503(b)(3)(A). The resulting forfeiture order is then subject to review in the court of appeals. Id. If the penalty remains unpaid once the forfeiture determination becomes final, the United States may bring a collection action in district court. Id. § 503(b)(3)(B).

Under the less formal NAL procedure at issue in this case, the Commission issues a notice of apparent liability to the alleged violator, affording it only the opportunity to show, in writing, why no forfeiture penalty should be imposed. Id. § 503(b)(4). The Commission may then issue an order directing payment of the proposed forfeiture, reducing the amount to be paid, or canceling the forfeiture altogether. 47 C.F.R. § 1.80(f)(4). If the order becomes final and the forfeiture subject refuses to pay, then Communications Act section 504(a) permits the Commission to refer the matter to the Department of Justice for commencement of a civil action to recover the forfeiture in a district court, where the forfeiture subject is entitled to a trial de novo. 47 U.S.C. § 504(a). The Commission argues that unlike the formal hearing forfeiture process, where the Communications Act expressly gives courts of appeals jurisdiction to review forfeiture orders, the less formal NAL forfeiture proceedings are not subject to review in courts of appeals. The plain language of the Communications Act indicates otherwise. Section 402(a), the Act's general review provision, vests in courts of appeals exclusive jurisdiction over "[a]ny proceeding to enjoin, set aside, annul or suspend" or determine the validity of final Commission orders, 47 U.S.C. § 402(a); see 28 U.S.C. § 2342(1)-a category that includes forfeiture orders, see

Illinois Citizens Comm. for Broad. v. FCC, 515 F.2d 397, 402 (D.C. Cir. 1974) (holding that the court of appeals has jurisdiction over a third party's challenge to a paid forfeiture order pursuant to section 402(a)). And although section 504(a) creates an exception to that general rule, that exception is, by its express terms, limited to government actions for the recovery of forfeiture penalties: Section 504(a) provides that NAL forfeitures "shall be recoverable TTT in a civil suit in the name of the United States" brought in the district court, and that "any suit for the recovery of a forfeiture imposed pursuant to the provisions of this chapter shall be a trial de novo." 47 U.S.C. § 504(a) (emphasis added). Because section 504(a) says nothing about district court jurisdiction where the forfeiture has already been recovered, it appears to leave court of appeals jurisdiction intact where, as here, the forfeiture subject has paid the assessed penalty. Though the Commission agrees that section 504(a) deals only with challenges to unpaid forfeiture orders, it argues that section 504(a) nevertheless overrides section 402(a), albeit implicitly, for purposes of challenging paid forfeiture orders. For that proposition, the Commission relies on Pleasant Broadcasting Co. v. FCC, 564 F.2d 496 (D.C. Cir. 1977). Addressing the question of court of appeals jurisdiction over NAL forfeiture orders, Pleasant Broadcasting states that "section 504 of the Communications Act of 1934 vests exclusive jurisdiction in the district courts to review, in the first instance, licensee challenges to forfeiture orders." Id. at 497 (citation omitted). According to the Commission, Pleasant Broadcasting holds that section 504(a) vests exclusive jurisdiction in district courts for review of all forfeiture orders, paid or unpaid. And because section 504(a) contains no provision for post-compliance review, the Commission argues, Pleasant Broadcasting means that forfeiture subjects must either bring a pre-compliance challenge in district court or bring no challenge at all; payment effectively renders forfeiture orders unreviewable.

Despite its broad statement of its holding, Pleasant Broadcasting provides little support for the Commission's theory. To begin with, Pleasant Broadcasting deals not with the question of post-compliance review of forfeiture orders, but rather with a forfeiture subject's challenge to an unpaid forfeiture order. The court's reasoning reflects the importance of that distinction. Limiting its holding to cases in which section 504's ''special review mechanism'' is both adequate and available, the court distinguished Illinois Citizens, 515 F.2d 397, in which this court accepted jurisdiction over public-interest groups' challenge to a Commission forfeiture for broadcasting obscene and indecent materials despite the fact that the broadcaster had already paid the penalty. Under those circumstances, where section 504 proceedings to collect the forfeiture ''would never have been instituted,'' Pleasant Broadcasting says that section 504 review is ''unavailable,'' and court of appeals review pursuant to section 402(a) is therefore ''appropriate.'' Id. at 501, 502-03. Although Illinois Citizens involved a third-party challenge to a paid forfeiture order, the same logic applies when the forfeiture subject itself seeks to bring a post-compliance challenge: Because payment renders section 504 review ''unavailable,'' court of appeals review pursuant to section 402(a) is ''appropriate.'' Pleasant Broadcasting's holding, moreover, rests at least in part on the court's concern that allowing forfeiture subjects to bring challenges to forfeiture orders in courts of appeals would give them the proverbial ''two bites at the apple'': They would ''be able to challenge the forfeiture order in a court of appeals on the basis of the administrative record and, if unsuccessful, TTT litigate all issues de novo in the district court, with a right of appeal to the court of appeals.'' Id. at 501. Even under the Commission's theory, that danger does not exist here. Because section 504(a) review is, by its terms, available only in recovery actions, AT&T will get just one bite.

In the end, Pleasant Broadcasting tells us only that section 504(a) establishes district courts as the exclusive forum for challenges to unpaid forfeiture orders. Like section 504(a) itself, it has no effect on court of appeals jurisdiction to review challenges to paid forfeiture orders.
To be sure, as the Commission points out, allowing forfeiture subjects to choose between challenging unpaid forfeiture orders in district court and challenging paid forfeiture orders in the court of appeals means that they can control the forum of review by deciding whether or not to pay the penalty. The obvious answer to this concern is section 504(a)'s plain language: By limiting district court jurisdiction to unpaid forfeitures, it gives forfeiture subjects that very choice. Such forum-controlling compliance choices, moreover, are common in statutes providing for judicial review of regulatory decisions. The Communications Act itself contains another such provision, which allows telecommunications carriers subject to orders that conclude complaint-initiated investigations either to appeal the order in the court of appeals under section 402(a), 47 U.S.C. &#65533; 208(b)(3), or, assuming the order requires the payment of money, to refuse to comply and instead wait for the complainant to file a petition in district court, id. &#65533; 407.

Moreover, even where, as here, a statute fails to make the choice explicit, but rather provides only a special procedural mechanism for the government to collect payments owed to it, that choice nevertheless remains; the collection mechanism has no effect on the payer's ability to obtain post-compliance review pursuant to generally applicable jurisdictional principles.

For example, in the customs context, where Congress granted exclusive jurisdiction to the Court of International Trade over suits for the recovery of certain civil penalties, 28 U.S.C. &#65533; 1582(1), penalty subjects may "obtain[ ] judicial review in the Court of International Trade by refusing to pay the penalty and waiting for the government to commence an enforcement action." Trayco, Inc. v. United States, 994 F.2d 832, 837 (Fed. Cir. 1993). But they also have "the option, and more importantly, the right" to pay the penalty and later "initiate suit in the district court to challenge the penalty" pursuant to the Tucker Act, 28 U.S.C. 1346(a)(2). Id. Similarly, here, where AT&T has already paid the penalty rather than wait for the Government to commence a recovery action, it has the option-and the right-to initiate suit in the court of appeals pursuant to section 402(a).

Why are you so resistance to the idea that there is a jurisdictional review process? And as you can read above there are two ways to do it, prepay the fine or not. Depending on the choice made determines how the process is done, i.e. which court you have to go to. You seem to want to really believe that the FCC is some kind of rouge agency that does as it pleases without any checks and balances. It just isn't so. All I can figure out is you want to believe this so you can justifiy FCC regulation violations in your own mind, feel better about it, and excuse others for being held acountable.

Hi! Which portable handheld CB radio is considered to be the best? Are there several that fit into this category? What kind of range could you expect in the country in a partially wooded area? Your views appreciated. Thanks! Karl.

I thought only Chukkeesukkee, K8CPA, did that. And even he didnt do it til his shit got called to put up or shut up by the FBI. Chukkeesukkee told everyone he was in the latin counts gang, buddies with the iron coffins, threatened women, kids, and pets, and called cops pigs. Not to mention that he threatened people with a gun at the Findlay, Ohio hamfest. Of course, he was found out to be a lying sack, who didnt own a gun or belong to any gangs. You shoulda seen his sissy face when the law showed up at his door.

Exactly. It's kind of like the punk-boi hall monitor that most normal folk took a jab at in grade-school. You know the kind..."sticks and stones may break my bones, but words will never ha-------oh shit!...that hurt!...why'd you do that?...TEACHER, HE HIT ME!" And to boot, poor doug (capitalization omitted intentionally), was ordered to seek mental counseling by the court, but we're all the sick people. Now that's really funny!

DOUG! Wake up and smell the Thorazine, Dude! You are as messed up as the day is long.

BTW, are you taking care of the kiddos now? Are you still a deadbeat Dad with money to buy radios, but not the money to help your kids out?

Again, "You" have to sue the Federal Government to get your money back. Gee, $8,000.00 fine, $15,000.00 attorney fee's, doesn't make sense to me.

Major snipage (Again Lee not everyone has a dozen attorneys on retainer to fight the FCC)

Really, I saw it the other way. For the informal NAL you had to pay, then sue the Fed's to appeal.

No, not at all. But they do have limited autonomy to perform functions written into thier "rules".

Ya mean, like THIS???

November 4, 2004

Carl Naney
3624 Highway 45
Flora, IL 62839

Subject: Warning Notice--Unlicensed Radio Operation
Case # EB-2005-2656

Dear Mr. Naney:

Information before the Commission indicates that you have been operating radio equipment on Citizens Band frequencies that causes interference on the 10-meter Amateur Radio Service band.

Operation of CB equipment overpower or operation with modified equipment is unlicensed operation and is a violation of Section 301 of the Communications Act of 1934, as amended, 47 U.S.C. Section 301. Such operation will subject you to fine or imprisonment, as well as an in rem seizure of any non-certified radio transmitting equipment, in cooperation with the United States Attorney for your jurisdiction. Monetary forfeitures normally range from $7,500 to $10,000.

Subject: Warning Notice--Unlicensed Radio Operation

Dear Mr. Sanders:

Information before the Commission indicates that you have been operating modified Amateur radio equipment on Citizens Band frequencies that causes interference on the 10-meter Amateur Radio Service band.

Operation of CB equipment overpower or operation with modified equipment is unlicensed operation and is a violation of Section 301 of the Communications Act of 1934, as amended, 47 U.S.C. Section 301. Such operation will subject you to fine or imprisonment, as well as an in rem seizure of any non-certified radio transmitting equipment, in cooperation with the United States Attorney for your jurisdiction. Monetary forfeitures normally range from $7,500 to $10,000. Additionally, the marketing of equipment that does not conform to the Commission's certification requirements would subject you to criminal prosecution.

You are requested to contact this office at 717-338-2502.

FORFEITURE ORDER

Adopted: October 14, 2004
Released: October 18, 2004

By the Assistant Chief, Enforcement Bureau:

INTRODUCTION 1. In this Forfeiture Order ("Order") we issue a monetary forfeiture in the amount of ten thousand dollars ($10,000) to Robert A. Spiry ("Mr. Spiry") for willful and repeated violation of Section 301 of the Communications Act of 1934, as amended ("Act").[8] The noted violation involves Mr. Spiry's operation of a radio station without Commission authorization.

II. BACKGROUND

2. After receiving numerous complaints of interference to home electronics equipment from Citizen's Band ("CB") radio transmissions, the Commission's Seattle, Washington Field Office ("Seattle Office") determined on March 13, 2002; April 2, 2002; October 29, 2002; and November 5, 2002, that the interference resulted from CB transmissions originating from Mr. Spiry's residence and from his mobile station in his vehicle. During inspections conducted on April 2, 2002 and November 5, 2002, Seattle Office agents determined that Mr. Spiry was operating transmitters that were not FCC certified in violation of Section 95.409 of the Commission's Rules ("Rules")[9] and that Mr. Spiry was operating with a linear amplifier attached to his CB radio transmitter in violation of Section 95.411 of the Rules.[10] During both inspections, Mr. Spiry was advised that his use of unauthorized and non-certified equipment voided his blanket authority to operate his CB station. Nevertheless, Mr. Spiry continued to operate the unauthorized equipment at the expense of his blanket authorization to operate his CB radio station.

3. On December 30, 2002, the Seattle Office issued a Notice of Apparent Liability for Forfeiture ("NAL") in the amount of ten thousand dollars ($10,000) to Mr. Spiry for operating a radio station without Commission authorization in apparent willful and repeated violation of Section 301 of the Act.[11] In his January 15, 2003 response to the NAL, Mr. Spiry does not dispute the facts as set forth in the NAL. In his response, Mr. Spiry states that he has ceased CB radio transmissions and has obtained an amateur radio license [KD7TRB--Ed.] Mr. Spiry claims to have removed his CB radio antenna. Mr. Spiry also asserts that he was unaware that the amount of the forfeiture could be so high, and that he is unable to pay the forfeiture.

III. DISCUSSION

4. The proposed forfeiture amount in this case was assessed in accordance with Section 503(b) of the Communications Act of 1934, as amended ("Act"),[12] Section 1.80 of the Rules,[13] and The Commission's Forfeiture Policy Statement and Amendment of Section 1.80 of the Rules to Incorporate the Forfeiture Guidelines, 12 FCC Rcd 17087 (1997), recon. denied, 15 FCC Rcd 303 (1999) ("Policy Statement"). In examining Mr. Spiry's response, Section 503(b) of the Act requires that the Commission take into account the nature, circumstances, extent and gravity of the violation and, with respect to the violator, the degree of culpability, any history of prior offenses, ability to pay, and such other matters as justice may require.[14]

5. Section 301 of the Act sets forth generally that no person shall use or operate any apparatus for the transmission of energy or communications or signals by radio within the United States except under and in accordance with this Act and with a license granted under the provisions of this Act. The rules governing the licensing and operation of CB radio stations are set forth within Subpart D of Part 95 of the Rules.[15] Section 95.409 of the Rules states that a CB operator must use a FCC certified CB transmitter and that use of a non-certified transmitter voids the authority to operate the CB station. Section 95.411 of the Rules prohibits attaching a power linear amplifier to a CB transmitter in any way. On April 2, 2002 and November 5, 2002, Mr. Spiry operated his CB radio station with transmitters that were not FCC certified in violation of Section 95.409 of the Rules. On both occasions, Mr. Spiry also operated with a linear amplifier attached to his CB radio transmitter in violation of Section 95.411 of the Rules. Mr. Spiry's operation of his CB radio station with unauthorized equipment voided his blanket CB license. Thus, on April 2, 2002 and November 5, 2002, Mr. Spiry was operating a radio station without a license in violation of Section 301 of the Act. Mr. Spiry does not dispute the violations. Therefore, we find that Mr. Spiry willfully[16] and repeatedly[17] violated Section 301 of the Act by the unauthorized CB operation.

6. We have examined Mr. Spiry's response to the NAL pursuant to the statutory factors above, and in conjunction with the Policy Statement. We are not persuaded that the forfeiture amount should be reduced because of Mr. Spiry's remedial efforts (i.e., ceased CB transmissions, obtained an amateur license, removed CB equipment). As the Commission stated in Seawest Yacht Brokers, 9 FCC Rcd 6099, 6099 (1994), "corrective action taken to come into compliance with Commission rules or policy is expected, and does not nullify or mitigate any prior forfeitures or violations."[18] Moreover, even though Mr. Spiry claims to have not known the potential penalties for his actions, we note that Mr. Spiry was given two Notices of Unauthorized Operation that explained that the monetary penalty for violating Section 301 of the Act could be as high as $10,000. Furthermore, regarding Mr. Spiry's claim of inability to pay the forfeiture, we note that, consistent with paragraph 14 of the NAL, the Commission will not consider reducing or canceling a forfeiture in response to a claim of inability to pay unless the petitioner submits: (1) federal tax returns for the most recent three-year period; (2) financial statements prepared according to generally accepted accounting practices ("GAAP"); or (3) some other reliable and objective documentation that accurately reflects the petitioner's current financial status. Because Mr. Spiry has not provided adequate financial information from which we can determine his ability to pay the forfeiture, cancellation or reduction is not warranted.[19] IV. ORDERING CLAUSES

7. Accordingly, IT IS ORDERED that, pursuant to Section 503(b) of the Act, and Sections 0.111, 0.311 and 1.80(f)(4) of the Rules,[20] Mr. Robert A. Spiry IS LIABLE FOR A MONETARY FORFEITURE in the amount of ten thousand dollars ($10,000) for willful and repeated violation of Section 301 of the Act.

8. Payment of the forfeiture shall be made in the manner provided for in Section 1.80 of the Rules within 30 days of the release of this Order. If the forfeiture is not paid within the period specified, the case may be referred to the Department of Justice for collection pursuant to Section 504(a) of the Act.[21] Payment of the forfeiture must be made by check or similar instrument, payable to the order of the "Federal Communications Commission." The payment must include the NAL/Acct. No. and FRN No. referenced above. Payment by check or money order may be mailed to Forfeiture Collection Section, Finance Branch, Federal Communications Commission, P.O. Box 73482, Chicago, Illinois 60673-7482. Payment by overnight mail may be sent to Bank One/LB 73482, 525 West Monroe, 8th Floor Mailroom, Chicago, IL 60661. Payment by wire transfer may be made to ABA Number 071000013, receiving bank "Bank One," and account number 1165259.

Requests for full payment under an installment plan should be sent to: Chief, Revenue and Receivables Operations Group, 445 12th Street, S.W., Washington, D.C. 20554.[22] 9. IT IS FURTHER ORDERED that a copy of this Order shall be sent by first class mail and certified mail return receipt to Mr. Robert A. Spiry, 1516 S. 52nd Street, Tacoma, Washington 98408.

RE: Warning Notice--Unlicensed Radio Operation

Dear Sir:

Information before the Commission indicates that your vehicle bearing DOT #721546, pulling a trailer with Georgia license #4070AG, was the source of radio transmissions on the 10 meter Amateur Radio Band (28.080 MHz) on September 10, 2004 on Interstate 20E in Douglasville, Ga. Radio operation on the 10 meter Band requires a license from the FCC.

While many truckers use Citizens band radio equipment, please be advised that operation of radio transmitting equipment without a license is a violation of Section 301 of the Communications Act of 1934, as amended, 47 U.S.C. Section 301, and will subject the operator to fine or imprisonment, as well as an in rem seizure of any non-certified radio transmitting equipment, in cooperation with the United States Attorney for your jurisdiction. Monetary forfeitures normally range from $7,500 to $10,000.

You are requested to contact me at 717-338-2502 to discuss this matter.

I'm not much of a gambler and I don't go out on a limb very often, but I have a prediction to make. Nocode license holder N8WWM, Doug Adair of Toledo Ohio, will have his hammie license revoked in the year 2005 by the FCC for past criminal behaviors as persuant to being found guilty in a court of law by the great state of Ohio and because of ongoing behavior. The FCC has been pulling licenses of hammies for certain felony convictions in their past and this operator has just been made aware the nature of his crimes makes him eligible for license revocation. Email your thoughts on this matter to rholling@fcc.gov and include any pertinent information. This particular stain on hammie radio is about to be washed away and cleansed. And a massive thanks to YOU, Mr. Clean <g>!

CHILI CONTEST

If you can read this whole story without tears of laughter running down your cheeks, then there's no hope for you! Note: Please take time to read this slowly. If you pay attention to the first two judges, the reaction of the third judge is even better! For those of you who have lived in Texas, you know how true this is. They actually have a Chilli Cook-off about the time the Rodeo comes to town. It takes up a major portion of the parking lot at the Astrodome. The notes are from an inexperienced Chilli taster named Frank, who was visiting Texas from the East Coast:

Frank: "Recently, I was honored to be selected as a judge at a chili cook-off. The Judge #3 called in sick at the last moment and I happened to be standing there at the judge's table asking for directions to the Budweiser truck, when the call came in. I was assured by the other two judges (Native Texans) that the chili wouldn't be all that spicy and, besides, they told me I could have free beer during the tasting, so I accepted."

Here are the scorecards from the event:

Chili # 1 (Mike's Maniac Mobster Monster Chili)

Judge # 1 A little too heavy on the tomato. Amusing kick.

Judge # 2 Nice, smooth tomato flavor. Very mild.

Judge # 3 (Frank) Holy shit, what the hell is this stuff? You could remove dried paint from your driveway. Took me two beers to put the flames out. I hope that's the worst one. These Texans are crazy.

Chili # 2 (Arthur's Afterburner Chili)
Judge # 1 Smoky, with a hint of pork. Slight jalapeno tang.

Judge # 2 Exciting BBQ flavor, needs more peppers to be taken seriously.

Judge # 3 Keep this out of the reach of children. I'm not sure what I'm supposed to taste besides pain. I had to wave off two people who wanted to give me the Heimlich maneuver. They had to rush in more beer when they saw the look on my face.

Chili # 3 (Fred's Famous Burn Down the Barn Chili)

Judge # 1 Excellent firehouse chili. Great kick. Needs more beans.

Judge # 2 A beanless chili, a bit salty, good use of peppers.

Judge # 3 Call the EPA. I've located a uranium spill. My nose feels like I have been snorting Drano. Everyone knows the routine by now. Get me more beer before I ignite. Barmaid pounded me on the back, now my backbone is in the front part of my chest. I'm getting shit-faced from all of the beer!

Chili # 4 (Bubba's Black Magic)

Judge # 1 Black bean chili with almost no spice. Disappointing.

Judge # 2 Hint of lime in the black beans. Good side dish for fish or other mild foods, not much of a chili.

Judge # 3 I felt something scraping across my tongue, but was unable to taste it. Is it possible to burn out taste buds? Sally, the barmaid, was standing behind me with fresh refills. That 300-lb. bitch is starting to look HOT... just like this nuclear waste I'm eating! Is chili an aphrodisiac?

Chili # 5 (Linda's Legal Lip Remover)

Judge # 1 Meaty, strong chili. Cayenne peppers freshly ground, adding considerable kick. Very impressive.

Judge # 2 Chilli using shredded beef, could use more tomato. Must admit the cayenne peppers make a strong statement.

Judge # 3 My ears are ringing, sweat is pouring off my forehead and I can no longer focus my eyes. I farted and four people behind me needed paramedics. The contestant seemed offended when I told her that her chilli had given me brain damage. Sally saved my tongue from bleeding by pouring beer directly on it from the pitcher. I wonder if I'm burning my lips off. It really pisses me off that the other judges asked me to stop screaming. Screw those rednecks.

Chilli # 6 (Vera's Very Vegetarian Variety)

Judge # 1 Thin yet bold vegetarian variety chilli. Good balance of spices and peppers.

Judge # 2 The best yet. Aggressive use of peppers, onions, and garlic. Superb.

Judge # 3 I shit myself when I farted and I'm worried it will eat through the chair. No one seems inclined to stand behind me except that slut Sally. She must be kinkier than I thought. Can't feel my lips anymore. I need to wipe my ass with a snow cone.

Chilli # 7 (Susan's Screaming Sensation Chilli)

Judge # 1 A mediocre chilli with too much reliance on canned peppers.

Judge # 2 Ho hum, tastes as if the chef literally threw in a can of chilli peppers at the last moment. I should take note that I am worried about Judge #3. He appears to be in a bit of distress as he is cursing uncontrollably.

Judge # 3 You could put a grenade in my mouth, pull the pin, and I wouldn't feel a thing. I've lost sight in one eye, and the world sounds like it is made of rushing water. My shirt is covered with chilli, which slid unnoticed out of my mouth. My pants are full of lava-like shit to match my shirt. At least during the autopsy, they'll know what killed me. I've decided to stop breathing, it's too painful. Screw it; I'm not getting any oxygenanyway. If I need air, I'll just suck it in through the 4-inch hole in my stomach.

Chilli # 8 (Tommy's Toe-Nail Curling Chilli)

Judge # 1 The perfect ending, this is a nice blend chilli. Not too bold but spicy enough todeclare its existence.

Judge # 2 This final entry is a good, balanced chilli. Neither mild nor hot. Sorry to see that most of it was lost when Judge # 3 passed out, fell over and pulled the chilli pot down on top of himself. Not sure if he's going to make it. Poor dude, wonder how he'd have reacted to a really hot chilli?

Reckon Riley H would be interested in N8WWM's Usenet ramblings? Nah, he may find them offensive. Of course all he'd have to do is a simple web search of N8WWM or Doug Adair to really get the skinny on the ninny.

Doug is famous on both Usenet and the Web.

Depends on what state you are in. In Texas as long as one party knows it being recorded its legal.

Then why are you always calling everyone ice if you are not obsessed with him? I mean what is the point? Do you still keydown with that 32 pill dave made boy? Yeah I know about your bayshore network crap and I am indeed not the only one. Why do you bitch & moan and talk faggot stuff and on top of that racist stuff? I mean from the picture that we saw of you, it appears you are a wigger with a 32 pill davemade amp.
So what is your problem? Do you still key that big 32 pill amp?

Oh and for the record he has been calling so many people icecold and other names as well but I think he is particularly obsessed with ice.
Now I am not him but I will add this.... if not for google I would not even know who icecold guy is. I have NEVER since I have been reading this group EVER seen a post from this icecold guy, I guess because of this kid his memory lingers on.....
And he will get mad and respond that I or you or someone else who disagrees with the bayshore network guy prozac (that is who he is) is a black guy and he must be ice. Oh and I have never seen this brain vanderfool or chimped brotha either. This kid is strange and obsessed!

They don't.,,but bone legal hammie rigs, do. Your lack of communication skill has you selectively taking a post from years ago and misinterpreting it as having some type relation to his posts of today or what radio he runs today. Your calculated but ignorant and misdirected misinterpretation is that he was using the same radio back then as he does today. Assumptions have always added to your joyously expressed communication deficits and lack of intellect.

LOL!!!! So right Twist. He doesn't understand anything about classic car shows, I guess I'll have to educate him. You can't run anything other than stock, stock alternator only puts out 48 amps.
I had to remove the dual batts, hi output alt.
As for Radio's, the 148 matches the stock interior, can be removed vecause it's only mounted with velcro, extra freq are not nesessary when you are so close traveling to a show.

But it could get ugly for Doug. Riley's pulling licenses for guys that got drunk driving, threaten people etc etc. Anything that make the hobby look bad.

I'm Steveo. I'm a cocksucker. Yeh, that's right, a cocksucker. I pleasure straightguys with my mouth when they're horny and there's no pussyaround. And when they've popped their load down my throat, theyjust stick their meat back in their pants and zip up. Sometimesthey say thanks, sometimes they don't. But that's OK, it's justhow straight guys treat cocksuckers. Straight guys always want to know what a guy like megets out of giving them blow jobs when they don't give meanything in return. Well, that's easy. They do give me something,they give me dick, the most wonderful, sexiest thing in the worldto a fag. So while the straight guy is using my mouth as a pussysubstitute in order to satisfy his sexual needs, he is alsoletting me worship his cock so I can satisfy mine. That's a fairdeal as far as I'm concerned. But, hey, don't get me wrong.
Seeing me walk down thestreet, you'd never think I was queer. I don't swish.
I hang outwith my friends, play sports, get drunk now and then, the usualguy-guy stuff. I'm totally male and a regular guy in every wayexcept one: My favorite kind of sex is sucking on another guy'sdick and taking his load for him. Am I glad that I turned out to be a cocksucker insteadof a normal, pussy-chasing straight guy? Yeah, I am, even thoughsometimes it can be tough being a fag in a straight-ruled world,especially a fag who likes what I like. I wouldn't want to beanything else though. In fact, tell you the truth, I'm more thanglad, I'm proud to be a cocksucker. I'm proud that the guys wholet me service them usually come back for more, whenever they'refeeling horny and need the kind of ego-trip-hot-sex that they canonly get from a really good cocksucker who asks nothing more thanthe privilege of being allowed to suck them.
But I'll admit it took me a while to get here. Like allguys growing up homo instead of hetero, I suppose, I had tofigure out a few things first. Let me tell you about it. * * * Ever since I can remember I've been fascinated by otherguy's dicks and I started sucking on them as soon as my oldercousin he's a homo too showed me what a blow job was and then letme practice on his dick so I could learn to do it right. Rightfrom that first time I loved how it felt to have his cock in mymouth, how good it made me feel to suck on it, to make it minefor a few minutes. Even more, I loved how much my cousin enjoyedbeing sucked off, how good I made him feel. He'd kick back andrelax on the bed, his hands behind his head, just letting mepleasure him, and I fell in love with giving sexual service toother men. It just felt so good to suck on his beautiful cockuntil he popped his load. Naturally, as soon as I discovered cocksucking, Iwanted more, lots more, and my cousin told me about the Y and themen's room in the bus station downtown. He said that guys whowere horny would go there and let guys like us feed on their meatso they could get off.
I'll never forget the first time I went to the Y, acouple of months after I started sucking my cousin's dick. Thisgood-looking guy came into the men's room dressed only in gymshorts and a jock. He saw me sitting in one of the stalls, whichdidn't have any doors. I guess it was obvious I wasn't there totake a shit. "You want something, boy?" he asked when he saw melooking at him while he took a leak at one of the urinals. "Yes, please," I answered, my heart racing. "What's that, boy?"

"Can I suck your cock, please, sir?" "You a cocksucker, boy?" he said, waving his dick atme. "Yes, sir, I am. Please let me suck on it." "Funny," he said, "you don't look queer." "Well, it's just that I like to suck guys. I'm not asissy or anything."
He walked toward me, his dick getting hard. God, it wasbeautiful, sticking out from his lean, hard body, his heavy ballshanging below it.
"You do a good job, cocksucker," he said, standing infront of me, his manhood a few inches from my face. "Yes, sir," I answered, "I'll suck it good for you." "You do that, boy." I leaned forward and felt for the first time the utterbliss that comes over me when a straight man's cock slides intomy mouth. It thrilled me to be this hunky guy's cocksucker, theinstrument of his pleasure. As I sucked him, he kept calling menames like faggot and queer boy and I felt smaller and smallerand he seemed bigger and more masculine every second, until heblew his wad down my throat. When it was over, he thanked me andtold me I was a good cocksucker. That really made me feel goodbecause I wanted to be the best cocksucker in the world for a guylike him. Two other guys used my mouth as a pussy substitute thatday and they called me names too. That bothered me at first. Eventhen, I didn't think of myself as like one of those swishy guyseveryone made fun of at school. As I told that first guy, Iwasn't a sissy, it just made me feel good to suck dick. At thattime, I guess, I thought my cousin and I must be just about theonly guys in the world who needed dick instead of pussy butdidn't act queer. But my cousin told me there were plenty of guyslike us, and being a cocksucker didn't mean you weren't a man. Itjust meant you liked sucking dick. But he also told me that straight guys need to protecttheir self-image before they can relax and get sexual servicefrom another man. He said that submitting to a straight guy'sverbal abuse when you serviced him was just part of being acocksucker and you had to learn to get off on it. Part of thejob, so to speak. He was right, of course. Pretty soon I wantedthe verbal abuse when I serviced a guy, it made being hiscocksucker even more thrilling for me, telling me who and what Iam. But it still bothered me when my friends made fun ofhomos while we were joking around. Of course, they neversuspected I was a homo myself, sucking dick every chance I got atplaces like the Y. I wasn't about to stop doing it, and if doingit meant I was a homo, then I was a homo and so be it. But itwould take a while before I was proud to be a cocksucker. Untilthen, sucking dick was just something I needed to do and so I didit. * * *
I began to feel proud of what I am when I went away tocollege. It didn't take me long to find out about the third-floorjohn in the library and its carefully maintained, and usuallybusy glory hole. Soon I was going there several times a week tofind cock to worship, and most of it turned out to be my favoritekind, straight-boy cock. You see, in those days, nice girls weren't supposed toput out, so a lot of the straights went to the campus glory holeswhen they were horny to get their hard-ons serviced by fags. Justlike the guys I'd sucked off at the Y while in high school, noneof them thought there was anything queer about a guy putting hisdick in some cocksucker's mouth so he could get off. It wasputting your mouth around some guy's dick that made you queer. But the straights liked the anonymity of the gloryholes as much as the cocksuckers did. That way they could havesex with another guy and enjoy it without any complications, noreputations made or lost. It was just hot mouths and hard dicksand that was a good deal for everyone, straight and fag alike.

* * * I remember going into the library john after I'd beenat school a couple of years, one night when I was real hungry forsome straight-boy dick. But the first stall, the one I liked touse when I worked the glory hole, was occupied. Naturally Ididn't know if it was just some guy taking a shit, or someonelooking to get blown, or someone after the same thing I wasafter, because I wasn't the only dicklicker at school by a longshot. I knew most of the other cocksuckers by this point, havingrun into them in places like the library john. We'd nod when weran into each other on campus and maybe discuss some new hot spotto get dick that one of us had found. We were sort of a secretfraternity and most of us weren't obvious about being queer. So I went into the other stall to take a leak and Icould feel the guy checking me out through the glory hole while Ipissed. "How you doing, cocksucker?" he said. It was Billy, the only guy I let call me "cocksucker"when I wasn't being submissive to a straight guy while I servicedhim. Billy was my best friend. We had met in this very spotduring our freshman year when he had put his dick through theglory hole for me to suck on after I let him know I wanted it. Ihad figured he was just another horny straight boy. But after acouple of minutes of feeding me his meat he surprised me. "Hey, man," he said, "you give great head. But it's myturn now. Let me have some cock, hey, and I'll show you what Ican do with it." Naturally I did and he did as good a job on my dick asI had been doing on his. We were cocksucking buddies from thatpoint on, taking care of each other when one of us wanted to popa load or was hungry for cock. But we were never lovers. We wereboth too much into giving glory hole service, sucking offstraight guys. But we took a lot of classes together and soonbecame best friends. That was great because it can be lonelybeing a homo when you're that age. Billy and I could be completely ourselves together. Healready knew I was a cocksucker, so I didn't have to hide it fromhim like I did from my other friends. And he understood why Ineeded to suck dick in the only way that a man can ever reallyunderstand the need for dick instead of pussy, because he neededit too. So we spent a lot of time together, feeling each other upwhile we talked, making out, and giving each other long, lovingblow jobs as we worshiped our mutual passion, the great god cock. Billy told me he had been hung up on other guys' dickssince his older stepbrother came home drunk and horny one nightand talked him into giving him some head. Billy adored his bro- ther and would have done anything to please him, and he found hereally enjoyed sucking his brother's big dick. It fed a hunger inhimself he hadn't known he'd had before. He became his brother'sregular cocksucker after that, and soon for a couple of his bro- ther's friends too, sucking them each off a couple of times aweek, sometimes separately, sometimes together. That's how helearned to like sucking cock while others watched. And Billy wasstill his brother's cocksucker, at least when he was home fromcollege, even though his brother had gotten married.

"Hey, Billy, how you doing?" I asked him when I foundout who was in the other stall. "Had much action tonight?" "Not bad. I've been here about half an hour and I'vesaved two guys from the sin of masturbation." "How were they?" "You're talking to a happy cocksucker."
"I bet. Wish it had been me, that's for fucking sure.You going to be here much longer?" "Well, I'll make room for you if you want. But Ihaven't come yet. How about letting me suck your dick while Ijerk off? You want to be my last cock of the evening?" "Sure, Billy," I told him, "that would be great. Butdon't make me come, hey? I don't want to take the edge off untilI've gotten some dick for myself." "Don't worry," he told me, "I know that feeling prettywell." I'd been playing with my dick while we talked, so I wasalready hard and I stuck my seven inches through the glory holefor Billy to suck on while he jerked off. I felt his warm, wetmouth surround my dick and I could see under the partition thathe had slipped to his knees, the proper position for worshipingcock, even one that belongs to another cocksucker. Soon he wassliding up and down my dick, burying his nose in my pubes on thedown stroke in his cocksucker's hunger for dick. No wonder Billy's brother still wanted service fromhim, even though he was getting regular pussy from his wife.Whether you're straight or a fag yourself, there's just nothinglike a blow job from a really good cocksucker, and Billy was oneof the best. "Hey, thanks, man," he said when he finished. "That wasgreat. You know, you've really got a nice cock, even if you'rejust a fucking faggot." "Well, no one's perfect," I said as I came out of thestall. Billy came out of his, his jeans still unbuttoned, and Igave his cock and balls a squeeze. "You've got nice meat too,Billy. For a homo at least." "Well, that's what I am," he said laughing. "A queer-as-a-three-dollar-bill dicklicking homo and cocksucker to thestars, and glad to be one. You glad you're a cocksucker too? Orwould you be straight if you had the chance?" "I dunno, Billy. Sometimes I like being a fag andsometimes I don't." "Well, have fun, cocksucker," he said. "You can't stopneeding dick, so you might as well enjoy getting it." He leanedforward and kissed me gently on the lips. "Thanks, cocksucker, I'll try my best." I kissed himback and we held each other for a moment. As I said, it can belonely being queer at that age, especially if what turns you onthe most is getting straight guys to share their manhood withyou, like it did Billy and me. * * *
I went into Billy's stall and sat down, playing with mydick while I waited. Pretty soon two guys came in and startedtaking a leak. They were talking about how horny they were, so Ifigured they hadn't come into the library john just to find aurinal. I tapped my foot a couple of times, the signal that theguy in the stall was looking for cock to service. "Hey, I think we're in luck," one of them said. "Great," the other one answered, "you go ahead and I'lllook out." "You want to suck on my dick?" the first one asked me. "Sure would," I said. "You need to pop a load? I'lltake care of you." The guy went into the other stall and stuck six inchesof manmeat through the glory hole. "Suck on this, faggot," hetold me. I do what I'm told when I'm on cocksucking duty and Ifell on it. Boy was I hungry for straight-boy meat that night.Pretty soon I was making a disaster zone of his cock and ballsand he was moaning and calling me a pussy mouth faggot and afucking, dicklicking cocksucker--all of which is true. Prettysoon he popped his load and I swallowed it happily. "Hey, Steve," he said to his buddy, "this guy is great.He really drained me." He left the stall and the other guy came in and put atrue eight-incher through the glory hole. It was a real beautyand I leaned back to admire it for a second. "Come on, cocksucker," he told me, "do your job, Ihaven't got all night." I set to work, polishing the head of his dick with mytongue. I licked his balls for a while and then deep-throated himright to the base of his cock. He let out a low moan and startedto move his hips back and forth. He turned out to be one of thoseguys who prefer to fuck a cocksucker in the face, so I justpushed my mouth up to the glory hole and had a really good timewhile he put his hands on the top of the partition and shoved hisdick down my throat again and again. Just as we were really getting into it, the door to thejohn opened and another guy came in. Sometimes when that hap- pened, the guy getting sucked would pull away. But this onedidn't seem to care and he kept right on face fucking me. "Hey, Pete," the new guy said to the one I'd servicedfirst. "What are you doing here?" "Not doing anything, Fred. I'm here getting done. So'sSteve." "You got a cocksucker in there taking care of you,Steve?" he asked. "Sure as hell do," he said. "Wait a couple more minutesand you can find out for yourself how good he is. This guy'sreally got a hot mouth." "Thanks," he said, "but I think I'm getting laid thisweekend. Don't want to spoil that." "Lucky you," the guy I was sucking said. "Haven't hadany pussy in fucking ages. Got to be satisfied with blow jobsfrom faggots. At least this cocksucker really knows how to usehis mouth on a guy's meat." "Well, enjoy," the other guy said, flushing the urinaland going out. I was really pleased he had called me a good cocksuckerand he started calling me more names when he got close. "Come on,cocksucker," he said, "use that pussy mouth of yours. Yeh, man,suck my dick. Fucking queer, you like my meat, don't you,faggot?" Suddenly he shot a big wad and I slurped it up. He took his dick out of my mouth, wiped it off withsome toilet paper and zipped up. "Thanks, guy," he said, "youwere great. Really enjoyed it." "Glad I could help," I said. "Any time." "See you around, whoever the fuck you are," he said ashe went out the door with his friend, laughing. I waited again, my cocksucker's hunger for dick not yetsatisfied, despite two great cocks. But no one came in for a longwhile and I eventually decided to try the park to get what Ineeded. I'd never been there before but Billy had told me aboutit. When it was warm he especially liked to go to a part of thepublic park near the campus because that's where the local punkswent when their girl friends weren't putting out and they neededa blow job from the cocksuckers who went there to service them.It really turned him on to be on his knees in front of theseguys, servicing their dicks in public, and taking their verbalabuse along with their loads. "You've never been called a faggot until one of theseguys call you a faggot," Billy would say happily when he wastelling me about his latest night out, sucking on townie dick."Their friends are watching, so they have to be real macho."

* * * There was a moon out, so I could see my way as I wentto the secluded path through the wooded part where Billy had toldme the action was. Soon I saw two guys, obviously townies, stand- ing against the stone wall that went along one side of the path,and a third guy, who looked like a college student, down on hisknees, giving head to one of them. I approached and saw that itwas Billy. He had said he was through for the night, but youprobably know how it is when you're a cocksucker.
The guy who was watching his friend get serviced lookedat me as I came closer. It didn't take him long to figure out Iwas a cocksucker too. (I was dressed like a college student, andany college student who was in that part of the park at that timeof night was looking for townie dick to suck). He took his meatout of his pants and waved it at me. "Suck it for me, faggot," he said. I got down on myknees in front of him next to Billy, who looked at me, the otherguy's dick still in his mouth. His eyes widened when he saw itwas me. "Enjoying yourself, cocksucker?" I asked as I took holdof my guy's balls with one hand while I started to lick his hardening dick. He shook his head yes and went back to work, his headsliding long and easy on the bigger-than-average piece of meat infront of him. He looked real happy, but a cocksucker on his kneeswith a hot dick in his mouth usually is. I got to work too and soon our heads were bobbing inunison as we pleasured the two punks. As they each came, theyjust tucked their meat back in their pants and walked away, leav- ing me and Billy kneeling there, the last of their cum stilldribbling down our chins.
"Fuckin' faggots," one of them said as they moved outof sight.
"How you doing?" I asked Billy. "Pretty good. I see you decided to check out the parkand try some townie dick for a change." "Yeh, why should you get it all?" "I'm not the only cocksucker who comes here to get dickfrom these guys, believe me. On Saturday nights there can be fiveor six of us down on our knees giving head and a couple of dozentownies waiting their turn to be serviced. It can be real hot.Check it out sometime.
It can be better than college cock." "I will." As we were talking, a couple of other guys came up tous and pulled out their meat.
A third joined us and waited whilewe took care of the first two. Billy finished first and began onthe third guy. When my man gave me his load, I stayed on my kneesand watched Billy suck. As I said, the straight-acting homos at school, likeBilly and me, tended to stay out of each others' way when we wereout getting dick. And although Billy and I were best friends andwe had sucked each other off a hundred times, I had never seenhim with anyone's dick in his mouth except mine. Then Billy took the guy's penis out of his mouth andoffered it to me. Of course, Billy was my best friend, not justanother cocksucker. I took over and pretty soon we were switchingback and forth. While we were both working on it, me on one side,Billy on the other, the guy suddenly shot his load between us.
* * * As we were watching this guy cum, a cop who had obvi- ously been watching us from the shadows suddenly appeared. Theguy we had been blowing ran off, tucking his meat back in hispants as he went, but Billy and I were trapped. Anyway the copsnever arrested the punks, just the fags who serviced the punks. The cop stood in front of us, his hands on his hips."Alright, faggots," he said, looking down on us, "let's go." "Please, sir," said Billy, who seemed calm, "can't wemake a deal?" "You fucking queers," he said. "We don't like cock- suckers in this town, especially smart-ass college cocksuckers.On your feet and let's go. Now." I was too scared to move. My parents were going to havea fit when they heard their darling son had been arrested forgiving blow jobs in the park. Like most straights they didn'teven know I was queer. But Billy stayed calm. He reached out andgently touched the policeman's well-packed crotch. "Please, sir," Billy said massaging his basket, "let mesuck your dick. I'm a real good cocksucker, sir, and so's myfriend here. We'll take good care of you. Please, sir." "Suck on this, faggot," the cop said, shoving his nightstick in Billy's face. Billy didn't hesitate. He started suckingon the end of the club, his head bobbing back and forth obedient- ly. But he kept massaging the cop's basket, and the cop didn'tstop him. I could see his dick was getting hard. I figured I bet- ter follow Billy's lead if I hoped to stay out of jail, so I un- zipped the cop's fly, reached in and pulled out a beautiful pieceof semi-hard cop meat. I started sucking on it while Billywatched. After a minute or so, I let Billy take over the cop'sdick and I started licking his balls. I could tell the cop wasreally getting off on having two cocksuckers service him at thesame time while I was really getting off sharing his manhood withBilly. "Fucking faggots," he said. "You like my meat, don'tyou, queer boy?" "Yes, sir," I said, as Billy continued sucking. "I suredo, sir." "Well, you tell your faggot friend to keep doing whathe's doing to it. His pussy mouth feels real good on my dickright now." Billy looked at me out of the corner of his eye andwinked. I went back to licking the cop's hairy balls and shiftingoff with Billy every couple of minutes. Billy took his own dickout and began to beat off slowly as he serviced the cop and I didthe same. Finally the cop pulled his meat out of my mouth andsaid, "OK, cocksuckers, here's your reward," as he stroked it. Hebegan shooting a huge wad all over our faces. Spurt after spurtlanded on Billy and me as we kneeled there together in the park,jerking ourselves off and looking like a pair of hungry babyrobins, our mouths wide open while the cop fed us his spunk. Whenthe cop finally finished coming, he zipped up his pants andadjusted his uniform. "Lucky for you guys I was horny. Next time I may not beso generous." "Yes, sir," Billy said, "Thank you for letting us beyour cocksuckers, sir." The cop went off, leaving Billy and me alone. I lookedat him and saw some of the cop's cum dripping down the end of hisnose. I leaned over and licked it off him and then cleaned up therest of his face with my tongue, and he did the same for me,savoring every drop of the cop's load. "Wow," Billy said when he had finished, "that was hot." "Sure was. How did you know he'd let us suck him?" "I've seen him getting a blow job here before, so Ifigured that's what he was really after. Couldn't hurt, right? Wewere already in deep shit if he meant it." "You're right about that, man." Billy looked thoughtful. "I asked you earlier," hesaid, "if you were glad you were a cocksucker. After somethinglike this, I know I'm glad to be one, even though it has it'sinconveniences, so to speak." "Me too, that's for fucking sure. I'm still hot." "Well, I didn't come just now. Want to take care of me,before we head back to school?" "Sure, Billy," I said, "that would be great. Thanks.I'd love to suck your dick." Billy stood up, his meat still hanging out of hispants.

"Help yourself, faggot," he said, smiling down at me on myknees in front of him, waving his dick in my face, just likestraight guys did when they taunted me. Like Billy, I preferred sucking off straight guysinstead of other fags, but right then for some reason I was gladit was Billy I was taking care of. Billy, who knew what it meantto be a cocksucker, knew the humiliation of begging straight boysto share their meat, knew the sexual power of their contempt forguys like us, knew the joy of giving sexual service to them. Justthen I was glad it was Billy, not some straight guy who used mefor his pleasure while he made fun of me because I wanted him touse me. I liked Billy a lot, and taking care of him was what Iwanted to do right then. Like a lot of guys who are hung up on other guys'dicks, Billy had big meat of his own and it quickly came to fullerection, seven and a half inches that curved smoothly upward. Ihad always enjoyed taking care of him when he needed to pop aload. Now I took his beautiful penis into my mouth once more andbegan to worship it with long, smooth strokes while I fondled hisballs, just as I had been worshiping the cocks of the straightguys. And Billy's turned out to be the best dick I'd had allnight, not because it was the biggest--the guy in the libraryjohn had been bigger--but because it really gave me what a cock-sucker needs from another guy's meat, that sense of completeness,sexual wholeness that guys like Billy and me only get fromsucking on another man's manhood. I sucked contentedly for several minutes, giving Billythe best blow job I knew how to give while I nourished myselffrom his manhood. He leaned up against the wall making it easierfor me to service him, just as the punks had done, holding myhead gently in his hands. Some of the guys we had sucked off earlier walked by."Hey," one of them said, "Look at that. The cocksuckers are doingeach other now." "Hey, faggot," another said to Billy, "you switched orsomething? You not a cocksucker any more like your friend?" "Hell, no," Billy yelled back, "I'm still a cocksucker.I'll always be a cocksucker. I'm fucking proud to be acocksucker, man. That's what I am." The punks went off laughing about the two crazy homos.But I didn't care any more than Billy did. As I knelt on thepathway in the park, sucking my best friend's cock for him, get-ting sexual pleasure for myself in the greatest way I knew how,by using my mouth to give sexual pleasure to another man, Irealized that I was proud to be a cocksucker too. After all these years, I'm still proud to be a cock- sucker. Like Billy said, that's what I am.

This thread is another token of the fear keyclowns have for the AKC. Of course they grasp at any straw. Of course they cry and whine about what other people do or say. Of course.

This all follows reason. They don't want what they do questioned or discussed, so they attack others in their trembling fear of those who master them.

It all follows the master program set forth by the AKC. Don't worry, there is nothing they can do to change their orders, they are embedded in their chips.

No, anyone can not most certainly can record the conversation they are part of and does not have to dosclose to other party they are being taped.

Some states require, under most circumstances, the consent of all parties to a conversation. Those jurisdictions are Connecticut, Florida, Illinois, Maryland, Massachusetts, Michigan, Montana, Nevada,
New Hampshire, Pennsylvania and Washington.

It is illegal under all jurisdictions to record calls in which one is not a party.

Get your facts staright before you post your crap.

WA3MOJ & Doug Adair N8WWM that are the main trouble makers.
I guess you could look at it their way.....................
everyone else is the troublemaker...........LMAO!!!!

Send some of his more colorful posts...up until a few years ago he made tons of them and signed them all. It will absolutely assist the FCC in making a valid judgement concerning this unsettled and disturbed individual. In fact, the more people who send Riley complaints and a copy or link of his court ordered shrink, indigency status, and threats concerning radio, the faster this will come to fruition.

>Doug is famous on both Usenet and the Web.

Include a link, a quick note of what you are complaining about, maybe a tinyurl link, what you would like done, and an example. If one is ordered by the courts to undergo evaluation for psyhological disorders and is a felon and has been busted by the FCC in the past and still lives only to harasses the masses concerning his obscene homosexual remarks on a daily basis, his license will be yanked with enough complaints to Riley. The FCC has no way of knowing what their licensed ops are doing unless they are made aware.

By his being busted and listed on the rain report for jamming the Toledo

By his (Riley's) personal witnessing N8WWM's action in this group. He was invited to witness Dogie's and another nocodes behavior on this

By his receiving in email some of n8wwm's threats and errant behaviors,

Just a quick update for the AKC.
There was recorded telephone conversation
between a "customer" and a keyclown
Twist, I think you might be mistaken on this >one. The way I understand it, it is legal to >tape a telephone conversation as long as one >of the parties is aware it is being taped.

Nope. It is illegal to tape a private conversation without the explicit permission of the partiy OR parties being taped. In other words, it is illegal to tape a party without their knowledge.

>Basically, it prevents wire-tapping where >neither party is aware. A case in point would >be where a husband who suspects his wife of >eavesdropping. But, I still think it is legal for a >person to tape another party without telling

>them.

>I may be wrong, but I don't think so.

Wiretapping requires a judges order,,the taping of a conversation a person is party to does not. If I were to tape your conversation with a third party, I would be guilty of wiretapping without a judges consent. If I were to tape a private conversation of you and I on the telephone without your consent and knowledge, it could not be used or submitted in a court of law, as it was illegally obtained. One can tape a radio conversation, as it is not private, but one may not tape a private telephone conversation. For quick reference and recall of this topic, I invoke the case of Newt Gingrich having his cell phone conversation taped in Jacksonville, Fl a few years ago. While the recordings were made public and covered what were alleged conversations concerning alleged illegal acts, no action could be taken because of the maner in whcih the info was obtained,,,,illegally.

See how twithed exposes his fear to scrutiny? The sissy is so far out of it that he actually thinks he has some clout. His clout stops at the toilet stall door.

Here's how it really is:

TWITHED: "Wiiiiiiwey, Wiiiiiiwey, dat mean hammie n8 is reporting auctions and making fun of us! Wiiiiwey pwease do someping, we sissy keycwowns can't."

Just a quick update for the AKC.
There was recorded telephone conversation
between a "customer" and a keyclown
Twist, I think you might be mistaken on this

>one. The way I understand it, it is legal to >tape a telephone conversation as long as one >of the parties is aware it is being taped.

Nope. It is illegal to tape a private conversation without the explicit permission of the partiy OR parties being taped. In other words, it is illegal to tape a party without their knowledge.

>Basically, it prevents wire-tapping where

>neither party is aware. A case in point would

>be where a husband who suspects his wife of >cheating with, without the knowledge of either.

>I know that is illegal, because we had a city >federal charges and felony for his

>person to tape another party without telling

>them.

>I may be wrong, but I don't think so.

Wiretapping requires a judges order,,the taping of a conversation a person is party to does not. If I were to tape your conversation with a third party, I would be guilty of wiretapping without a judges consent. If I were to tape a private conversation of you and I on the telephone without your consent and knowledge, it could not be used or submitted in a court of law, as it was illegally obtained. One can tape a radio conversation, as it is not private, but one may not tape a private telephone conversation. For quick reference and recall of this topic, I invoke the case of Newt Gingrich having his cell phone conversation taped in Jacksonville, Fl a few years ago. While the recordings were made public and covered what were alleged conversations concerning alleged illegal acts, no action could be taken because of the maner in whcih the info was obtained,,,,illegally.

Ok, whatever you think, but:

Federal law allows recording of phone calls and other electronic communications with the consent of at least one party to the call. A majority of the states and territories have adopted wiretapping statutes based on the federal law, although most also have extended the law to cover in-person conversations. Thirty-eight states and the District of Columbia permit individuals to record conversations to which they are a party without informing the other parties that they are doing so. These laws are referred to as "one-party consent" statutes, and as long as you are a party to the conversation, it is legal for you to record it. (Nevada also has a one-party consent statute, but the state Supreme Court has interpreted it as an all-party rule.)

Twelve states require, under most circumstances, the consent of all parties to a conversation. Those jurisdictions are California, Connecticut, Florida, Illinois, Maryland, Massachusetts, Michigan, Montana, Nevada, New Hampshire, Pennsylvania and Washington. Be aware that you will sometimes hear these referred to inaccurately as "two-party consent" laws. If there are more than two people involved in the conversation, all must consent to the taping.

Regardless of the state, it is almost always illegal to record a conversation to which you are not a party, do not have consent to tape, and could not naturally overhear.

And if GEO was not WA3MOJ, the "real" owner of the call would have told us my now. I suggest stepping up the harassment of the call to bring it to a head. Either he is, and can't do squat about it, or he is not, and the real owner should know that GEO took ownership of it long ago, and played into having an innocent ham harassed.

It's all pretty clear cut Lanshark. You don't pay the NAL and challenge it in district court, or pay it, then go the appeal court route. If you read the whole quoted section that's what the court says, in legal speak, near the end.

Anyway the original point made by several people was you can't challenge a NAL in court. I think that myth has been dispelled. You raised another issue, is it really worth the cost? You might have a point there. I guess it all depends on the about of the NAL. a couple of grand maybe not, but for $10K yeah I think it would if one feels confident they have a strong case.

On a side point who were you replying to in regards to a post about a radio and refering to them using my name? I never mentioned anything about a radio, just a comment about you getting a NAL for first hand experience. I think you got me confused with somebody else.

I do remember you slobbering with drool about claiming the rain report has nothing to do with the FCC but you are incorrect. The rainreport used to be done by Hollingsworth himself, but the information comes straight from the FCC and the FCC has authorized the rainreport to broadcast their reports on the web. If you pay attention at the beginning, the report claims the information may NOT be broadcast by another party. Despite your screamed ignorance, the rain report very much has plenty to do with the FCC.

By his (Riley's) personal witnessing N8WWM's action in this group. He was invited to witness Dogie's and another nocodes behavior on this group some time ago. In his own words "That's something you won't

You are quite delusional to think the FCC's main enforcement officer is concerned about a felony child abuser and nocode jammer being spoofed on usenet. Once again, your ignorance knows no bounds, as in the eyes of the law, not one person on this group can be construed as an illegal cber by sole virtue of their topics.
You were learned this several times in the past, but that retainment value of yours is maimed by your lack of communication skill.

By his receiving in email some of n8wwm's threats and errant behaviors, sent by law-abiding hammies that are also cbers.

Yes. But concerning yourself with other's business is what got your nose permanently stained in the past. The smell that accompanies you is from rolling in what you are given.

Now is the time to escalate those compaints. Several hammies are under the review process right now. The weeding process is underway among the hammies. You will see more no-good, law-breaking, harassing hammies losing their ticket in .05.....stay tuned.

Instead of reaffirming the magnitude of your ignorance in redundant posts, check the law,,I did. One thing I was wrong about, a judges signature is NOT needed in Claifornia IF its in relation to law enforcement when taping a conversation, but a private citizen may not do so. You are now a felon for your acts of taping a party over the phone lines (an interstate commerce, making it federal) without their implicit permission. Better get educated before you wind up in prison. Ignorance is no excuse for breaking the law.

Friendly disagreement here. If that were true, the federal law would supercede many state laws in this regards.

>A majority of the states and territories have Wiretapping is very different than the mere taping of a conversation.

>Thirty-eight states and the District of Columbia >permit individuals to record conversations to >which they are a party without informing the >other parties that they are doing so.

But if federal law supercedes state law (as it always does), then the other states laws are ng. Here's the difference, right from a LEO's mouth, with a hypothetical situation:
"If Uncle George touches his underaged niece in an inappropriate manner, the LEOs may enact a scenario, such as having the niece call the uncle, and ask "Uncle George, why did you do such a thing?"....and the leos can tape the call. However, a private party may NOT tape a private telephone conversation without the other parties strict permission. Let's forget about ALL other scenarios and focus on the telephone, as this is where he committed his felony. NO state permits the taping of a private telephone conversation without the permission of the person being taped. They MUST be informed when this is doen by a private party. The telephone system is subject to federal statutes, not state and is governed by the FCC. Email them and ask them about this law. It's a felony to record a private party conversation on the telephone without their permission. Such is the reason for the blacking out of the cell band on scanners.

>These laws are referred to as "one-party >consent" statutes, and as long as you are a >party to the conversation, it is legal for you to Perhaps,,but not on the telephone.

Dude if he didn't have to use a self addressed envelope,
you know damn well George would have informed himself.

Have you ever gotten a NAL? Have you sent back the paperwork to the FCC that goes with the NAL?
If the answer is no, then you don't know. If it's yes
then you know that you have to give them, Full name,
Social Security #, employment info, assets info etc etc.
As I have said in previous posts, I know two people that got them, both were found guilty, though they filed motions with the commission saying they weren't. They then were told that if they didn't pay, their wages would be garnished, liens on their houses. They were told by the FCC & a lawyer (They both had different lawyers) that was the only way or sue them in Federal court.
Say what you want, but you can't just say "I don't agree, I want a trial" They start collecting the fine right away when the commission says you are guilty.

Same point, spend $9,000.00 on a lawyer, for a $10,000.00 fine? One of the persons I know was fined $30,000.00 plus for his NAL, his lawyer told him to pay the fine or make arrangements for payments, he would be spending close to that to sue the government to reduce fines. You saw above what they did to him.

Not really, I may have read into this more than what you meant:
"All I can figure out is you want to believe this so you can justifiy FCC regulation violations in your own mind, feel better about it, and excuse others for being held accountable."

But the way accusations fly in here, I figured you were saying
I would feel better about operating a linear or export radio.

FCC Proposes Additional Fine for Former California Amateur Licensee

NEWINGTON, CT, Dec 3, 2004--Fast on the heels of a $10,000 Forfeiture Order (FO), the FCC has now proposed to fine Jack Gerritsen, ex-KG6IRO, of Bell, California, an additional $21,000 for interfering with Amateur Radio communications. The target of numerous complaints of insistent interference to numerous ham radio repeaters, Gerritsen already faces a $10,000 fine the FCC affirmed in October. The latest proposed fine stems from further specific alleged instances of interference between June and September of this year.

"Gerritsen's threats against other operators and his abusive use of amateur frequencies are the antithesis of good amateur practice and engineering," the FCC said in a Notice of Apparent Liability (NAL) released December 2. "Gerritsen announced to authorized amateur users that he intended to interfere with their transmissions and then proceeded to cause such interference." Based on the information before it, the FCC said it finds that Gerritsen willfully and repeatedly violated §333 of the Communications Act of 1934 by maliciously interfering with the communications of authorized Amateur Service users.

In 2001, the FCC's Wireless Telecommunications Bureau (WTB) swiftly rescinded its Amateur Radio license grant to Gerritsen after learning of his earlier state conviction for interfering with police communications. As a result of the conviction, which he's appealed, Gerritsen ultimately spent some time in jail. He has continued to maintain that the FCC can't take away his operating privileges without a hearing, and that he still has a ham ticket.

Gerritsen's now-pending Amateur Radio application is back in the hands of the WTB, which also will decide the fate of his General Mobile Radio Service (GMRS) license. The FCC set aside that grant last fall because of Gerritsen's alleged continued unlicensed operation and deliberate interference. A Hearing Designation Order for Gerritsen is said to be working its way through the FCC.

In its December 2 NAL, the Commission cited three specific instances of interference attributed to Gerritsen and mentioned several others in proposing the huge fine, which includes an "upward adjustment" from the base forfeiture amount of $7000. The NAL notes that in determining a fine, the Commission may consider the nature, circumstances, extent and gravity of the alleged violations as well as the suspected violator's history of prior offenses and degree of culpability. "Despite warnings and a prior NAL and Forfeiture Order, Gerritsen's unauthorized willful and malicious interfering radio operations have been ongoing for several months," said the NAL, signed by FCC Los Angeles Office District Director Catherine Deaton.

In one instance in September, the FCC said, a complaint from an ARRL Official Observer alleged that Gerritsen "deliberately and maliciously interfered with the Young Hams Net" on a 2-meter repeater. "The complaint alleged that the prerecorded messages transmitted by Gerritsen were so intense and vile they were reported to have reduced one of the younger participants to tears," the NAL recounted. On other occasions, an individual identifying himself as Jack Gerritsen and/or using the KG6IRO call sign, has monopolized various LA-area repeaters for long periods, the FCC said, preventing other users from accessing the machines.

Several times, FCC agents have tracked interfering transmissions to Gerritsen's residence. Commission representatives have advised him that he does not have authority to transmit on amateur frequencies and warned him to keep off the ham bands.

Unconfirmed but generally reliable reports say Gerritsen has not been heard on LA-area repeaters for more than two weeks now, and there's some evidence that he may be staying south of the US border--at least for the time being. He has 30 days to pay or appeal the proposed fine.

But in the case of scanners, neither party knew they were being heard. And anyway, that law is very unique, to a unique situation, due to how pervasive cell phone usage has become, and how that privacy is expected by most users who don't realize it's actually a radio.

Twist, states CAN make laws that are more restrictive than federal law. What they cannot do, is take away certain rights. Case in point: It is legal to drink alcohol in public on Sunday in the eyes of the feds. Some states say it is illegal. And this is just one case, there are many others. Where did you get this notion that states laws cannot be more restrictive?

Switching wall warts I have tried introduce a loud "hash" that completely hides weak signals; transformer wall warts I have tried introduce an annoying buzz -- most likely 60 cycles.

Can anyone recommend a 400 ma wall wart with cleaner output?

Failing that, How about a simple, physically small circuit to clean up a typical wall wart's noisy output?

Better the FCC is slow and late than never. Anyone remember the clown Herb on 14mhz???? Or the bozo that drove the 7240 SWL net off the air.
I'm at a loss as to what motivates guys to be such a royal PITA.

You do know the FCC gave KV4FZ back his ham license within a year after taking it away, dont you? Check qrz.com After he jammed the public service nets for 35 years, they took his license for less than a year and gave it back to him. A real enforcement example?!

I said no such thing. State law can always be more restrictive than federal law, but it may never permit what federal law restricts. I said federal law always supercedes state law. If a state law permits it, (such as medicinal pot) and the federal law restricts it (such as telephone tampering and wiretapping), the federal law wins every time, unless, of course, a state chooses to secede and avail itself of all federal monies and benefits it receives.

Need a unique gift idea for that picky guy or gal who's impossible to shop for? Why not a Dead Leprechaun?!?

Underground comedian and all-around malcontent T.G. Fleming has finally gathered together his greatest hits to form the hilarious collection "Dead Leprechaun in a Tire-Swing." Filled with the fierce social commentary, biting sexual satire, strange stories, and bizarre ruminations that Fleming is known (and often reviled) for, "Dead Leprechaun in a Tire-Swing" will spice up any given bowel movement or trip to the beach!

Click the link below to read excerpts and learn how to order your very own Dead Leprechaun!

But federal law states you can tape a private conversation as long as one party is aware.

Same on this Gulf coast as well. Some here, as in FL, think manufactured housing is acceptable. Those in FL learned otherwise this year, and those here will one day learn that lesson.

You worship the bandwidth Twist posts on. Please stop being such a jackass in rec.radio.cb. The people that post here are really decent guys. Really.

Save the legal stuff about CB radio in this group, since the regular posters aren't amp junkies by any stretch of the imagination. In fact my station is damn near tvi clean, and I'd guess most every other regular poster here can say the same.

You're missing your target here, we already own the stuff that's worth keeping. This isn't an auction or sales group as you well know already.

Merry Christmas to you and your family. :)

So they had crummy attorneys. Doesn't change the facts of the opinion written by the appeals court in the AT&T case. If you go back and read that section again you'll see that the FCC was mistaken about how things work.
The FCC had issues with the points raised by the AT&T NAL yet the court agreed with AT&T. It seems to me that your buddy's attorney likely brought the "party line" from the FCC. It wouldn't be the first time that a lawyer missed rulings in case law that would have materially helped their client.
Happens more often that you think.

As you say "try", until they have to go to court. Then it's a new ball game.

The expense of going to court is a wholly different issue. I'll agree with you that it could be an expensive option. And at times it doesn't make sense to pursue the legal course of action.

No. 8-)) My point was you could pay a lawyer to get the same information here for a whole lot less.

By the way what did that guy do to get a $30K NAL anyway? Must have really ticked somebody off big time. The normal forfeitures are around $7500 for the kinds of illegal crap people do that gets mentioned here in the group.

Typically the numbers in an Armature Radio callsign designates the radio district the station is located. A "6" is exclusively for California, an "8" is for Michigan, Ohio, and West Virginia. However for some time the FCC has allowed people to move to another radio district without requiring a new callsign to be assigned.

Oh btw Jay. I had to dis-assemble my 10 K, move it, and re-install it.

Flying colors, man. I marked it with a sharpie first, and it went right back together like it did when it was new.

Nice antenna, Jay.

when a hearing is being held for some reason other than the assessment of a forfeiture (such as, to determine whether a renewal application should be granted) and a forfeiture is to be considered as an alternative or in addition to any other Commission action.

However, these procedures may be followed whenever the Commission, in its discretion, determines that they will better serve the ends of justice.

Now take a look here

(1) Before imposing a forfeiture penalty
under the provisions of this paragraph,
the Commission will issue a notice
of opportunity for hearing. The hearing will be a full evidentiary hearing
before an administrative law judge, conducted under procedures set out in subpart B of this part, including procedures
for appeal and review of initial decisions. A final Commission order assessing
a forfeiture under the provisions of this paragraph is subject to judicial review under section 402(a) of the Communications Act.
Notice it doesn't say a court, it says an "administrative law judge"
Before the commission.
(2) If, after a forfeiture penalty is imposed
and not appealed or after a court enters final judgment in favor of the Commission, the forfeiture is not paid,
the Commission will refer the matter
to the Department of Justice for collection.
In an action to recover the forfeiture,
the validity and appropriateness
of the order imposing the forfeiture
are not subject to review.
Notice the turn it over to the DOJ & Treasury dept, try to tell them I'm going to appeal it to a court of law.
(3) Where the possible assessment of a forfeiture is an issue in a hearing case to determine which pending application should be granted, and the applicant facing a potential forfeiture is dismissed pursuant to a settlement agreement or otherwise, and the presiding judge has not made a determination on the forfeiture issue, the order of dismissal shall be forwarded to the attention of the full Commission.

Within the time provided by § 1.117, the Commission may, on its own motion, proceed with a determination of whether a forfeiture against the dismissing applicant is warranted. If the Commission so proceeds, it will provide the applicant with a reasonable opportunity to respond to the forfeiture issue (see paragraph (f)(3) of this section) and make a determination under the procedures outlined in paragraph (f) of this section.

(h) Payment. The forfeiture should be paid by check or money order drawn to the order of the Federal Communications Commission. The Commission does not accept responsibility for cash payments sent through the mails. The check or money order should be mailed to: Federal Communications Commission, P.O. Box 73482, Chicago, Illinois 60673-7482.

(i) Remission and mitigation. In its discretion, the Commission, or its designee,

may remit or reduce any forfeiture imposed under this section.
After issuance of a forfeiture order, any request that it do so shall be submittedas a petition for reconsideration pursuant to § 1.106.
(j) Effective date. Amendments to paragraph (b) of this section implementing Pub. L. No. 101-239 are effective
December 19, 1989.

Well, he was running a home base set up, supposedly 10,000 watts. Down the street, maybe a couple of blocks was the local PBS station. They told him that he was coming over practically everything in the station, I'd believe it.
I wasn't there, but I saw the NAL and the judgment, so that's why I know what they said.

Take a read here, it's not a case it the direct rules

He's a tuning fork for radar guns ;)
That's why he was selling his radar detector on EBay.

Absolute rubbish. Never happened. The FCC itself says there was no violation of any rules whatever except the lack of a control operator. While you may extrapolate anything you want in your vain quest to stop the AKC from making you squirm and cry, that's the truth.

Now, since any letter citing violations of rules that would have been sent to N8WWM would obviously be a public record...let's see you produce it.

These keyclowns never learn. But hey, that's fine. Gives us more to laugh at. We tell them we are using them for amusement yet they still continue to blubber and whine. Go figure. Hey keyqueens, keep it up. We know you can't stop! Always love to hear your worship and keening wails as you impotently attempt to protect yourselves from the AKC.

Almost as bad as that N8WWM guy, Stole some guys antenna plans.
Published them in Ham publications as his own design. And then selling them on E-Bay. Now what is this world coming to?

I have it on good authority they're busy busting those nasty federal violators known as keyclowns.

When you transmit today with that unauthorized transmitter the AKC just may be watching and reporting.

Have a wonderful day.

That is exactly what I was saying. I mean what is the obsession? Again
I have NEVER seen a post by an icecold. If not for google I wouldnt half know what this racist cocksucker was talking about. He said I Amazing...only one year loss of license. I don't know why the FCC is so reluctant to take decisive action and so slow to react. Maybe the staff is gun shy from all the free marketeers that have run the commission. The FCC has seen its influence whittled back by changes in the market. People are choosing to communicate over the open and unregulated internet, by cell phone, etc., rather than stand in line for licenses at the FCC. The broadcast industry will be rapidly shifting away from FCC control as more shows are moved to satellite radio. And it is highly unlikely that congress will use the FCC to regulate those new methods of moving information and entertainment.

I said no such thing. State law can always be more restrictive than

Why even bother with Geo WA3MOJ? He will argue, just for the sake of causing hate & discontent. He doesn't care about anything other than being a troll and harassing CB'rs, in CB group.

Why do you get so angry, Steveo?

Do you really take this so serious?

Maybe you are silly enough to drive to people's house and lurk. There must be something very wrong with you. Maybe your parents didn't give you enough attention as a child. You really should take stock of yourself.

How can you really get angry about what someone says about you in a newsgroup? I'll bet you love to fight with the other CB idiots on the air. They say something you don't like, next thing you know you threating them and screaming about meeting them and "kicking their ass".

How can things like that affect you?

Do you know how crazy your behavior is? How do you know who you are confronting? How do you know when your luck will run out? Granted, most Cb'ers are idiots and will not show. What happens when the person in the house you're stalking isn't a scared CB'er or ham? What if the person you're screwing with is crazier than you? Maybe they don't care about going to jail. Maybe they've been arrested so many times they just don't care anymore. Or maybe they're so emotional they act before thinking.

I admit you appear to be a complete idiot. A very "spolied child like" person. As entertaining as I find you, I don't want to see you get hurt. Busted by the FCC,yes. Physically hurt,NO.

I only mention this because of your reaction to posts in this newsgroup. You need to grow up and put things in perspective. Nothing ANYBODY says here is worth the stress you place on yourself. I don't think you help your case with your gay posts, either.

Lying piece of tripe. 1.Go to this link below:
http:\\www.uksmg.org\longwire.htm

2. Get the author's callsign and run it through QRZ
3. Write him SNAIL MAIL and ask him if what you are saying is true. Be sure to include an IRC for reply.
4. When you get the letter back, publish it here or maybe as a scanned item on a geocities web page. Scanned would be better. I can give a heads up and tell him a key phrase to write that will confirm the letter came from him. Let's just see how much your crack addicted ass

Ken,

How about just wiring up a plug to your present13.8 Volt DC power supply, assuming you have one. Alternatively, you could fix the wall wart, which may be one that puts out AC. If so, you could rectify it with some diodes, filter it with about a 1000 microfarad at 16 volt electrolytic capacitor, and use a LM7812 3 pin regulator, which would hold the output voltage to 12VDC. A LM7812 in a TO-220 case is good for over 1 amp current draw, and so would be fine for your Icom.

This has the benefit of being cheap, easy, and being a learning experience. Give me a shout if you need a schematic or a physical diagram of what I am talking about. The whole thing would take 15 minutes and maybe five bucks for parts, tax included.

OOPS...didnt see the part about it needing to be a 6 volt adapter. In that case you change from a LM7812 chip to an LM317, which is a variable regulator. Might add 1 buck to the cost, cuz you need a potentiometer to set the output voltage from the LM317.

You can run a 2 conductor wire off a 13.8 v. power supply and use the '317 to lower the output to 6 volts on a line just to your Icom.

This aint rocket science, easier to do than changing a tire, and way more interesting.

You published an article claiming the antenna, and guess what, if what you say is true, why not any mention of the original author?

You published this:
http://www.tmrahamradio.org/files/Jan2004.pdf

Well after the original author published his. At the very least you could have given him credit. Did you give him credit when you sold his antenna on E-bay? Looks like, again, you don't know the answer.

The FCC does not stand a chance pushing this case.
I have it on first hand experience that the FCC is staffed by manic-depressive psychotics, and this will invalidate their case.

FCC Proposes Additional Fine for Former California Amateur Licensee

NEWINGTON, CT, Dec 3, 2004--Fast on the heels of a $10,000 Forfeiture Order (FO), the FCC has now proposed to fine Jack Gerritsen, ex-KG6IRO, of Bell, California, an additional $21,000 for interfering with Amateur Radio communications. The target of numerous complaints of insistent interference to numerous ham radio repeaters, Gerritsen already faces a $10,000 fine the FCC affirmed in October. The latest proposed fine stems from further specific alleged instances of interference between June and September of this year.

"Gerritsen's threats against other operators and his abusive use of amateur frequencies are the antithesis of good amateur practice and engineering," the FCC said in a Notice of Apparent Liability (NAL) released December 2. "Gerritsen announced to authorized amateur users that he intended to interfere with their transmissions and then proceeded to cause such interference." Based on the information before it, the FCC said it finds that Gerritsen willfully and repeatedly violated ?333 of the Communications Act of 1934 by maliciously interfering with the communications of authorized Amateur Service users.

In 2001, the FCC's Wireless Telecommunications Bureau (WTB) swiftly rescinded its Amateur Radio license grant to Gerritsen after learning of his earlier state conviction for interfering with police communications. As a result of the conviction, which he's appealed, Gerritsen ultimately spent some time in jail. He has continued to maintain that the FCC can't take away his operating privileges without a hearing, and that he still has a ham ticket.

Gerritsen's now-pending Amateur Radio application is back in the hands of the WTB, which also will decide the fate of his General Mobile Radio Service (GMRS) license. The FCC set aside that grant last fall because of Gerritsen's alleged continued unlicensed operation and deliberate interference. A Hearing Designation Order for Gerritsen is said to be working its way through the FCC.

In its December 2 NAL, the Commission cited three specific instances of interference attributed to Gerritsen and mentioned several others in proposing the huge fine, which includes an "upward adjustment" from the base forfeiture amount of $7000. The NAL notes that in determining a fine, the Commission may consider the nature, circumstances, extent and gravity of the alleged violations as well as the suspected violator's history of prior offenses and degree of culpability. "Despite warnings and a prior NAL and Forfeiture Order, Gerritsen's unauthorized willful and malicious interfering radio operations have been ongoing for several months," said the NAL, signed by FCC Los Angeles Office District Director Catherine Deaton.

In one instance in September, the FCC said, a complaint from an ARRL Official Observer alleged that Gerritsen "deliberately and maliciously interfered with the Young Hams Net" on a 2-meter repeater. "The complaint alleged that the prerecorded messages transmitted by Gerritsen were so intense and vile they were reported to have reduced one of the younger participants to tears," the NAL recounted. On other occasions, an individual identifying himself as Jack Gerritsen and/or using the KG6IRO call sign, has monopolized various LA-area repeaters for long periods, the FCC said, preventing other users from accessing the machines.

Several times, FCC agents have tracked interfering transmissions to Gerritsen's residence. Commission representatives have advised him that he does not have authority to transmit on amateur frequencies and warned him to keep off the ham bands.

Unconfirmed but generally reliable reports say Gerritsen has not been heard on LA-area repeaters for more than two weeks now, and there's some evidence that he may be staying south of the US border--at least for the time being. He has 30 days to pay or appeal the proposed fine.

IIRC, wasn't KV4FZ the guy who was convicted of some sort of telephone cheating scheme? And not for any violations with ham radio? And kept his nose clean for several years after the telephone thing?

The thing with little Stevie is his frustration with everything. He gets pissed so then he throws insults, like anybody gives a shit what he says.
Then when that doesn't work he goes to the fag shit. Wonder if little Stevie was drunk when he posted his fag rant.

I just dont get it!
For the record I do not know any of the people you claim I know.
brian vanderpoool NO
jason halverson NO
icecold NO
And frankly I dont know you but you seem obsessed with a good many people on this group. Why do you care so much? I googled and found out about you. You are one of the so-called ass clowns I mean key clowns. You have a 32 pill dave made amplifier. Someone from the group sent me a good amount of info on you even a picture of you holding the amp in your hands from a site you had called the Bayshore network. Somewhere in south jersey.

Why are you mad at me or anyone for that matter?

Do you mean the great * K6KPS * from "Beautiful southern Cal" ?
The guy who's caused RF mahyem on the ham bands from the mid-60's thru the early 80's? (I thought that ole Jimmy went SK a few years ago. Can anyone confirm this?)

Ah yes! The great KV4FZ from St Croix in the USVI.

Glub bless him! (xoxoxo)

Herb was a true JEDI MASTER at the fine artform of stirring up the shit, getting others to do your dirty work for you, and attracting every nutcase ham in the USA to his 'home base' of 14.313 for his daily roundup of mayhem and insanity. Herb would get the ball rolling and quietly slip away when the mess was a much like a self-perpetuating car wreck on the Interstate with everyone driving 85 in a fog.

If you missed the GOOD OLE DAYS of the infamous 14.313/14.300/3.894.5 radio wars, you really missed that most comical days ham radio has ever seen since!
It was the archetype "15 minutes of fame" opportunity for anyone with a microphone. a true "ShowTime At The Apollo" for ham radio if there ever was until Mr.
Hollingsworth came in and broke up the party, much like Alan Greenspan does at the FED when he raises Interest

> Or the bozo that drove the 7240 SWL net off the air.

There were FOUR Bozos (..that we suspected) to be exact.
One in NJ, one in WPa, One in Ohio and the last one in W.Va. NJ and Pa got caught red-handed by the FCC.
(the guy from Pa is currently in the Pa State Mental Health system somewhere in [blank] Pa incidentally, on charges un-related to his ham activities...)

Ohio and W.Va. are still out there, but are rarely heard on HF anymore.

All four of em used to go all over many places and nets on the HF bands like stray feral dogs taking their respective crap on people's lawns. (that's the

Thanks for your response.

I have plenty of big, smooth power supplies in my shack. I want to use a wall wart for travel.

The wall warts are putting out the right DC voltage, but they are noisy. Are there some simple, small components that will filter out the 60-cycle buzz of the transformer warts ot the staticky hash of the switcher warts? Ferrite toroids seem to have no effect.

I don't mind soldering something up.

A humble porcelain urinal - reclining on its side, and marked with a false signature - has been named the world's most influential piece of modern art, knocking Picasso and Matisse from their traditional positions of supremacy. Marcel Duchamp's Fountain, created in 1917, has been interpreted in innumerable different ways, including as a reference to the female sexual parts.

However, what is clear is the direct link between Duchamp's "readymade", as the artist called it, and the conceptual art that dominates today - Tracey Emin's Bed being a prime example.

According to art expert Simon Wilson, "the Duchampian notion that art can be made of anything has finally taken off. And not only about formal qualities, but about the 'edginess' of using a urinal and thus challenging bourgeois art."

The Duchamp came out top in a survey of 500 artists, curators, critics and dealers commissioned by the sponsor of the Turner prize, Gordon's. Different categories of respondents chose markedly different works, with artists in particular plumping overwhelmingly for Fountain.

"It feels like there is a new generation out there saying, 'Cut the crap - Duchamp opened up modern art'," said Mr. Wilson.

He said that it was "something of a shock" that Pablo Picasso was not top, particularly since, he argued, the artist's cubist constructions of 1912 to 1914 were Duchamp's "jumping-off point". However, Picasso has not been totally erased: Les Demoiselles d'Avignon and Guernica were second and fourth in the survey.

Only you misinterpret it to have a relation.
Pulling one over for whatever reason takes place in public. The Supreme Court ruled one does not have a reasonable right to expect privacy in public.

You are the only one confused with this issue and insisting on remaining ignorant, despite being properly informed several times. You claimed you taped a private party on a telephone call initiated by yourself, and the person on the other end was not informed you were taping them. If that's the case, you're a felon, and blaming me and conjuring up images of traffic law and other irrelevant scenarios won't change that, or your ignorance. Carry on.

You are hereby warned that the marketing of keyclown-type radios, including advertising, is a violation of Sections 2.803, and 15.101 of the Commission's Rules and may violate Sections 2.925 and 2.926 of the Commission's Rules. 47 C.F.R. Sections 2.803, 2.925, 2.926 and 15.101. Violation of the Commission's Rules is punishable under Section 503(b)(2)(C) of the Act by a monetary forfeiture of up to $10,000 for each violation per day, up to a maximum of $82,500.

The radio is not on the "list" or of the "type". It does not have channels, only a VFO. Yes, it can be easily converted, but so can all the "real" radios I own.

Most consumers electronics now days isn't sheilded as well as it used to be.
Now almost everything comes in a plastic box. Metal cabinets are disappearing more and more. That cheap spray on aluminium crap, I've seen used on the inside of those plastic boxes, I don't think works nearly as well as a good metal cabinet IMHO. Maybe Frank would like to comment on this. I should think he would have some experience along this line.

The quote below is from that section above.

(1) Before imposing a forfeiture penalty
under the provisions of this paragraph,
the Commission will issue a notice
of opportunity for hearing. The
hearing will be a full evidentiary hearing
before an administrative law judge,
conducted under procedures set out in
subpart B of this part, including procedures
for appeal and review of initial decisions. A final Commission order assessing
a forfeiture under the provisions
of this paragraph is subject to judicial review under section 402(a) of the Communications Act.
(2) If, after a forfeiture penalty is imposed

and not appealed or after a court
enters final judgment in favor of the Commission, the forfeiture is not paid,
the Commission will refer the matter
to the Department of Justice for collection.
In an action to recover the forfeiture,
the validity and appropriateness
of the order imposing the forfeiture
are not subject to review.

While there are some conditions that the FCC says has to be fulfilled to qualify, it's not the whole story. What you posted are the rules, sure, just as the US Constitution are rules too. However as we know most court cases cite "case law" where prior higher court decisions, which have interpreted "the rules", are used to support the current legal argument. That's what happened in the AT&T case. The AT&T case was a NAL for "phone slamming", and the appeals court disagreed with the FCC's interpretation of it's own rules. Unfortunately for the FCC the appeals court decision is what counts. A court decision at this level can be cited in other court cases to the detriment of the FCC.

Not only has n8wwm not been affiliated with that club fore almost 12 years, n8wwm didnt post that article. That was done without his knowledge. If you care to verify that I am sure you could contact the club that publishes the newsletter. As a matter of fact, the article does not claim the antenna as an original design. Another fact is that n8 was in contact with the author long before the particular article appeared. The original author of the UKSMG article knew what was going on long before any of you people had a clue.

Your baloney is just another vain attempt to stop AKC actions. Lies by sissies like you mean nothing, especially whan all you do is hide behind nyms. Lie some more...but make us laugh even harder this time...tell the lie that you are not a druggie and a truckstopo trolling, kneepad wearing sissy. Ken,
Since you need it for travel, I would suggest build the assembly in a small box that goes inline between the wart and the radio. Just interrupt the cable and extend it a bit. You could build the whole thing in a box the size of PEZ dispenser and have room left over.

An additional idea...If you measure DC coming out of the wallwart instead of AC, it likely just needs filtering. Skip the rectifier and go with just the capacitor and the regulator. Maybe you could start with a higher voltage wall wart, too. The 317 regulator can handle up to 37 volts input. If you do that the variable voltage property of the LM317 chip would be great to use for other items requiring a wall wart, but one of different voltage. Maybe a 14 volt or 15 volt wart would be a start. If it puts out AC, include the rectifier diodes. If not, skip 'em.

Nah,,,I like the links you provided.
Conclusion
Intercepting and monitoring telephone conversations, even if done with the best of intentions, can have serious legal consequences. State and federal law provide criminal penalties for the unauthorized recording of telephone conversations, and the person whose conversations have been intercepted may seek to recover money from the responsible parties as well. Before embarking on any course which might violate state or federal laws regulating the interception of telephone conversations, it is imperative that advice be obtained from experienced, competent legal counsel.
© FindLaw. All rights reserved.

So,,let us get back to the issue at hand, shall we? The issue was, he claimed he recorded a telephone conversation without the other parties consent. I claimed it was a felony. He claimed it was legal for him to do so. He resides in a two party consent state. That make HIS actions...illegal. He called a party out of state. That not only involves the other state, but makes it a federal issue. Federal issues, when arising verses state issues, always win. Read your link. It reiterates one who thinks they are legal under the laws of their state, should retain counsel before taping telephone conversations, as there are too many other implications and variables relating to this issue. Your link also claims that one may seek damages against his actions. Picture this. The place he turns in is busted...say they get an NAL. The business, in turn, seeks damages against the one who made the call. Since our boy broke the law by illegal taping (by virtue of living in a two party consent state, if nothing else), he is in heap trouble, for sure. A decent lawyer wouldn't even allow the fact the NAL was issued to even be entered or brought up as a defense tactic, as it happened after the fact, and would not exist if not for the crime of illegal taping. Bottom line, is I never contested state law and never claimed to know each state's law, with the exception of California and Florida. Federal law supersedes state law and the implementation of wire tapping done by a private party without the other party's consent is illegal, as held by the United States Government. Once again,,,,,,,bottom line is our boy is an illegal felon for his actions and invoking all 50 states and their laws and my knowledge of such will not change that fact. His acts being legal or illegal were the topic, not whether an act that is illegal per the US government is tolerated in certain states, as for the last time, state laws are tossed aside when they conflict with federal laws. If states do not follow the federal law, even when their own state laws may differ, they are threatened of having ALL federal monies and benefits stripped. I'm sure I can find many links illustrating federal law supersedes state laws, if you need more information. The pot laws regarding medicinal purposes in many states is a picture-perfect exampe of the feds exercising their rights over state law.

N8WWM continues to badger people on this forum for their subject choice, telling them they are illegal. However, when his own hypocritical behavior is illustrated, N8WWM lies, claiming he never committed any violations. Well, here is the letter from the FCC not only claiming Adair committed violations, but also have in their possession taped recordings of Adair's multiple offenses and violations.

Dear Mr. Lagger:
Our records indicate that you are the trustee for the above repeater system. Enclosed are recordings of violations on the repeater by N8WWM. The transmissions continued for a considerable time and there was no evidence of a control operator.
Since you are the trustee for the repeater, it is important for you to understand that you are responsible for its proper operation. The decision to operate a repeater is a totally voluntarily one. Repeaters are a convenience in the Amateur Radio Service, not a necessity. A repeater is a station just like any other station; and under Section 97.205 of the Commission's rules, all stations must have a licensee and control operator.
Under Sections 97.103(a) and 97.105, control operators must ensure the immediate proper operation of a station, regardless of the type of station control. Furthermore, "automatic" control does not mean "unattended" operation. Unattended operation is not authorized under the rules.
The repeater licensee/trustee is responsible for all recurring violations and violations that are not inadvertent, just as a licensee is responsible for a base station HF station operation in the licensee's home. You must prevent recurring and deliberate violations on the repeater by locking rule violators out, using tones, warning users, limiting its operation, or taking whatever steps necessary commensurate with your responsibility as the licensee of the station. If you are unable to do so, then you must shut down your station.
If you are unwilling or unable to prevent violations on the W8RZM repeater, then your operator and station license will be subject to enforcement action by the Commission. Such action may include monetary forfeiture, operator license suspension or station license revocation.

Twistedhed,

At the risk of incurring your wrath, may I offer comment without getting into a battle of personal attacks and angry insults?

The letter you offer in this case was not TO Mr. Adair, but to the trustee, or owner, of the repeater. Now, I am not defending N8WWM, or promoting anything he might be doing, but there is, in this letter, no "proof" that he did anything. The letter admonishes the trustee of his responsibilities as to the ALLEGED violations of a station whose callsign was obviously used in the commission of some, or certain, violations of FCC rules. The violator could have been someone just pirating his callsign in attempt to get Mr Adair in trouble, or just a random act of a pirate who heard Mr Adair's callsign on the repeater. That has happened before. Thus, the letter was sent to the trustee advising of the fact that he was, apparently, derelict in HIS duty in not turning off the machine, etc, or taking other steps to prevent the violation(s).

Respectfully,

So are hams weirdoes for wanting to follow/enforce the law or are the freebanders weirdoes for violating the law? This is one of the biggest problems with society today. People who follow the rules are weird. People who violate the rules they don't agree with are "normal."

This is from todays News Line report.

ENFORCEMENT: ANOTHER $21,000 FINE PROPOSED FOR EX-KG6IRO

>From the "we told you so department" comes word that the FCC has proposed an additional twenty-one-thousand dollar fine against Jack Gerritsen, the former KG6IRO. This on the heels of a ten thousand dollar fine that the agency affirmed against the former California ham in October. Amateur Radio Newsline's Bruce Tennant, K6PZW, has been following the Gerritsen saga and has the rest of the story:

The FCC wants to hand Jack Gerritsen, the ex KG6IRO a proposed fine in the amount of $21,000. But it has to find him first. And for the past three weeks or so, Jack Gerritsen is no place to be found. At least the unlicensed male operator using the null and void call sign KG6IRO has not been heard on any of the Los Angeles area repeaters for that amount of time.

Word of the latest Notice of Apparent Liability to Monetary Forfeiture to Gerritsen has spread like wildfire across the Internet and packet radio networks after the ARRL posted a news item on it to its website. In a nutshell, it said that the FCC was hitting Gerritsen with the $21,000 N-A-L because of interference he caused to hams operating numerous Southern California repeaters. This, in a time frame from June through September of this year.

This latest notice comes on the heels of a $10,000 fine for earlier violations. One affirmed by the FCC only a few weeks ago and not associated with other allegations of jamming Coast Guard Emergency Communications that we reported three weeks ago. That matter is reportedly still under investigation by military authorities.

Gerritsen, or at least the voice on the air claiming to be Jack Gerritsen has never denied making the transmissions. Quite the opposite. On numerous occasions he has come up in the middle of an ongoing Q-S-O and announced that his intentions to take over the channel. He has then proceeded to cause interference, usually by playing a tape of his anti government political rhetoric and his opposition to the U.S. military action in the Middle East.

Sample of Gerritsen anti-war audio recorded off-air: "...those high explosives are now in the hands of patriots defending their country from our invasion killing hundreds of the coalition forces and more than a thousand Americans who are still looking for weapons of mass destruction. Do we need four more years of this? Kilowatt Ge 6 (undescernable....) Oscar.)

One way that hams in the area have handled these attacks on their repeater systems has been to simply shut them down. Others, with multiple sites tend to turn off receivers that the Gerritsen voice can access to while keeping communications going through other receive sites he cannot reach. Some of these countermeasures have at times seemingly angered the voice claiming to be Gerritsen.

Sample of voice claiming to be "KG6IRO voice" admonishing repeater owners: "Your attention please. To all repeater owners and operators. For those of you who demand or request that I not (undescernable) their repeater with my radio signal, I have the same demand and request that you stay out of the receiver of my radio equipment. Kilo Golf 6 India Romeo Oscar."

On several occasions he has threatened legal action against those taking him off the air based on his First Amendment Constitutional guarantee to freedom of expression. So far those threats have proven groundless. Now, the real Jack Gerritsen is no place to be found. There are a number of rumors that he has left the United States for Central or South America, but at airtime none have been substantiated.

All that's definite is that former radio amateur Jack Gerritsen owes the government at least $10,000 and has the new proposed $21,000 fine waiting in the wings. And there's still that Coast Guard issue that could bring with it a much harsher penalty. We will all have to wait and see.

Back in 2001, the FCC's Wireless Telecommunications Bureau rescinded its Amateur Radio license grant to Gerritsen. This, after learning of his earlier state conviction for interfering with Los Angeles area police radio communications. (ARNewsline(tm) from numerous sources includinh K6PZW, ARRL, and numerous others)

Actually, Troll Jerry, those pirate operators (CB operators are OK; what makes them CB'ers is that they are IN the allocated frequencies for "Citizens' Band.") are just illegal operators, which most check-out clerks don't care about any more than poachers. However, those affected by such willfully illegally operating jerks do care about it. (Sometime you should read about what happens to poachers when they get caught hunting on Indian reservations.) But with the sun-spot cycle on the low side, a few pirates in the CW band are a good way to spot when the band is open; think of them as beacons. Also, many hams use the illegal operators' frequencies as good spots to call CQ. Other hams just listening on ten meters usually take note of the illegal operation, hear the cw, switch on their receiver's narrow filter to knock out the voice signal, and reply to the other ham. So, the pirates serve not only as band opening beacons, but also mark good calling frequencies for legal operators. You are right about one thing, Jerry: pirates are nothing to get all bent out of shape about. Off course, when the pirates are caught, their vehicles (and any legal cargo) should be confiscated and sold to the highest bidder. That might help the pirates and their employers figure out a good reason to conform to the law. Nothing hysterical about that; just saying that those who break the law should get a positive incentive not to do it. Now Jerry, please don't blacken the name of good CB operators by calling pirates (also known as "bootleggers" in earlier days) by the name of perfectly legal and decent Citizen Band operators.

Also, many hams use the illegal operators' frequencies as good spots to call CQ. Other hams just listening on ten meters usually take note of the illegal operation, hear the cw, switch on their receiver's narrow filter to knock out the voice signal, and reply to the other ham. So, the pirates serve not only as band opening beacons, but also mark good calling frequencies for legal operators. You are right about one thing, Jerry: pirates are nothing to get all bent out of shape about. Off course, when the pirates are caught, their vehicles (and any legal cargo) should be confiscated and sold to the highest bidder. That might help the pirates and their employers figure out a good reason to conform to the law. Nothing hysterical about that; just saying that those who break the law should get a positive incentive not to do it. Now Jerry, please don't blacken the name of good CB operators by calling pirates (also known as "bootleggers" in earlier days) by the name of perfectly legal and decent Citizen Band operators.

Actually, Troll Jerry, those pirate operators (CB operators are OK; what makes them CB'ers is that they are IN the allocated frequencies for "Citizens' Band.") are just illegal operators, which most check-out clerks don't care about any more than poachers. However, those affected by such willfully illegally operating jerks do care about it. (Sometime you should read about what happens to poachers when they get caught hunting on Indian reservations.) But with the sun-spot cycle on the low side, a few pirates in the CW band are a good way to spot when the band is open; think of them as beacons. Also, many hams use the illegal operators' frequencies as good spots to call CQ. In any case, it is all a function of their fear of the AKC. They know we run this group and they hate it. All they are doing is screaming in their spoiled, impotent rage at the fact that they cannot do a spittin' thing about it.

Even if the letter is 100% legit, it accuses N8WWM of nothing. If further threatens N8WWM with nothing.

As for it being written by a high schooler??? Hmmmmm...well that would be giving way too much credit to either keyclown cb dorks or government employees.

ANNNNNND! (drum roll) The number ONE reason mopeydopey likes Roy Orbison so much......

He wrote mopeydopey's theme song, "Crying" , and another song that mopedopey thinks is about him, "Pretty Woman"

Wrong, mopeydopey just thought it was abuse. He cwied and cwied as a kid when he wanted toys and candy, but he didn't always get them, like he wanted. As an adult he continues this cwying in rec.radio.cb when he tries to do something about the AKC. Just like his parents, we ignore it. UNLIKE his parents, we do not EVER let him have what he wants.

mopeydopey's parents controlled him until he got the money to buy kneepads and hit the truckstops. After that date his control was shifted to the AKC.

Well, sir,

I am not bowing down to anyone by posting simple facts. I am not part of this "AKC (American Kennel Club???) thing, either. If I want to post something, I will. If I don't, then I will lurk.

There is no shame in the simple concept of agreeing to disagree without resorting to insults, innuendo, and other lowball tactics. I said what I meant. Period.

N8WWM is a fine member of the amateur radio community. The accusations in this group are extremely unfair and openly biased.

Which ones? Oh, you mean the one where the state of Ohio ordered him to seek mental help? Or the part where the state of Ohio ordered him to support his kids? Perhaps the part where the state of Ohio ordered him to seek employment? Yes, I suppose it is rather cruel to expect the sperm donor not to be a deadbeat felon, and to support the children he helped create.

Guppies make better parents than N8WWM.

4582. What is the real output of a Texas Star DX 400V amplifier with 4 watts in?

Since truth in advertising does not seem to exist among CB amplifier manufacturers, what is the real RMS output of a Texas Star DX 400V with 4 watts in and a 12 volt regulated supply? The ad on the TexasStar website says the amp has 4 Toshiba 2sc2879 transistors. The Toshiba datasheet says those transistors are rated at 100 watts PEP each.
Anyone out there actually own one and have something more accurate than a lDosey meter or a screw drivered Bird?
Lastly is the audio clear on sideband, or does it get scratchy and crackly like so many other amps?

Gentle Readers:

I am researching the design of the old Swan / Siltronix VFOs. My goal is to two-fold 1. improve (stabilize) the existing design. 2. develop a low-cost digital replacement. I am seeking a schematic of the Siltronix 1011D. I am sure that someone out-there has created a high-definition scan (suitable for e-mail transmission). How ''bout it guys.....would someone please shoot me a schematic, or a link to a schematic?

An apparent shooting over an internet dispute left an intruder dead and the shooters cleared by police authorities this week near Toledo.

Two brothers (names witheld) shot an intruder who had threatened the first in his home at around 4:20 p.m Friday.

The intruder was an unidentified male from the Medina area, who was pronounced dead at the scene.

County Sheriff Randy Thorp said the unknown male from the Medina area.

"He came to the residence, threatened the first brothers family, left the residence for a short while, then returned to the residence," Thorp said. "By this point, both brothers had armed themselves with 12-gauge shotguns and set up a kill zone."

Thorp said the intruder was shot several times in the neck.

Why would someone shoot a moron that stupid? keep her around for the entertainment value. The limp wong won't do anything, all she does is tote a 12 gauge digicam and a yammering pie hole...yammering, that is, when she isnt on her kneepads in the Petro toilet being otherwise engaged.

This is from todays News Line report. If the quotes are true then this Gerritsen sounds like hes a traitor. What kind of a nutcase praises al Kida for killing Americans?

>ENFORCEMENT: ANOTHER $21,000 FINE PROPOSED FOR EX-KG6IRO

>From the "we told you so department" comes word that the FCC has proposed an additional twenty-one-thousand dollar fine against Jack Gerritsen, the former KG6IRO. This on the heels of a ten thousand dollar fine that the agency affirmed against the former California ham in October. Amateur Radio Newsline's Bruce Tennant, K6PZW, has been following the Gerritsen saga and has the rest of the story:

The FCC wants to hand Jack Gerritsen, the ex KG6IRO a proposed fine in the amount of $21,000. But it has to find him first. And for the past three weeks or so, Jack Gerritsen is no place to be found. At least the unlicensed male operator using the null and void call sign KG6IRO has not been heard on any of the Los Angeles area repeaters for that amount of time.

Word of the latest Notice of Apparent Liability to Monetary Forfeiture to Gerritsen has spread like wildfire across the Internet and packet radio networks after the ARRL posted a news item on it to its website. In a nutshell, it said that the FCC was hitting Gerritsen with the $21,000 N-A-L because of interference he caused to hams operating numerous Southern California repeaters. This, in a time frame from June through September of this year.

This latest notice comes on the heels of a $10,000 fine for earlier violations. One affirmed by the FCC only a few weeks ago and not associated with other allegations of jamming Coast Guard Emergency Communications that we reported three weeks ago. That matter is reportedly still under investigation by military authorities.

Gerritsen, or at least the voice on the air claiming to be Jack Gerritsen has never denied making the transmissions. Quite the opposite. On numerous occasions he has come up in the middle of an ongoing Q-S-O and announced that his intentions to take over the channel. He has then proceeded to cause interference, usually by playing a tape of his anti government political rhetoric and his opposition to the U.S. military action in the Middle East.

Sample of Gerritsen anti-war audio recorded off-air: "...those high explosives are now in the hands of patriots defending their country from our invasion killing hundreds of the coalition forces and more than a thousand Americans who are still looking for weapons of mass destruction. Do we need four more years of this? Kilowatt Ge 6 (undescernable....) Oscar.)

One way that hams in the area have handled these attacks on their repeater systems has been to simply shut them down. Others, with multiple sites tend to turn off receivers that the Gerritsen voice can access to while keeping communications going through other receive sites he cannot reach. Some of these countermeasures have at times seemingly angered the voice claiming to be Gerritsen.

Sample of voice claiming to be "KG6IRO voice" admonishing repeater owners: "Your attention please. To all repeater owners and operators. For those of you who demand or request that I not (undescernable) their repeater with my radio signal, I have the same demand and request that you stay out of the receiver of my radio equipment. Kilo Golf 6 India Romeo Oscar."

On several occasions he has threatened legal action against those taking him off the air based on his First Amendment Constitutional guarantee to freedom of expression. So far those threats have proven groundless. Now, the real Jack Gerritsen is no place to be found. There are a number of rumors that he has left the United States for Central or South America, but at airtime none have been substantiated.

All that's definite is that former radio amateur Jack Gerritsen owes the government at least $10,000 and has the new proposed $21,000 fine waiting in the wings. And there's still that Coast Guard issue that could bring with it a much harsher penalty. We will all have to wait and see.

Back in 2001, the FCC's Wireless Telecommunications Bureau rescinded its Amateur Radio license grant to Gerritsen. This, after learning of his earlier state conviction for interfering with Los Angeles area police radio communications. (ARNewsline(tm) from numerous sources includinh K6PZW, ARRL, and numerous others)<

ed,
it isn't hard at all. in fact, I can also be an ass if I really try hard.
most of the time though, its a simple matter of:
1. forgeries
2. someones buttons getting pushed a little too frequently
3. other personal "considerations"
4. just venting.

all in all though, it seems to me that some folks just have a harder time trying to get along than others.

No, you need to accept the blame for that. At one point you thought it was funny to use someone else's call, and even made it a point to perpetuate it.
Don't now attempt to make yourself appear less than culpable.

Hey

Here's an opportunity to get a free desktop computer that's actually not a scam. The catch is that you have to sign up for one of the offers, most of which are free trials and things like that, that you can just cancel without being charged a penny like I did and you have to refer ten other people for the deal too. That's what I'm doing now. I already got one free computer and I'm trying to get another one for my Mother. If you click the link below and then complete and offer we'll both be on our way to a new desktop computer.
Here's the Link: http://www.FreeDesktopPC.com/?r=8662679

Exactly! And then when he first got lucky with a woman, he married her, knocked her up, then couldn't/wouldn't support his children.

A bear walks into a bar in Billings, Montana and sits down. He bangs on the bar with his paw and demands a beer.

The bartender approaches and says, "We don't serve beer to bears in bars in Billings."

The bear, becoming angry, demands again that he be served a beer.

The bartender tells him again, more forcefully, "We don't serve beer to belligerent bears in bars in Billings."

The bear, very angry now, says, "If you don't serve me a beer, I'm going to eat that lady sitting at the end of the bar."

The bartender says, "Sorry, we don't serve beer to belligerent, bully bears in bars in Billings"

The bear goes to the end of the bar, and, as promised, eats the woman. He comes back to his seat and again demands a beer.

The bartender states, "Sorry, we don't serve beer to belligerent, bully bears in bars in Billings who are on drugs."

The bear says, "I'm NOT on drugs."

.........You're gonna love this.........

No, we're divorced, have joint custody, etc. And I do support my kids, have a job, and I've never been ordered into mental health counseling.

Man, George Busch has some serious mental issues.
He's racist, he hate's Jews, closet gay by all the references that people couldn't begin to fathom, harassment of cb'rs, threats against people on this board, delusion of granjor.
That statement above N@##er and the others I've seem with derogatory references to the Jewish religion is definitely against Comcast AUP. I haven't seen the original posts, since he is kill filed, but if it offends you, I would forward them onto Comcast with a statement on how much it offends you and is a stain on humanity.

Geez guy, you have a real problem. You think pussy smells like rotten fish? What kind of women do you hang around? Thats based on a big assumption that you even like women. Sure sounds like you don't.

You are a faggot coward as well I mean you talk more shit on this board than anyone and you bring it on yourself. Some like me enjoy fucking with you and some here probably hate your guts. But the point is the same if you were as tough as you state and would actually say the things you type to these guys faces you would give your address or meet them and put an end to all this bullshit! I mean this crap is comedic. It is just bull crap! Talking racist shit gay shit ! I mean who in their right mind talks like this when they are in front of a reasonable person? Trying to cancel auctions of amps and stuff I mean come on prozac you have many amplifiers. You are a hypocrite. What about that big old 32 pill davemade amp? You can type this crap forever but if you really wanted to settle this you guys would stop the crap and meet up somewhere and settle it like men!

again I am not icecold however I find that difficult to believe. I mean perhaps it would be hard to get rid of racist views but, the childish behavior makes it difficult to believe you were actually born in the fifties.

The "point" is that you have been a nuisance and an annoyance on the radio newsgroups for several years, as evidenced by your (extensive) posting history.

>why don't you just shut up and get a life.

Accusing someone of being an "Internet stalker" is a very serious charge, Eric. What proof do you offer to back up your accusation?

>oh well, you are not my problem. However, if you want to make yourself one, >be my guest. the responsibility for the results are yours.

More threats, Eric?

You never learn, do you?

PS: Do you have a job yet, or are you still using your "disability" as a crutch and leeching off the taxpayers of Maricopa County?

Somehow, I suspect the latter is true.

Yes, we must all be to blame for geo's obcessive leg humping..., not to mention his obvious blatant hypocracy, too. rotflmao

geo's been quite the prolific, manly little pottymouth/coward this weekend. This CB newsgroup is geo's whole existence...

There's actually been alot of 10.5 Meter "HF'er" packet radio activity on and around this freq for many years.
Seemed to start about a year or two after AEA came out with the PK-232. Mostly keyboard-to-keyboard chat back then. As for 6.680 not hearing anything but a VOLMET aero metrrology station on 6.679 USB
at night. (UK aero Wx station)

OMG, George just committed the worst offense you could do... "I have a Trojan on your computer and I know when you post, ever heard of sub seven??"
Man, that's not even a joking post, he could have his ISP yanked so fast with a statement like that. That's plain outright saying he's committing a felony.
If I were you Smooth, I would forward that post onto Comcast, they don't take kindly to people using their network to hack into people's computers.

I wonder what Riley would say about this?

Looks like you are day late and a dollar short. The bidding has already ended for it. Better luck next time. BTW, why didn't you report this auction E-bay? Or did you and they laughed at you,

So far you have said that pussy smells like, mens dicks, rotten fish, the Suez Canal, and a clam bake. You are so damn gay you can't even control yourself. Why don't you face it, you prove with your posts.

Chasing you around? You spend your whole life here, doesn't take any chasing.

Doubt it, it would take more than one or two complaints about this, besides it wouldn't happen for a few days anyways.

LOL!!!, if you've done nothing wrong, then you have nothing to fear, right Randy? You've done nothing wrong, neither have I, but if it humors him with illusions of grandeur, so be it.

"Hello,
I know this sounds like old stuff, but this person insists on changing his screen nic for only one reason, to harass, accuse, make false accusation, use foul & vulgar language and purposely by pass news reader filters. Why else would he change his screen address some 17 times in a three day period.
Would you like you daughter or son reading the stuff this person posts? the language used? I think not. I wonder what my local Congressman or Senator would think if he saw these posts forwarded to him?
How about the local media
TV/Radio/Newspaper, I wonder what they would think if children in there community could read the vulgar language that this person is constantly posting.
I ask again that you have this person refrain from posting such language. I would hate to have to forward these an many others of exactly the same types to the media, and my local Congressman or Senator.

I guess if all else fails, I could send copies of these posts along with copies of complaints to the board members, regents and corporate trustees, showing them the continued abuse by this person."

It worked for me Randy. Kill file, it would hurt him more while going through withdrawls :-))

Of course he has Randy, he must have missed these when he agreed to Comcast's terms:

Note: Comcast reserves the right to immediately terminate the Service and the Subscriber Agreement if you engage in any of the prohibited activities listed in this AUP or if you use the Comcast Equipment or Service in a way which is contrary to any Comcast policies or any of Comcast's suppliers' policies. You must strictly adhere to any policy set forth by another service provider accessed through the Service.

Prohibited Uses and Activities
Prohibited uses include, but are not limited to, using the Service, Customer Equipment, or the Comcast Equipment to:

(i) undertake or accomplish any unlawful purpose. This includes, but is not limited to, posting, storing, transmitting or disseminating information, data or material which is libelous, obscene, unlawful, threatening, defamatory, or which infringes the intellectual property rights of any person or entity, or which in any way constitutes or encourages conduct that would constitute a criminal offense, give rise to civil liability, or otherwise violate any local, state, federal or international law, order or regulation;

(ii) post, store, send, transmit, or disseminate any information or material which a reasonable person could deem to be objectionable, offensive, indecent, pornographic, harassing, threatening, embarrassing, distressing, vulgar, hateful, racially or ethnically offensive, or otherwise inappropriate, regardless of whether this material or its dissemination is unlawful;

(iv) use or distribute tools designed or used for compromising security, such as password guessing programs, decoders, password gatherers, analyzers, cracking tools, packet sniffers, encryption circumvention devices, or Trojan Horse programs. Network probing or port scanning tools are only permitted when used in conjunction with a residential home network, or if explicitly authorized by the destination host and/or network. Unauthorized port scanning, for any reason, is strictly prohibited;

(xxi) collect, or attempt to collect, personal information about third parties without their consent;

Newsgroups
Messages posted to newsgroups must comply with the written charters or FAQs for those newsgroups as well as any other terms and conditions applicable to any particular newsgroups or provider of newsgroups. Advertisements, solicitations, or other commercial messages should be posted only in those newsgroups whose charters or FAQs explicitly permit them. You are responsible for determining the policies of a given newsgroup before posting to it. Comcast reserves the right to discontinue access to any newsgroup at any time for any reason. Comcast permits users of the Service to download a maximum of one gigabyte (1GB) of newsgroup content in any one month, unless users are subject to a Service plan that permits downloading more newsgroup content.

Nah, she's not a bird. She's a -great- woman that is my partner in damn near everything important to me. 20 years of rock solid marriage.

Who knows, maybe someday after you grow up you may get lucky and find one as good as my wife. (save your wife insults if you can help yourself)

Yeah, me too. Geo's rock hero's are all but dead, only ones left are Jerry Lee Lewis, Chuck Berry, little Richard (his favorite probably), fats domino,all the rest are goners.

Please do me a favor, Steve. When those brain-dead trolls cross-post their useless and pointless shite, if you really must take their bait, please remove the cross-posting first.

Anyone in the other groups with any sense will know that anything cross-posted to totally unrelated groups will be troll poo. Newsgroups are full of such posts, some whining about famous people, some about the FBI stalking them and breaking into their home just to watch them sleep - without leaving a trace of evidence of how they got in, and some that leave you wondering who the feck they are whining about.

Those trolls are like the religious nutcases that stand on street corners shouting, "the end is nigh"... most people ignore them, and the rest just laugh at them.

Merry Christmas.

Peter.

That reminds me of a time when my wife tagged along as I went to the lumberyard. They had a display of gardening implements there, and as I looked through the shovels and rakes I make a loud comment to the effect of:

"I'm looking for a new hoe!"
